M'CORMICK OUT AS DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE CHIEF

Report That He Will Succeed Ambassador Sharp Is Not Credited in Washington.

PEACE DUTIES ENGROSS HIM

Cannot Continue His Work in Paris and Also Direct Party Affairs.

CUMMINGS FOR CHAIRMAN

Believed That Connecticut Man Will Take the Vacant Committee Leadership.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Vance McCormick, who has been Chairman of the War Trade Board since its creation in 1917, has resigned his position as Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

It is generally understood in Administration circles that Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, Vice Chairman of the committee, will be chosen Chairman to succeed Mr. McCormick.

The retiring Chairman is now in Paris. He resigned because he could not satisfactorily handle the duties to which he has been assigned by President Wilson with the American Peace Commission, and at the same time carry on the work of the party committee.

While the news of the resignation of Mr. McCormick came as a complete surprise to official and political Washington, it was known by a few close personal friends of Mr. McCormick, before his departure for Paris, that he had resigned before leaving this country. Word of the resignation first reached Washington tonight in a press association dispatch from Paris.

Vacancy in Paris Post.

Coincident with the news of the resignation of Mr. McCormick, it was reported in Washington that William G. Sharp, the American Ambassador to France, who is now in this city, had also resigned. This gave currency to a report that Mr. McCormick would be appointed as Ambassador at Paris to fill the vacancy.

While it is true that Ambassador Sharp has tendered his resignation to the President, it was stated on good authority tonight that there is no real foundation for the report that Mr. McCormick is going to succeed him as American Ambassador to France.

The facts in the situation, so far as the resignation of Mr. McCormick is concerned, are that he went to Paris several weeks ago, in company with Bernard M. Baruch, both of whom had been summoned to France by President Wilson, to serve in an advisory capacity with the American Peace Commission, and resigned before he left Washington. Mr. McCormick left with his associates on the committee here a letter of resignation, which will probably be made public tomorrow, but the fact that he had tendered his resignation was being kept secret here by request of Mr. McCormick.

Mr. McCormick felt that out of courtesy to the President his letter of resignation should not be made public until after he had informed the President of his plans. From friends of Mr. McCormick the statement is obtained that he resigned because he felt that he owed it to the Democratic National Committee, on account of the long absence from the country that would be caused by his call to Paris by the President to serve as world trade adviser to the American peace delegation.

Remains Trade Board Chairman.

Mr. McCormick had contemplated some weeks ago resigning as Chairman of the War Trade Board in order to resume active charge of the Democratic National Committee. But as he had become an expert in world trade matters in his capacity as Chairman of the War Trade Board and had handled its work so much to the satisfaction of the Administration President Wilson desired Mr. McCormick to remain head of the board.

After the President reached Paris he began sending for intimate advisers in the Government here whose services he felt to be necessary for the proper performance of the work of the American Peace Commission. Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board and Chairman Hoover of the Food Administration were both already in Europe, but the President felt that the services of Messrs. McCormick and Baruch were necessary in the work of the Peace Commission, and sent for them.

When Mr. McCormick left Washington, it was learned tonight, he told some of his intimate friends that his work with the Peace Commission would hold him in Paris for at least six months. He felt that it would not be fair to the Democratic Committee to remain longer at its head while so actively engaged in official service and during so long a contemplated absence in France, and it was then that he left his letter of resignation with the committee in Washington.

The resignation of Ambassador Sharp is not a complete surprise. It was quietly intimated when he returned recently to this country that he did not care to return to his Ambassadorial post. The presentation of his resignation to the President is believed to be based on the belief of Mr. Sharp that the cessation of hostilities afforded him a convenient opportunity to leave the diplomatic service.

It has been intimated several times recently that Mr. Baruch might be the next Ambassador to France. But in quarters usually well informed it was insisted tonight that neither Mr. McCormick nor Mr. Baruch was being considered at this time for the Paris diplomatic post.

Insurrection in Portugal Put Down by Loyal Troops

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A wireless dispatch received from Lisbon announces the suppression of an insurrection there.

A Government note issued to the newspapers says the movement was supported by Bolshevist agents, and that it was brought to a climax Monday evening by an attack on the Palace of St. George. The palace was defended by loyal infantry, who checked the rebels.

The naval arsenal men and the crew of the destroyer Giralda revolted. The arsenal was recaptured by the faithful troops and the rebels were arrested. The crew of the Giralda also was forced to submit. Nobody was allowed in the streets after 9 o'clock in the evening.

The note adds that the provinces are quiet, except in Santarem, where rebels who were marching on Lisbon were forced to retreat.

MADRID, Jan. 14.—Serious disturbances have occurred recently in Portugal, especially at Oporto, according to travelers who have arrived here from Portugal. Oporto was occupied by "democrats" and guerrilla bands. Many were killed and wounded when troops were sent to the town to restore order.

The situation is reported to be considered most serious.

6 MORE STATES IN 'DRY' COLUMN

Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, and Kansas Among Those Ratifying Amendment.

ONLY SIX MORE ARE NEEDED

Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, and Utah Soon to Act—Hearing Near at Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Six States today ratified the prohibition constitutional amendment, bringing the total up to thirty. Thirty-six are necessary for the adoption of the amendment.

The six States joining the "dry" column today were Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, North Carolina, and Alabama.

The Nebraska Senate and the Utah House also voted for ratification.

Illinois was added to the list when the House of Representatives by a vote of 84 to 66 at Springfield adopted the resolution which went through the Senate last Wednesday by a vote of 30 to 13.

Immediately after the result had been announced the dry forces entered upon a campaign for worldwide prohibition. At a mass meeting held at the First Methodist Church, men and women allied with the work of the Anti-saloon League, with hands clenched and arms upraised, took upon themselves a solemn pledge to initiate a campaign for the elimination of strong drink in every corner of the world.

The Illinois Anti-Saloon League held a meeting of its Headquarters Committee and gave assent to a series of bills with respect to law enforcement that will be presented to the House at the first opportunity for introduction of bills. These measures will cover search and seizure and the blind-tiger angle of enforcing the present local option law in dry territory and may go very much further.

At the moment the drys are highly jubilant over today's result and are content for the immediate present to stand upon the achievement of the day.

Liquor Interests to Fight.

Steps to require a referendum vote on the prohibition amendment in fifteen States in which Legislatures have approved the amendment, but the people still have the power to reject it, were taken today by the Executive Committee of the distillers' convention, which met in Chicago last week.

The committee effected a permanent organization with the following officers:

Samuel Woolner, Woolner Distilling Company, Peoria, Ill., Chairman; Henry M. Nayion, New York and Kentucky Company, Rochester, N. Y., Vice Chairman; George F. Dieterle, Union Distilling Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, Secretary and Treasurer, and Levy Mayer of Chicago, chief counsel.

The committee adopted the following resolution: "Whereas, Of the States that have ratified and are expected to ratify the so-called 'prohibition amendment' to the Federal Constitution, fifteen have a referendum law and no ratification of the amendment will become effective until a vote of the people has, under a referendum, voted in favor of such ratification; therefore be it

"Resolved, That steps be taken to secure and enforce such referendum in said States."

The committee was in session three hours, and after adopting rules for its guidance adjourned to meet again in New York City on Jan. 28.

New York May Act Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 14.—The New York Legislature has done nothing on the Federal Prohibition Amendment, but there is a feeling among the legislators that it ought to be disposed of at once. To this end today legislators were active in trying to provide for a hearing, which, it is understood, has been asked for by the "wets," when all phases of the question will be discussed.

This hearing is to take place on Tuesday afternoon next, Speaker Sweet said tonight, and will be before the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly and the Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment of the Senate. The delay, he explained, was mainly due to the fact that Assemblyman Martin, who heads BERLIN, Jan. 13, (via Copenhagen.)—The backbone of the second revolution seems to be broken at last, and the Government may assert with justification that within twenty-four hours more the whole movement will be completely suppressed.

The Spartacides have evidently lost heart. Their organ, Die Rote Fahne, admits it openly this morning, deploring that the leaders declared a general strike without seeing that the factories were actually closed. The general strike turned out to be a complete failure, and the conditions on which certain independent Spartacide groups proposed to make peace were such that the Government was compelled to reject them.

No compromise of any kind will now be entertained. The fortresses still held by the Spartacides must be surrendered unconditionally, or they will face the fate of those established in the Vorwärts and other newspaper offices.

There was more fierce fighting this morning at the Anhalt railway station, which the Spartacides sought to capture at all costs because many Royalist troops were expected to arrive there. To make doubly sure, arriving troops were detrained at some distance from Berlin.

The Spartacides were never able to take any part of the station, but many were killed in the attempt. They succeeded, however, in delaying several trains filled with soldiers at a suburban station near Leipsic who were en route to Berlin.

Though there seems to be no longer concerted action by the Spartacides and no general strategic surprises, yet after 12 o'clock last night some of them turned up in a dance hall on Motzstrasse named the Casino des Wetend and made every man present give up what money he had. As this place is frequented largely by war profiteers the ransoms obtained were very considerable.

An armored car with many soldiers aboard, suddenly appeared at the corner of Müllerstrasse and Antonstrasse. Pretending that there would be a street fight with the Government troops, the Spartacides had no difficulty in chasing people from the streets and commanding the windows to be closed. When the neighborhood was quite deserted, the Spartacides entered Landsberger's department store, and carried away valuable goods and 50,000 marks in cash.

In Frankfurterstrasse the Spartacides broke open a branch office of the Disconto Bank and stole about 100,000 marks.

The Spartacides also stopped a number of wagons carrying provisions, and compelled the drivers to deliver them at their depots. They even arranged excursions with armored cars to the estates of well-known Junkers, returning with carloads of pigs, hams, eggs, and poultry.

LEADERS OF REVOLT NOW FACE ARREST

New Berlin Police Chief Announces Vigorous Steps—Troops to Protect Elections.

BERLIN, Jan. 13, (Associated Press.)—Police Chief Richter, immediately on assuming office in succession to the deposed head of the department, Herr Fichhorn, for whose retention the Spartacides had fought, issued a decree declaring invalid all the decrees of the Eichhorn régime.

He also announced to the policemen that their weapons, which had been taken away from them during the first days of the revolution, would be given back to them. The policemen greeted Richter's decree by taking off the red bands which they had been wearing on their sleeves.

"In the interest of safety and order," said the new Police Chief in an interview, "it is necessary that the escaped leaders of the uprising such as Eichhorn, Liebknecht, and the others, be arrested at the earliest moment possible. We have in custody Georgs Lebedour, Herr Meyer, and Dr. Liebknecht's son, but not Rosa Luxemburg or Karl Radek."

Thousands of Famine Victims Beg for Death in Petrograd

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 14.—According to a special dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende, the situation in Petrograd is very serious. Many thousand people are crying for bread in the streets and, frantic with hunger, are begging to be shot.

Ukrainians Besieging Poles in Galicia Attack Them by Land and Air.

JEWS SLAIN IN BERDICHEV

Peasants Said to Resent Raising of Militia Force in "Semitic Capital" of Ukraine.

GENEVA, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—Two thousand persons have been killed at Przemysl, Galicia, by the Ukrainians, according to a dispatch to the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna, a copy of which has been received here.

The Ukrainians have been bombarding Przemysl for several days past by land and by air, and conditions in the town are described as terrible.

The gas and electric plants have been destroyed and there is no light in the town. Water and food also are lacking.

The Ukrainians for several weeks have also been besieging Lemberg, the capital of Eastern Galicia.

WARSAW, Jan. 13, (Associated Press.)—A pogrom is reported to have taken place at Breditschew, popularly known as the Jewish capital of the Ukraine, the place deriving its title because of its all-Jewish population.

The trouble is reported to have occurred as a result of an attempt by peasants to disarm militia which the Jews were organizing for their protection in all centres, which they figured would be necessary when the Moscow Government broke up.

Reports received here give the number of persons killed as several hundred, while other hundreds are declared to have been wounded. There may be some exaggeration as to the extent of the casualties, however.

It is considered here that the control of Petlura, the Ukrainian leader, has weakened, as otherwise he would not have permitted the pogrom, his policy previously having been to protect the Jews when possible.

It is pointed out that the Jews lately have been more bitterly hated because of their alleged Bolshevist tendencies, and also their employment by the Bolsheviki as spies in many cases, they being the only intelligent or educated instruments obtainable for this work.

The Breditschew referred to in the above dispatch probably is Berdichev, an important commercial town in the Government of Kiev, twenty-four miles south of Zhitomir. Its population consists mostly of Jews.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—An unconfirmed wireless message from Kiev says that the Ukrainian directorate has fallen. The power in the city is now in the hands of the Bolsheviki.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—Although President Wilson has been here a month today, it is becoming apparent that concrete results in the way of making peace will not be accomplished when he leaves, a month hence, unless greater progress is made by those who are charged with adjusting the destinies of the world.

I know that this view, while it is voiced by many, is not shared by some whose opinion is entitled to respect. They take the ground that when the machinery begins to move it will accomplish its task in marvelously quick time; but the fact stands out—and even those who profess the belief that progress will come with a rush admit it—that the present exchanges between the allied plenipotentiaries and the various experts called in to assist them are involved in a maze of proposals and counter-proposals which do not yield rapidly to discussion.

Conference Attempted Too Much.

Much of the current congestion arises from circumstances that may be explained in the expression that the Peace Conference has bitten off more than it can chew. The whole matter of making peace—that is, agreement on the League of Nations, the compensation to be demanded from Germany, the disposition of the ex-Kaiser, the determination of boundaries, and cognate subjects—is interlocked, under the present method of procedure, with the question of feeding Europe, re-establishing industrial France, checking Bolshevism, and retaining allied troops for occupational purposes.

It is evident that the American representatives are extremely anxious to get ahead with the work of bringing Europe back into position industrially, so that it can compete with the world on a self-supporting basis; but suggestions to this end seem to give birth to views that lead to no practical outcome.

Meanwhile Bolshevism gains headway; industrial occupations are lacking for discharged soldiers; in many parts of the world there is delay in the resumption of normal conditions which was expected to follow the cessation of hostilities. The most hope-

Allies Will Destroy Partly Built U-Boats; New Armistice Terms Penalize German Trick

PARIS, Jan. 14.—The four American armistice representatives left Paris today for Treves, where Marshal Foch is presenting the new terms to the German commission. The party consisted of Admiral William Shepherd Benson, Chief of Operations of the United States Navy; Norman H. Davis, representing the United States Treasury; Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the American Shipping Board, and Louis P. Sheldon, who will represent Herbert C. Hoover, the American Food Administrator.

A report presented to the council having charge of the carrying out of the naval items of the armistice stated, according to the morning newspapers, that the Interallied Commission which visited Kiel and Wilhelmshaven discovered submarines under construction in slips, which the enemy thought would be overlooked. The report adds that the Germans contended that they were entitled to retain possession of the underwater craft.

According to the report, the discoveries at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven led to the finding of other vessels, and consequently the new terms of the armistice will require the surrender of all submarines already built and the destruction of those on the ways.

It is also understood that the terms for the extension of the armistice provide for the turning over of the German commercial fleet to transport troops, in exchange for food, for the restitution of material taken from France and Belgium and for full compliance with the terms of the original armistice.

The economic terms approved by yesterday's session of the Supreme War Council require that Germany shall hand over to the Allies all her cargo steamers in German and other ports to enable the Allies to revictual Germany and such adjacent countries as may be decided upon. The terms also require the restitution of all manufacturing machinery, &c., taken from the invaded regions, which it is possible to identify. This was decided upon in the view that it would bring about a quicker revival of economic life than the payment of an equivalent in money.

The financial clauses concern the gold reserve of the Reichsbank and the issue of money by Germany. Marshal Foch, when he meets the German armistice delegates, will make suggestions regarding the security of Government monetary deposits and the means of issuing banknotes. Guarantees will be required regarding any removal of the Reichsbank's gold from Berlin in view of Bolshevist activities.

Examination into the question of allied intervention in Poland against the Bolsheviki was postponed by the council.

40 League of Nation Plans to be Considered; No Danger to American Ideals Seen in Any

PARIS, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—Nearly forty different plans for a League of Nations are now before the American delegates. Each has points of merit, but many contain sections directly at variance with the ideas forming the bases of the other schemes.

In order that the interallied conference may benefit by all this matter it is to be laid before a commission created for the purpose. It is even probable that it will be submitted separately to each delegation in order to hasten a conclusion.

So far as they have expressed themselves, the Americans, after a painstaking examination, which is still in progress, find nothing, it is asserted, which endangers any American ideal, such as the Monroe Doctrine, for instance.

One point upon which the Americans will insist, it is understood, is that whatever project is adopted shall be included in the treaty which officially terminates the world war.

The League of Nations will be the first topic to be discussed in the plenary conference. It is planned to devote twelve hours daily to this discussion if necessary until the project is on the way to completion.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—The most tangible first effect of Signor Nitti's offering his resignation from the Italian Government now is to drag Premier Orlando back to Rome from Paris, thus furnishing one more in the series of interminable delays in all the allied Premiers' getting together and staying together long enough to get the peace-making really under way.

In addition to that, Nitti's threat to get out of the Orlando Cabinet has a most interesting bearing on the internal and external politics of Italy. According to diplomatic experts in Paris, Nitti has been in silent opposition to Orlando for several months, and his determination to retire is now taken as direct evidence that he feels the time has about arrived for him to be Prime Minister himself. Furthermore, it is taken for granted here that Nitti will succeed Orlando, the only difference of opinion being as to when. Will it be after peace is concluded or will Nitti undertake to upset the Government before then in order to figure as one of the chief signatories of the peace treaty? In connection with all this there is the possibility of a general election in Italy in the near future.

The probability of Nitti's advent to supreme power in Italy is not at all pleasing to France, for he has been looked upon more or less askance here, because of his frequent intimations last year that Italy would have to retire from hostilities because of what he considered lack of support and interest by the other Allies. He has never been classed in any sense as pro-German, but is accused of having some points of similarity with Giolitti in other directions. Nitti was opposed to Sonnino on the Adriatic east cost question, and was one of the Italian statesmen inclined to compromise with the Jugoslavs in that controversy. But his real strength in Italian politics is that he has the confidence of the Catholic Party, which since the war began has acquired real power in Italy for the first time since Pope Leo prohibited the faithful from taking any part in political affairs. He also has great influence with both chambers of Parliament.

There are just two main tendencies in the Italian population, one being socialistic, the other Catholic. Just now the Catholic Party is acquiring even more influence and following because of the fear of Bolshevism and the dread that the Socialists would too readily be led away by Bolshevist propaganda. It is considered that the country's only safeguard against this is the Catholic Party in politics. That is the Nitti policy, and he has the support and approval of the Vatican.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Apart from the renewal of armistice questions and those of food supply and the procedure of the Peace Conference, perhaps the most interesting matter of discussion today was the developments arising out of the British proposals regarding Russia and the French reply to them disclosed by L'Humanité.

In some quarters there is a disposition to regard the situation thus created as offsetting the expellent start made on the League of Nations proposal. The disappointment felt by the British was particularly keen, but the edge has been taken off of it, to a large extent, today by the fact that there has been a distinct approximation of American opinion to the British view, while the French attitude also is susceptible of medification along the same lines.

At today's meetings of delegates occasion was taken by the British to explain the motives of the proposal made by the British Government in December and peremptorily rejected by the French early this month. The spirit in which Lloyd George took action—and I have good reason to state that this action was due primarily to the British Prime Minister's own initiative—was that half of Europe and half of Asia are being devastated by Bolshevism as by a prairie fire. What can the Allies do to stay this onrush? The British Government has no more sympathy than the French with Bolshevism; but one must make a distinction between the disease and the patient, and for Russia, a people suffering from a disease which springs from excesses of liberation from secular despotism, the British nation has sympathy, such as that to which President Wilson himself gave expression.

The idea in Lloyd George's mind was to make a "truce of God" during which reason might have opportunity to obtain the upper hand in the area of slaughter and ruin. With the various Russian Governments represented at the council board there was some hope of better things, and if the Soviet Government should have refused to send delegates to Paris it would have alienated sections of opinion which are at present inclined to regard it with some sort of sympathy. Lloyd George's offer may fail, even if further consideration is given his proposal, as is expected, and there can, of course, be no question of any difference of opinion on this point between the British and French Governments being allowed to widen into a dispute.

At today's meetings M. Pichon further explained the French point of view, and a frank and full discussion followed, in which the American delegates took part, their contribution to the elucidation of the whole question tending, as I have said, to approximate the British suggestion, in the sense that every effort should be made to follow as far as possible any road that seems to lead to hope of escape from the world menace of Bolshevism.

PARLEYS INDICATE HARMONY

Disposition Toward Accommodation Displayed in Recent Sessions.

BASIS OF REPRESENTATION

Tentative Plan Gives Five Great Powers Five Votes Each in Congress.

THE QUESTION OF LANGUAGE

Not Settled That French Will Be Official Tongue of the Plenary Conference.

PARIS, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.) The conference of President Wilson with Premier Lloyd George, Andrew Bonar Law, and A. J. Balfour this afternoon gave opportunity for a most satisfactory exchange of views on the subjects coming up for settlement at tomorrow's session of the Supreme War Council. The hope is expressed that this will result in giving greater speed to the work of the council and the Interallied Peace Conference.

It is expected that the sittings of the council will occupy the entire day. One of the questions to be discussed is the official language to be used during the sessions. It appears also that the problem of representation has not been entirely solved, and this matter will come up for further discussion.

It is said tonight that the assumption that the French language has been decided upon as the only tongue to be used in the conference is at least premature.

The meetings of the Supreme War Council during the last two days have been a source of satisfaction to conference circles, as indicating a spirit of accommodation and an outlook for rapid and harmonious work.

One of those present at the conferences said today that there were no formal speeches; that the members sat about exchanging views familiarly, as at a club. At no time was there any sharp exchange or evidence of friction.

President Wilson, it was added, listened attentively during the first day's session, but took little direct part in it, as the armistice question was largely one of technical details. At the second meeting, however, the American Executive took an active part, particularly on the representations of the various countries, concerning which he had carefully familiarized himself in advance.

The opening session of Parliament and the Cabinet meeting today took up the attention of Premier Clemenceau and his French collaborators, so that little opportunity was afforded for a further conference with the French statesmen before tomorrow's meeting. It is not thought, however, that there will be any difficulty in settling the questions of language, procedure, and representation, although, in view of the number of nations represented and their varying interests, the question of representation may develop a somewhat prolonged discussion.

Marking Time on Poland.

The Supreme War Council has been handling the Russian-Polish subject gingerly thus far, though it has been a fruitful matter of discussion in the various exchanges of opinion.

There is no change of policy indicated in the case of either Russia or Poland, and it is stated as quite certain that no American troops will be sent to Poland at this stage at least. In connection with the armistice extension provision has been made for the opening up of water and raft facilities for the transportation of troops and supplies into Poland, which the Germans have been trying to obstruct; but, so far as troops are concerned, this applies only to Polish troops who have been in the Entente ranks on the western front.

The matter of Russia's representation in the Interallied Conference has not been finally decided. M. Sazonoff, former Russian Foreign Minister, is now on his way to Paris, but no decision has been made as to whether he will be received, or, if received, in what capacity.

Armistice Terms Suit Clemenceau.

Respecting Monday's meeting of the Supreme War Council, Premier Clemenceau said today:

"We finished, first of all, with the armistice, and there, I think, we did good work. Then we continued our examination of the procedure for the conference, notably the representation of the small powers. As to the conference itself, which should meet on Thursday, it had to be postponed until Saturday on account of the absence of the Italian Premier, Signor Orlando."

Five Votes for Each Great Power.

France, Great Britain, the United States, Italy, and Japan will each have five representatives in the Peace Congress. This was decided upon yesterday by the Supreme Council, engaged in the preliminary work of organizing the peace procedure.

Brazil is to have three representatives; Belgium, Serbia, Greece, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and China two representatives each. Portugal and the States which did not declare war upon Germany, but merely broke off diplomatic relations with her, will have one delegate each.

The British dominions, it was decided, will be represented apart from Great Britain. Canada, Australia, South Africa, and India will have two representatives each, and New Zealand and Newfoundland will have one delegate each.

This is not considered as giving preponderance to Great Britain and her colonies, but rather as giving the colonies separate representation according to their activities in the war. Also, it is the American view that it is preferable to give the colonies a direct voice, instead of through the mother country. The interests of Canada and Newfoundland are felt to be much the same as those of the United States, whose five members, with Brazil's three, give the American countries an aggregate of eleven members.

The representation to be given Jugoslavia was not decided upon, but it is considered probable that the Croats and Slovenes will be represented similarly to the Serbians. Nothing was done about Montenegro, in view of the political situation created by the refusal of King Nicholas to recognize the desire of his people to unite with Jugoslavia.

Recognition of Brazil's Service.

Brazil owes her special treatment largely to her historic position as a former empire and her population of more than 20,000,000, which worked against placing her secondary to nations much less populous.

Another explanation of the allowance of three delegates to Brazil, while Belgium and Greece get two and Portugal one, is the fact that Brazil not only gave most valuable service in the war in affording naval protection against German raiders to the South Atlantic trade routes and the east coast of South America, but that she represents the South American continent in the ranks of the belligerents.

The French press today gives President Wilson credit for the decision by which Brazil secures three delegates, and for the placing the number of committees at five, instead of at twenty, as the French plan proposed. The Figaro says that when the question of the publicity of peace and secret diplomacy was discussed President Wilson expressed the opinion that, while the treaties should be public, the negotiations leading up to them called for the exercise of a certain discretion.

The representation of the various nations in the interallied conference, although virtually arranged, as shown in the unofficial list that has been published, is still subject to revision. In order to avoid humiliation to any nation the representation of which it may be found advisable to reduce, the Supreme Council has refrained from officially making public the tentative list.

It is possible that some efforts will be made by nations not entirely satisfied with the number of delegates assigned to them in the unofficial list to obtain some amendment, but it is said that strong reasons must be adduced for making such change.

Decisions Must Be Unanimous.

Inasmuch as no issues before the conference will be decided by voting, but only by unanimous action, which will be requisite to secure the final adoption of any plan or project, the large number of British delegates, resulting from the decision to allow colonial representation, has not actually increased Great Britain's strength. At the same time, it is believed, because of the similarity of views held by the Americans, Canadians, Australians, and New Zealanders, for instance, their presence will add moral strength to the American plans.

The question of representation settled, the council began the discussion of procedure. A proposal by President Wilson concerning the sending of problems to technical committees for examination was adopted. At the meeting on Wednesday the council will fix upon the methods of work and the guiding principles of the conference.

President Poincaré will open the plenary session of the Peace Congress on Saturday with an address, after which officers will be elected.

An interesting feature of yesterday's meeting, as also of Sunday's, was that more than two hours of the discussion was conducted in French, of which neither President Wilson nor Secretary Lansing has a conversational knowledge, and which David Lloyd George, the British Premier, understands to only a limited extent. All the conversations concerning the renewal of the armistice were conducted in French.

CONFEREES VISIT WILSON.

Dr. Vesnitch, Serbian Minister to France, Among His Callers.

PARIS, Jan. 14. (The Associated Press.)—President Wilson continued his individual conferences at the Murat residence today with British and French representatives. These discussions are informal, such as will be constantly held from now on.

Among those whom Mr. Wilson received were Dr. M. R. Vesnitch, the Serbian Minister to France, and Mme. Vesnitch.

President Wilson gave a dinner last evening to members of the American Peace Commission and its technical advisers. Among his guests were E. N. Hurley, B. N. Baruch, Herbert C. Hoover, and Vance McCormick. Colonel E. M. House was the only absentee, being still too ill to leave his home.

The President will be the guest of honor at a banquet to be given by the French Senate on Jan. 20.

WILSON MAY TOUR COUNTRY.

Considers Presenting His Peace Plans Here in Person.

PARIS, Jan. 13., (Associated Press.)—President Wilson is considering a speaking tour of the United States when he returns home. It is said that this trip will take him into many of the principal cities and it is possible that he may touch the Pacific Coast. His plans are not as yet matured, but it is believed that he has discussed the plan with his advisers.

With Congress out of the way early in March, Mr. Wilson would have an opportunity for such a tour before returning to Europe, should he follow his original plan and if his return should be necessary. He would also have time for his proposed trip before the convening of an extraordinary session of Congress, should he decide to call one. So far as known, Mr. Wilson has no plans for an extra session, but he still holds to his idea of returning to the Peace Congress, if it is felt his presence is necessary to the success of the League of Nations.

The object of his proposed speaking tour would be to inform the country, by personal contact, of the proceedings at Paris and at the same time sound out and encourage public sentiment in support of the peace principles he has enunciated and which he feels have been acclaimed by the masses in Europe.

There are as yet no official announcements of the President's purpose, but some of those close to him suggest such a trip is feasible in view of the fact that it is now certain that the Peace Congress will still be working on its problems during the Summer. Mr. Wilson's friends believe that popular expressions in the United States might support those of England, France and Italy and have great influence on European statesmen.

The President has told his friends that he considers the reception given to him by the people of Europe, not as a personal indorsement, but an approval of his peace principles. He is being urged, therefore, to make a speaking tour to give opportunity for popular manifestations of public opinion in his own country.

DEMANDS OF BRITISH TRADE.

They Call for German Payment of all War Expenses, Including Pensions.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Before his departure for Paris, Premier Lloyd George received a memorandum issued by the Associated Chambers of Commerce, embodying the views of chambers in all parts of the country regarding peace terms. The following points were urged in the memorandum:

The payment by the enemy of all war expenses.

Compensation for loss of property and damage to property arising out of the war.

Compensation for all personal injuries, including a sum representing the cost of all pensions paid to disabled men, women, and children.

Compensation for the loss in national power caused by the death or disablement of potential producers, and by the disorganization of means of production and transport.

The payment of all enemy debts, and interest on all charges from the date they are incurred until final payment.

NITTI THREATENS OVERTURN IN ITALY

of opinion should exist in Italy concerning the Dalmatian question, especially when all parties should be united to make clear to the conference Italian aspirations.

The strongest party is headed by Baron Sonnino, who insists on the enforcement of the treaty of London, namely, Italian occupation of Dalmatia. The smaller one, which is led by ex-Minister Bissolati, favors the occupation of Fiume, but is ready to cede Dalmatia to the Jugoslavs.

Bissolati belongs to the Socialist faction favorable to the war. When Italy entered the conflict, he volunteered as a common soldier, entered an Alpine regiment, fought bravely, and was wounded and decorated. He was very popular. His popularity, however, has been diminishing owing to the inflexible stand he is taking over Dalmatia. This caused him to hand in his resignation as Minister of Pensions just before President Wilson's arrival in Rome, owing to his difference of opinion with Sonnino, the Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Popular indignation reached a climax when Bissolati in his speech in Milan set forth his opinion that Italy must not claim the Brenner Pass nor Dalmatia. The popular rage was so great that the audience would not allow him to continue his speech, while the whole press, including his own following, attacks him most violently.

ROME, Jan. 13, (Associated Press.)—The recent speech of Leonida Bissolati in Milan, in which the former Cabinet Minister expressed the opinion that Italy should not claim the Brenner Pass, in the Tyrol, or Dalmatia, has caused an outburst of indignation in virtually the entire Italian press. Among other things, the utterance has drawn out the publication of a document setting forth the claims Italy should make at the peace conference, which was drafted in April, 1917, by Senator Leopoldo Franchetti and signed by 3,000 persons, Senators and Deputies of all the parties, including followers of Signor Bissolati, Socialists, Clericals, Radicals, &c., and which was presented to the Premier.

Only three copies of the document are in existence. In it the Italian claims are set forth as follows: In Europe, the annexation of the Irridentist lands, namely, the Upper Adige, the Trentino, Gorizia, Trieste, Istria, Fiume, and Dalmatia; possession of the natural boundaries, with a strong strategic frontier on the Austro-Hungarian side; in the Adriatic, exclusive Italian domination, with freedom of navigation for all for commercial purposes, and with the cession to the peoples east of the Adriatic of the outlets to the sea necessary to their commerce.

There was also stipulated the right of Italy to construct a railway which would unite the port of Avlona with the Macedonian Railway. The demand was made that in Africa England renew her recognition of the protocols signed in 1891 and 1894; that France cede the small possession of Djibouti, (French Somaliland; that the Italian boundaries of East and West Libya be rectified; that the Farsau Islands, in the Red Sea, be given to Italy; that in Asia and the Eastern Mediterranean, Continental Asia Minor, with all its ports on the coast of the Aegean and Mediterranean Seas, including Alexandretta, be assigned to Italy, with the Islam (Turkish?) Islands, which, owing to their nearness to the coast, form an integral part of the continent.

PARIS CONFERENCE GUARDS SECRETS

No "Open Diplomacy" in the Sense of Indiscriminate Publicity.

PERIL OF RASH DISCLOSURES

Illustrated by L'Humanite's Treatment of the Pichon Statement Regarding Russia.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—So far as publicity is concerned, the chief difference between the present conference and the famous Vienna congress after the defeat of Napoleon appears to be that on that occasion soldiers were on guard in the courtyard, whereas today at the entrance of the French Foreign Office there is nothing more martial than a body of press photographers with flashlights. But of "open" diplomacy there is little sign.

Quite the reverse, indeed. Yesterday the press representatives were at least allowed to wait in an upstairs anteroom of the Foreign Office; today a squad of Secret Service men barred the portals with a firmness only equalled by their ultra-diplomatic ignorance, first, of the exact nature of the allied meeting; second, of the names or positions of the personages present; third, of the subject of their discussion, and, finally, even of the salon in which the conference was taking place.

In point of fact, there appears to have been a misapprehension among the public as to what was really meant by President Wilson's phrase of the abolition of secret diplomacy. The American diplomatic representatives, as the most directly concerned, have expressed surprise that the idea should have arisen that the meetings of the conference would be public with press representatives in immediate attendance. They emphasize the true application of the phrase as being directed against secret treaties, which is a very different thing from indiscriminate publicity, which might well be injurious during delicate negotiations. A French authority with whom I talked today entirely corroborated this view, taking as his text the recent publication of the Pichon document by the Socialist paper L'Humanité.

"There," he said, "you have an instance of how an incident can be magnified by injudicious or hostile publicity. One of the many suggestions in the course of an interchange of views between French and British was held up as a 'Franco-British disagreement'—the headline in L'Humanité. It would be intolerable if every suggestion that was not adopted by the conference should be similarly treated by interested newspapers as proof of a divergence between the Allies, and the effect, in the long run, could benefit no one save our enemies. The deliberations of the allied leaders must be confidential, but their definite result will be communicated to the public day by day."

Which means in plain English that we are back to the régime of the official communiqué; only, henceforth it is to be diplomatic instead of military. Whether each nation will issue its own—and, if so, how and what steps will be taken to insure homogeneity—or whether there will be only one for each day or session, yet remains to be seen. In the meantime the personalities taking part in the conference maintain the most diplomatic reserve, and a brief expression of satisfaction is the utmost that any of them has yet permitted himself to reveal.

R. S. BAKER TO DIRECT CONFERENCE PUBLICITY

President Appoints Magazine Writer to Supplement Interallied Official Communiques.

PARIS, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—A start has been made on the machinery through which the American public will learn of the doings of the Peace Conference. Hitherto the French and the British press have had access to much more information than the press representatives from the United States. The British and French have also been issuing their own official communiqués regarding the meetings. It has now been decided to issue a joint communiqué, prepared by a committee representing all the nations, this to be the sole official outgiving.

President Wilson has also decided to communicate with the representatives of the American newspapers, of which there are more than 100 in Paris, through the medium of a publicity agent. Ray Stannard Baker has been selected as the agent.

The plan, as announced, is for President Wilson or some member of the American mission to communicate to Mr. Baker such details of the proceedings as are not embraced in the communiqués and which the President desires to make public. Mr. Baker conveying the information to the correspondents. The correspondents will not have original contact with the source of information.

Ray Stannard Baker, a magazine editor and newspaper writer since 1892, became attached to the Committee on Public Information after the United States entered the war. He was the managing editor of the McClure Syndicate some years ago, and later associate editor of McClure's Magazine. From 1906 until 1915 he was one of the editors of The American Magazine.

He was born at Lansing Mich., April 17, 1870, a son of Major Joseph Stannard Baker and Alice Potter Baker. He took a partial law course and completed his literary studies at the University of Michigan. From 1892 until 1897 he was a reporter and sub-editor on The Chicago Record, from which he went to McClure's Syndicate. He is the author of several books under his own name and of several under the pen name of "David Grayson." Some of these are: "Boys' Book of Inventions," "Our New Prosperity," "Seen in Germany," "Second Boys' Book of Inventions," "Following the Color Line," "New Ideals in Healing," "The Spiritual Unrest" and "Adventures in Contentment."

Mr. Baker has also contributed much to English and American magazines. His home is at Amherst, Mass.

MAZE OF PEACE PROPOSALS

ful prospect is that irritation over these conditions will assert itself, with the result that everybody concerned will realize the necessity of adopting without delay a plan of action that will mean a return to real peace and prosperity.

German Ships Wanted for Troops.

Jan. 13.—Involved in the discussion which continued today among the heads of the allied peace missions, with the military and economic advisers present, is the question of the use of the unsurrendered German merchant ships to carry supplies to Germany. Representatives of the allied powers, with Chairman Hurley appearing for the United States, will meet the German Government's representatives at Treves to negotiate for the use of these vessels, among which is the Imperator.

The American Government wants them to carry back troops and to load them with food for Germany on the return voyages. It is estimated that they have a troop-carrying capacity of 70,000 men monthly.

It is not true, as suggested in publications here, that the United States delegation proposed or expressed itself as favoring the use of American troops for overcoming the Bolshevist control in Poland. The denial today from the American Commission was too clear and explicit to admit of any qualification. It was intimated in the publications that the American Commission desired to send to Poland the two Polish divisions organized in the United States and now in France, and that these might be accompanied by one division of American troops. The impression given by the American representatives was that they were unprepared to commit themselves on this question, which was not proposed by them. There seems reason to believe that the American delegates are opposed to using American troops in Poland, and the opinion is rather general that the British have the same feeling with respect to the use of British troops.

French Favor Force in Russia.

The French position is that the ideal move would be to have a great military intervention in Russia itself, participated in by America and all the Allies, to crush Bolshevism at its source. But that is now deemed impossible because of the social danger in the allied countries that would come from sending large bodies of troops to Russia. The second best thing, in French opinion, is to have immediate intervention in Poland to constitute that State a barrier against Bolshevism if it cannot now be killed at its source.

To this view, in the abstract, Great Britain and America apparently do not dissent, but they seem to be doubtful of the wisdom of attempting armed intervention in Poland for many reasons, material as well as political. For one thing, there is the question of transport; and grave doubt is expressed that sufficient troops could be sent into Poland within a short space of time to be used in backing up that Polish Government which has been recognized by some of the Allies.

That the discussion started yesterday by the proposals concerning Poland have taken a wide range was shown by the attendance at the interallied conference today. In addition to President Wilson, Secretary Lansing, and the other heads of the allied missions, there were at the Quai d'Orsay Marshal Foch, General Bliss, and General Sir Henry Wilson, Andrew Bonar Law, and M. Klotz, representing the financial departments of their Government; Herbert Hoover, head of the Interallied Food Commission, and Bernard M. Baruch, Chairman of the War Industries Board.

It is believed that the British and Americans, whose views are practically the same as to meeting the Bolshevist menace through economic relief measures, will make a strong play for an arrangement that will modify the blockade conditions and permit the German Government to import food, which it will have an opportunity to purchase in other countries.

Stephen Walsh Declines Secretaryship.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Stephen Walsh, Laborite, has refused to accept his appointment as Parliamentary Secretary to the President of the Board of Trade, which was announced on Friday. His retirement leaves only four labor representatives in the Government, compared to eight in the previous administration.

BRITISH EXPLAIN PLAN ABOUT REDS

Bolshevist terrorism in Russia, the American Government has sent this telegram to its diplomatic representatives at allied and neutral capitals:

"'This Government is in receipt of information from reliable sources revealing that the peaceable Russian citizens of Moscow, Petrograd, and other cities are suffering from an openly avowed campaign of mass terrorism and are subject to wholesale executions. Thousands of persons have been shot without even a form of trial; ill-administered prisons are filled beyond capacity, and every night scores of Russian citizens are recklessly put to death; and irresponsible bands are venting their brutal passions in the daily massacres of untold innocents.

"'In view of the earnest desire of the people of the United States to befriend the Russian people and lend them all that is possible of assistance in their struggle to reconstruct their nation upon principles of democracy and self-government, and acting therefore solely in the interest of the Russian people themselves, this Government feels that it cannot be silent or refrain from expressing its horror at this state of terrorism. Furthermore, it believes that in order to check the further increase of the indiscriminate slaughter of Russian citizens all civilized nations should register their abhorrence of such barbarism.

"'You will inquire, therefore, whether the Government to which you are accredited will be disposed to take some immediate action, which is entirely divorced from the atmosphere of belligerency and the conduct of war, to impress upon the perpetrators of these crimes the aversion with which civilization regards their present wanton acts.'"

OUTLINES BRITISH PLAN FOR LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Lord Robert Cecil Proposes a Tribunal Backed by Moral, Not Physical, Force.

PARIS, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—Lord Robert Cecil, who has been charged by the British Government with the duty of presenting Great Britain's ideas with regard to a League of Nations, tonight gave the American journalists his views as to the actual working details of the proposed league. It was the most comprehensive statement yet undertaken by any of the delegates to the Peace Conference.

At the outset Lord Robert offered his definition of a League of Nations as follows:

"An improved association of nations providing safeguards for peace and the securing of better international co-operation."

The basis of a League of Nations as conceived by Lord Robert may be epitomized as follows:

An agreement among nations by which each nation binds itself to see that all warlike disputes are presented to the league's tribunal for consideration, and the use of force to accomplish this, if necessary.

Quarrels are to remain under consideration for a specified time, and further time is to elapse after a decision has been reached before the contending countries shall be allowed to go to war. Moral force, however, is to be the ultimate factor employed to prevent war.

In amplification of this statement Lord Robert asserted that an international army and navy were not feasible at this time. Nations, he said, were not ready to surrender their sovereignty to a League of Nations to such an extent that they would be willing to allow it to dictate whether they should employ their forces in the settling of a quarrel which the tribunal had been unable to prevent by moral suasion.

He said he believed, however, that each nation should bind itself to use all means, even force, in order to compel the dispute to be brought before the tribunal of the league.

"The preservation of peace would be the normal instead of the special function of the league," said Lord Robert. "In case of a quarrel the league could only express an opinion, because an international army is not feasible for settling disputes. The power behind the league would not be police control, but the weight of public opinion. Public opinion, however, would be sufficient to insure at least that any future war would be reduced to single disputes—that is, there would never be another war like the present one."

Lord Robert would not go so far as to say there would be no more wars, but he expressed confidence that they would be confined to the immediate disputants.

"In the daily life of any country," Lord Robert continued, "it is public confidence and not the policeman which controls the conduct of the people. You have yourselves seen that even in cases where law and public opinion clash public opinion wins."

As to the machinery of a League of Nations, Lord Robert said there should be an international Secretariat operating permanently to carry on the routine business between meetings of the main international tribunal. The main tribunal would meet periodically, perhaps every month or six weeks, to handle matters of moment.

BORAH ASSAILS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Says America Would Have to Draft a Big Army to Enforce Its Decrees.

SHAFROTH DEFENDS WILSON

Senator France Calls for Immediate Withdrawal of Our Army from Europe.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The fundamental idea of a League of Nations was assailed by Senator Borah of Idaho, in a speech in the Senate today, as meaning the up-keep of a huge military force by all the powers entering it, with conscription in peace time for the United States. The Idaho Senator denounced former President Taft's scheme for a League to Enforce Peace as calculated to make the United States a military nation.

Mr. Borah attacked the program of Secretary Daniels for a greatly augmented navy, saying that it was not necessary for the United States to build up a powerful fighting sea force in peace times. A scheme for expanding the navy, he said, together with one for a huge standing army in the event of a League of Nations, would mean "militarism in its most pronounced form."

While opposed to the project for the League of Nations, the Idaho Senator confined himself largely to an attack upon the Taft plan for a League to Enforce Peace. That plan, he said, "rests ultimately upon force," which could only be maintained by the great nations of the world combining their military strength.

Fears Draft Army for League.

"Naturally, the first question that a man would ask would be, 'How are you going to raise your armies to sustain this vast military program of the league based upon force?'" Senator Borah said. "Would the citizens of the United States volunteer to enter the army for the purpose of settling difficulties in the Balkans, for instance? Would the American boys leave their homes on the farms or in the factories for the purpose of taking part in the adjustment of a controversy between Japan and Russia over Manchuria? In other words, we would have conscription in time of peace."

Opposing the appropriation of $800,000,000 asked by Secretary Daniels for the enlarged naval program, Senator Borah said:

"Where is the enemy? Germany is conquered and her navy is at the disposal of the Allies. Russia is broken and dismembered and bleeding, and those ships that we are now to build will have rotted upon the high seas before she will be able to exercise any force upon the ocean.

"Certainly the relations of England and France are such that we can scarcely urge the necessity of a navy in order to deal with these great powers. Japan is a great and powerful nation, but the relations of Japan to this country have not been so friendly in fifteen years as at present; and, naturally, one is bewildered and somewhat staggered at this particular juncture, with every enemy we have conquered and practically under our control, at being called upon to appropriate $800,000,000 for the purpose of building a vast fighting machine."

Wants Our Army Withdrawn.

Senator France of Maryland offered a resolution today seeking to put the Senate on record as favoring the speedy conclusion of peace terms at the Paris Conference and stipulating that the agreement upon peace should supersede any other matters to be considered, including the League of Nations. It called for the withdrawal of American troops from Europe at once.

Mr. Maryland Senator sought to lay down, in his resolution, some of the problems to be considered by a future conference of nations, to be called by President Wilson. Among these, he said, were:

"The congestion of population of some nations; the underpopulation of other nations; unregulated competition between the more populous and industrial countries for the raw products and trade of the less populous ones; co-operation of the more advanced nations for the improvement of the conditions of backward countries, particularly those of Africa and a part of Asia."

Shafroth Upholds Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—In the debate in the Senate today on the proposal for a League of Nations, Senator Shafroth of Colorado, Democrat, urged the immediate formation of such a league, and criticised those who have advocated postponement of consideration of this question by the peace conferees.

Senator Shafroth particularly attacked the resolution of Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, now before the Foreign Relations Committee, which proposes that action on this subject be deferred.

"President Wilson is now in Europe," he said, "endeavoring to negotiate a peace treaty that not only will settle the disputes as to the nations in this war, but will at least have a tendency to prevent wars in the future. As we have said so many times that we are fighting for a permanent peace among the nations of the world, that this is a war to end all war, it seems to be inconsistent with our own declarations when we advise that he make no treaty with respect to the world peace.

"Now is the psychological moment to produce such an agreement, and if there is any one in the United States who could produce such a happy result it is the President, who, as the demonstrations in Europe show, is held not only in the highest regard, but in the greatest affection by the peoples of the Entente powers. To impose our advice on him when we are not familiar with the situation, it seems to me, is a proceeding which would greatly weaken his influence in the negotiation of the treaty."

Retention of American troops in Russia was advocated by Senator Thomas, who said that this was necessary to protect the military stores and to aid the Czechoslovak forces.

Y. M. C. A. MEN HELD IN $38,940 THEFTS

Three Face Court-Martial in Paris for Misappropriation of Institution's Funds.

PARIS, Jan. 14.—It became known today that three Young Men's Christian Association workers are under arrest in Paris charged with defalcation of funds of the association.

The men are George Schoeffel, former Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Rochester, N. Y.; the Rev. R. Atkins of Eagle Pass, Texas, and a man named Mansfield, who is said to have been a former Secretary of the Sailors' Union of New York City.

The total amount alleged to have been misappropriated approximates $38,940, most of which has been recovered. In connection with the alleged defalcation E. C. Carter, Secretary of the American Expeditionary Force of the Y. M. C. A., made the following statement today:

"During the six months ending Oct. 1, the Y. M. C. A. canteen business approximated $16,000,000. The American Expeditionary Force remittance business aggregated $14,900,000 for the year 1918. The American Y. M. C. A. in France has found in the course of its investigations up to the present misappropriations to the amount of $8,940.

"Along with the excellent record of seventy-eight workers cited by the United States and French military authorities, thirty workers have been killed or died in the service. Out of a total staff of more than 6,000 workers to date three have been charged with defalcation.

"Reported irregularities at Toul led the legal department of the Y. M. C. A. to make an investigation, with the result that when one man was arrested he made a confession and admitted having in his possession Y. M. C. A. money, part of which was in a trunk he had stored in Paris. Some of this money had been invested in French bonds and some had been secreted personally.

"Another worker at Brest confessed taking small sums regularly. The third and most flagrant case was that of a worker accused of appropriating 87,000 francs. It is charged that he secreted and placed various packages sums which were disposited with the American Express Company.

"Fortunately the greater part of all the money stolen has been recovered. The Y. M. C. A. has asked the army to prosecute these cases to the limit and to impose the full penalty on any workers proving recreant to the trust of the American people."

The military courtmartial will begin during the present week.

THREATEN TO SHOOT 30 SWISS HOSTAGES

Soviet Demands Release by Feb. 1 of 30 Bolsheviki Held in Switzerland.

GENEVA, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—The Bolshevist Government in Petrograd has telegraphed an ultimatum to the Swiss Federal authorities, saying that unless thirty Bolsheviki, who were arrested and imprisoned in the Fortress of Savantan, in the Canton of Valais, are released before Feb. 1, thirty Swiss citizens in Petrograd will be shot without trial. There is great indignation here over the situation.

The Bolshevist movement seems to be spreading in the Rhine towns and in north Switzerland, where Mme. Balonova, a Russian who recently was expelled, has returned secretly with several million rubles for the carrying out of Bolshevist propaganda. The police are searching for her.

Vienna expelled a large band of Russian Bolsheviki on Sunday, following that example of the French and Swiss authorities. Twenty of those sent out of the city were spreading propaganda while being engaged ostensibly as Red Cross workers. A number of Austrian officers and men from Galicia, who are said to have been imbued with Bolshevist ideas have been arrested.

FILM DRAMA DISAPPEARS.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A mysterious theft has occurred in London of the negative and copies of an American film version of Stevenson's "Treasure Island," which had been sent here for disposal. The British dealers found the price asked too high; so it was decided to send the films back to America. They were packed in two galvanized iron boxes and taken in a van to the transport company. While the driver was temporarily absent from the van, the boxes disappeared.

DUBLIN MAYOR PROSECUTES

Charges Libel in Statement About Sending Petition to Wilson.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—In an action of the Lord Mayor of Dublin against the Irish Times for alleged libel, the statement of claim refers to a passage from an article in that journal on June 26, 1918, in these words:

"We are told today that the Lord Mayor made an attempt to smuggle the Mansion House conference petition through to President Wilson. His performance was grossly irregular."

The Lord Mayor asserts that these words imputed that as Chief Magistrate of Dublin he demeaned himself and his office by commission of a gross irregularity. The hearing was fixed for Jan. 23.

REDFIELD ON TRADE FOE TO BOLSHEVISM

Says World Commerce Must Be in Spirit of Service to Afflicted Nations.

PRAISES WORK OF FRANCE

Secretary Addresses Dinner Gathering Here on America's Task in Restoring Commerce.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield told the members of the Foreign Trade Council at dinner at the Hotel Astor last night that the United States, facing the possible necessity of turning from a war on autocracy to a war on the anarchy of Bolshevism, must plan its foreign trade in a spirit of service to the afflicted nations of Europe and not in one of selfish exploitation. The council, made up of members of the Secretary's official family and heads of leading business and banking houses, heard Mr. Redfield explain in detail the augmented service his department is prepared to give to the commerce of the nation, which he did to emphasize the need for the threefold appropriation he is asking of Congress this year in order that the expanded need of the reconstruction period may be met.

Many of the department's trade commissioners in foreign countries, and other agents, recently returned, told in detail of the latest trade conditions in the countries they had left. In general, they advocated slow and careful proceeding on the part of American business men, whom they urged not to rush abroad to sell goods before they were amply fortified with information.

Gerhard M. Dahl, Vice President of the Chase National Bank, was applauded heartily when he told the gathering that the greatest of all essentials for American business is co-operation on the part of the Government, a sympathetic attitude on the part of the public, and a willingness on the part of business itself to become a large importer of foreign securities.

"As far and fast as we may, we must set our commerce free from all restrictions and look toward a great and growing domestic and foreign trade," Mr. Redfield said in his address. "The viewpoint of the Department of Commerce toward this matter is shown in the fact that at its request it is to receive, in a pending bill, double the funds for commercial work it has ever had. This is not all it asks, but it will help. Business men, whether public or private, must, however, consider actual facts in planning both the time and the extent of their trade efforts.

"There are those who seem to think that the commerce of the United States has two distinct parts which have little in common. They speak of foreign commerce and of domestic commerce as separate and even at times as almost antagonistic.

Peace to Spur American Energy.

"One cannot in truth promote foreign commerce without thereby aiding domestic commerce. Nations do not, indeed cannot, live unto themselves alone, any more than men can and do. The man, or the nation, that is self-centred fails of his high calling. We may not in foreign trade any more than in domestic policy be keepers merely of ourselves. Experience and economics as well as ethics answer affirmatively the question, 'Are nations their brothers' keepers?'

"It was characteristic of American energy that the President announced the close of active military operations through the signing of the armistice, many in our land jumped to the conclusion that the war was over and that all that was necessary was to take up the tools, go ahead and readjust quickly, 'get busy,' get results.

"A program of readjustment was suggested, and we were to push ahead with business as usual. These ardent spirits—whose energy is not to be abused, for it is that which has created America and won the war—forgot, however, certain facts which made their ardor unpractical. In the sense of military operations, the war was over; in the sense of war problems, war limitations, war difficulties, war responsibilities, it was not over, is not over yet.

"Consider well the problem of credits. We are the greatest unexhausted reservoir of finance, but if we are at one and the same time to finance a great revival of trade at home and a large part of the necessary reconstruction abroad, may there not be a question whether this tool of trade will be overstrained to do all the work required of it? The apostles of hurry should remember that conditions seem to be such that we who would trade must also furnish the means to pay the bills, and this not for ourselves alone but for others as well. This is a new problem, a war problem, a novel responsibility but very real. Our brethren overseas are doing their best to care for themselves.

Pays Warm Tribute to France.

"We cannot but admire the fine spirit of self-help in which France takes up her terrible problem. She plans—and we respect her the more for it, if that were possible—to do all she can for herself and out of her own resources to make good her losses so far as she is able. This is what every self-respecting man or nation would do, and we have in our own land admired our citizens when, in time of calamity, they have tried to the utmost to work out their own salvation. So may we not wisely think of our old friend, the French Republic, as a friend who knows our heart is hers, and the work of our hands and the contents of our purses are at her disposal, to be given and taken in brotherly kindness, but in no sense to be forced upon her?

"We must remember also that the possible problems of force are not wholly gone. Germany seems in chaos; Russia we know is so. Who will say today what is the future of Bolshevism? Voices are raised indeed to say we have nothing to do with Russia, and perhaps it is not wrong to infer that they would argue we have nothing to do with the internal forces of what is going to be the new Germany.

"We have been fighting, however, the battle of freedom against autocracy; are we supposed, therefore, to have no concern in the battle of freedom against possible anarchy? Is it meant that we can withdraw like the turtle within his shell or like the ostrich bury our heads in the sand? Can we, dare we, permit a flood of anarchy, if it will be such, to sweep over Central as well as Eastern Europe, to threaten the peoples who have fought by our side, and if this is done, then certainly later to threaten us? I do not speak as an alarmist, not as fearful, but merely as addressing men whose thought, being sober and sane, will in that thought consider the possibilities of living facts.

BRITISH OFFICER SLAIN.

Major Miles C. Seaton Shot and Lieut. Col. Rutherford Accused.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Major Miles Charles Seton of Melbourne was killed last night at the residence of his cousin, Malcolm Cotter Seton, Secretary of the Judicial and Public Department of the Indian Office. The tragedy caused a sensation which was increased today when Lieut. Col. Norman Cecil Rutherford was arrested charged with the murder.

Colonel Rutherford, according to the police, was seen to enter the Seton house. The police were sent for a few minutes later and when they arrived there they found Major Seton dead with three bullet wounds in his body. The reasons for the shooting have not been disclosed.

Major Miles Charles Seton was born in 1874 and served in South Africa in 1901-2, and formerly was a Captain in the Cape Medical Corps. In the male line he was the representative of the Setons of Carlston. He was made a Companion of the Bath in 1915. He was a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons, a graduate of the University of Edinburgh, and honorary anaesthetist of Alfred Hospital, Melbourne.

RIOTERS IN PERU ROUTED BY TROOPS

Mob of Strikers Makes an Unsuccessful Attack on Arsenal at Lima.

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 14, (Associated Press.)—A mob of strikers attacked the arsenal here today, but was driven off by the troops. There were also many small encounters between strikers and troops throughout the city. The strikers made an unsuccessful attempt to burn the Callao Railway station.

Hotel employes today joined the strike and virtually all the hotels and restaurants are closed. The food problem threatens to become serious.

Communication with Morococha, where the copper miners walked out yesterday when a general strike was proclaimed throughout the republic, has been interrupted.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 14.—The Chamber of Deputies today by a vote of 62 to 5 declared martial law throughout the entire republic for thirty days. The bill is expected to pass the Senate tomorrow and to receive the signature of the President.

The measure will become effective immediately. Crowds outside the newspaper offices cheered the posting of the bulletin.

Disturbances continued all day yesterday despite the fact that 800 of the Bolshevist ringleaders were under arrest. Shots were fired from roofs and windows, and policemen and soldiers and street cars were fired upon. Street car service was abandoned at nightfall.

The situation on the railways seems to be getting worse, the strike spreading from Government-owned routes to private lines. The employes of the latter roads are refusing to work except under armed protection. The limited express train over the Central Argentine to Rosario was derailed at Campana. It is alleged that the wreck was caused by strikers. Army officers who were passengers on another fast train on this road took charge when the crew quit work.

The harbor is still paralyzed, many ships merely calling here and going on to other ports.

At Rosario, the situation is said to be more serious, and the 5th Cavalry has been sent there. The gravity of the situation there is increased by the lack of police and soldiers.

An indication of what may be done with the Bolsheviists under arrest was gained from General Dellepaine's headquarters today. It is said that he was overheard to say that "the Bolshevists can organize their Soviet at Estuaia," which is a prison on an island at the extreme southern end of the Continent. It is shut off completely from the rest of the world.

MONTEVIDEO, Jan. 13.—The Uruguayan Government has discharged all foreigners from the army as a preventive measure against the Maximilist movement. The police announce that the entire forty-two members of the "Centre of Culture," which has been directing the Soviet movement, have been arrested.

800 Slain, Washington Hears.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Approximately 800 persons have been killed and 5,000 injured in the strike disorders in Buenos Aires, according to advices received today at the State Department. Of the wounded, 1,500 received treatment in hospitals.

In making this announcement, Assistant Secretary of State Phillips said the Socialists, with whom the majority of the labor organizations implicated in the strike are associated, refused to be further identified with the strike orders. The anarchistic nature of the uprising, Mr. Phillips said, was shown by attacks on churches and convents. Sacred images were thrown into the streets, and one priest was killed in a convent from which nuns and children were driven.

F. M. Quintana, Argentine Charge d'Affaires, today received a cablegram from his Government dated yesterday, denying that a dictatorship had been established in Argentina by General Dellepaine.

"The report of General Dellepaine's dictatorship is absolutely untrue," said the message. "Dellepaine's appointment as General Commander of all the forces in town only refers to the riots. Every public institution has been safeguarded, and tonight the prospects are better than they have been."

FAVOR ROOSEVELT PENSION.

Senate Passes Resolution for Payment of $5,000 Yearly to Widow.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The Senate today passed a resolution authorizing the payment of a pension of $5,000 a year and the extending of mail franking privileges to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt. It now goes to the House.

RHINE ARMY BORED BY LIFE OF INACTION

Mild Weather, with Much Rain and Little Excitement, in the Last Month.

FORCE IN CITIES NOT LARGE

Most of Our Men In Small Towns or Villages—Prince of Wales at Officers' Dance.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Jan. 14.—It has been a quiet month for the soldiers of the Third American Army since they reached the Rhine. As a matter of fact, it is deadly dull for them. Guarding Coblenz bridgeheads brings very little excitement, and for our boys the beauties of the Rhine are good for about one afternoon's entertainment. In truth, all the boys are doing is waiting—waiting to go home.

It is not such a bad wait at that. Every man has a bed to sleep in, and if some one could get trains running right would have plenty to eat. The weather is not cold, although very rainy. The doughboy spends twenty-five hours weekly in drilling and studying things military. He has other duties, which take up some more of his time. But for the most part he has not overmuch to do.

We are watching over some million Germans, scattered over 5,000 square miles. We have two cities, Treves and Coblenz, but they are not thickly populated by Americans, most of our men being in small towns and villages. We have men who speak German, and many others who are picking it up fast—easier, I believe, than they did French.

Military Police on Watch.

I would like to take this opportunity to correct a report going around in Paris to the effect that our men are fraternizing "shamefully" with Germans. International politics and so on mean very, very little to our soldiers, and having defeated the Germans they would probably make friends with those they left simply because Americans make friends with every one. But set it down in your mind that the doughboy is not left to himself. The most apparent part of American occupation is the M. P., which is short for Military Police. One of these hopeful lads decorates every corner and cross roads equipped with a full set of rules and regulations.

One of these rules says that fraternizing will be discouraged, and it has been. An American soldier cannot hold a conversation in public or, if he is caught, in private with Germans. That includes all Germans except little children. Wherefore, the doughboy does very little fraternizing. If he talks to a German girl he takes a chance.

I am not going to discuss how many chances a day are taken by 300,000 young Americans in Germany. But I do want to set it down that there is no widespread fraternization and friendship-making between Americans and Germans along the Rhine, and if the American doughboy does get in a word sidewise with some fräulein he is doing no more than his friends the tommies and poilus do, the only difference being that he probably has an easier time about it.

Use German Officers' Club.

The doughboy has his Y. M. C. A. reading and writing rooms and Knights of Columbus clubs, which are mostly concentrated in the larger towns, and then he has his own devices. Officers have their clubs in Treves and Coblenz and in larger towns in which they find entertainment which is partly limited because of rules against drinks after 7 o'clock. But they have frequent dances attended by Red Cross nurses and Y. M. C. A. workers. Occasionally girls come down from the British zone to the north.

The Officers' Club in Coblenz is in the old German Officers' Casino, where some "Red" soldiers made a raid on Nov. 12. Here there seem to be five or six ornate rooms on the ground floor, and on the second floor there is a dancing saloon that is hideous in its decorations. An army band of some hundred pieces plays for the semi-weekly dances.

The other night the Prince of Wales came to see us and attended a dance, and there I saw something that was truly typical of the American Army. Somehow or other he went to dancing with the prettiest girl there was, whereupon an American Second Lieutenant cut his own dance and took the girl. In what other army dances would the lowest grade of officer take a girl from the heir to the British throne?

All through the dance the Prince had to trust to luck on girls. He is not a good dancer, but he made quite a hit among the Americans because of his democratic behavior. While he is generally known as a retiring lad he is not bashful, as this incident will show. He was again dancing with the prettiest girl when Major Bozeman Bulger, head of the press section, cut a dance and took his girl.

Prince of Wales's Retort.

The Prince got her back next dance, when Bulger cut in again. Again the Prince regained the girl, and the Major tried again and got the girl. Just then the music stopped.

"Serves you right, Sir," said the Prince.

Major Gen. Dickman regularly attends these dances, while Major Gen. Hines of the Third Corps is known as a most enthusiastic dancer. He never misses one.

As for food—privates have their messes in regular army style. It is forbidden, but food comes from the Germans so far about as usual. Officers have their messes where they can best locate them. Generally they have an army cook, and sometimes some German delicacy, such as the plentiful Rhine pike, finds its way to their tables.

There are numerous good restaurants in Coblenz, which, however, are not largely patronized by Americans because of lack of white bread and coffee. The famous Rhine wine is scarce and very dear. Wine which before the war cost 5 marks now costs 25. However, these prices obtained before Americans came, and in general there has been no boosting of prices by Germans.

Officers Must Exercise.

On the whole, the Third Army is not busy. Staff officers in particular find little to do, and General Dickman has just issued an order prescribing an hour each day of exercise for them. We have our quota of aviators around, but because of the weather they do less flying than other things.

I give these few notes to preface the conclusion that life along the Rhine comes very near to palling on the Americans, and now that the novelty of the situation has worn off I look for a rapid increase in an already fervent desire to shake the dust of Europe off American shoes along the Rhine.

ALLIES TO TAKE OVER THE TRANSSIBERIAN

Joint Committee Headed by a Russian Also to Control Chinese Eastern Road.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Action almost equivalent to a recognition by the allied powers of the all-Russian Government at Omsk is disclosed in an announcement made late this afternoon by the State Department to the effect that an understanding has been reached in Tokio for joint allied control of the Chinese Eastern and Trans-Siberian Railroads.

Complete details regarding the understanding have not reached Washington, and will not be obtainable until the Japanese Ambassador here submits the text of the proposed plan. However, from an official announcement issued by Acting Secretary Polk, the plan contemplates that an Interallied Committee will undertake the restoration of the efficiency of the Trans-Asia rail routes, which are in especially bad condition east of Lake Baikal, and the creation of two boards on technical and military matters to serve under the Interallied Committee, on which there will be representatives from seven nations.

The plan contemplates the appointment of John F. Stevens of New York as a member of the Technical Board. Mr. Stevens has been serving as Chairman of the Stevens Railway Commission of five members, all of whom, except Mr. Stevens, returned to this country some time ago, which was sent to Russia in 1917 when the famous mission headed by Elihu Root was dispatched to Russia. Mr. Stevens, who was formerly Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal, remained in Siberia, where he has been serving in a supervisory capacity over the members of the Russian Railway Service Corps, composed of American engineers and railway men sent to Siberia to help rehabilitate the Russian railway system.

Here is the official announcement:

"The State Department has been advised that an understanding has been reached in Tokio regarding the proposed restoration of the efficiency of the Trans-Siberian Railway, including the Chinese Eastern Railway, and that the proposed plan will be submitted to this Government through the Japanese Ambassador in Washington.

"In brief, the proposal is that there shall be an Interallied committee under the Presidency of a Russian, this committee to consist of one representative of each of the following nationalities: Russia, China, Japan, United States, Great Britain, France, and Italy. Under this committee there will be established two boards—first, a technical board, on which Mr. Stevens will serve, and, second, a military board."

ANSWERS GOOD'S ATTACK.

War Trade Board Explains About United States Russian Bureau.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The War Trade Board authorized a brief statement today regarding its organized activities in Russia, which had served as a basis for the speech which Representative James W. Good of Iowa made in the House yesterday questioning the legality of the formation by that board of the United States Russian Bureau. Mr. Good assailed the President for having made available $5,000,000 out of his $100,000,000 emergency fund for use by the Trade Board's Russian Bureau. The War Trade Board statement follows:

"Shortly before the signing of the armistice, conditions in Russia were so deplorable that the War Trade Board organized the War Trade Board of the United States, Russian Bureau, Incorporated, as a means through which the Russian people might be aided in helping themselves. The bureau was given a capital stock of $5,000,000, owned entirely by the United States Government, and the intent was that it would act as an intermediary through which the Russian people could find an outlet for their supplies in exchange for shoes, clothing, and other necessities of which they were desperately in need.

"The entire situation was changed by the signing of the armistice, and while some few shipments which the bureau had already been able to arrange went forward, it has remained in existence as an entity simply for the purpose of acting in an advisory capacity for private and governmental bodies to whom the information at its disposal may be of value.

"The Russian Bureau was not organized for profit, and, as previously announced, was not designed to interfere with any of the activities which private trade would feel justified in undertaking."

FORD TO RETURN PROFITS.

Nation Owes Him $10,000,000 for Building "Eagle" Boats.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Rear Admirals Taylor, Griffin, and Earle, heading, respectively, the navy's Bureaus of Construction, Engineering, and Ordnance, gave the Senate Naval Committee detailed information today concerning the Ford Eagle patrol boats and contracts for their construction. Admiral Taylor, explaining that Henry Ford himself proposed in 1917 to build the boats as the best way of meeting the submarine menace and that a contract for 112 Eagles was made on the "cost plus" plan at the tentative price of $275,000 each, said the little craft had conformed to the characteristics proposed and that a boat of their general type was needed by the navy, both in peace and war times. He said they were useful for convoying, patrolling, and training work.

Senator Lodge, who introduced the resolution for the committee's inquiry, brought out that the Ford Company had no experience in shipbuilding and required $8,500,000 of Government money to provide the Eagle plant. Admiral Taylor said the Government was about $10,000,000 behind on its payments to the Ford Company, which probably was the only concern having such contracts that put up its own money for expenses.

Chairman Swanson said he was authorized to announce that Henry Ford would return to the Government his share of the profits on the Eagle boats, or 58 per cent. The Senator said Mr. Ford had contemplated making the contract at cost, but had found that legally impossible.

BUSINESS MEN SHOW INCOME TAX FLAW

Discrimination Against Partnerships Pointed Out to Revenue Conferees.

PROGRESS MADE WITH BILL

Rates on Luxuries, Semi-Luxuries, Amusement Admissions, and Club Dues Agreed To.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—One of the inequalities in the pending $6,000,000,000 War Revenue bill, now under consideration in conference between representatives of the Senate and House, was pointed out today by prominent business men from New York, Chicago, and other cities in an informal conference with Chairman Simmons of the Senate Finance Committee, Chairman Kitchin, and Representative Fordney of the Ways and Means Committee, all three of whom are members of the Conference Committee.

These three members of the Conference Committee were seemingly deeply impressed with the particular inequality that was brought to their attenton by the members of the Business Men's Delegaton, and which, it was argued, if not corrected, would result in discrimination against partnerships as against corporations in the operation of the income tax section. The delegation was headed by F. B. DeBerard, Director of Research of the Merchant's Association of New York, and included representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce and such concerns as R. H. Macy & Co., M. D. Borden & Son, A. D. Juilliard & Co., Amory Brown & Co., Clift Goodrich & Co. and Passavant & Co., all of New York City; Carson, Pirie Scott & Co. of Chicago, Strawbridge, Clothier & Co. of Philadelphia, and several other firms.

The delegation contended that the bill was so framed as not only to work an injustice to partnerships in the section under consideration, but also that it was so drawn as not to carry out the expressed intent of both of the committees which had charge of the original drafting of the bill, which was that it would put corporations and partnerships on a parity of taxation.

What the Bill Provides.

Under the bill as it has stood the corporations are subject to the payment of an excess profits tax and the payment of a war profits tax and then, if they have not paid dividends, they would be subject to an income tax of 12 per cent. on the amount of their profits undistributed and left in the business. But in the case of partnerships the profits would be divided among the partners and each partner would be subject, first to a normal income tax and then to a surtax increasing in proportion to the extent of the profits divided.

The delegation said it had been discovered that, in the case of a very large partnership, the amount of the surtax would exceed the aggregate of the taxes imposed upon corporations in cases where corporations and partnerships were of like size and similar conditions, so that the intent of the committee in such cases would not be carried out in the plan of the bill as drafted and under consideration in conference.

The fact was developed that one of the large partnerships represented in today's informal conference would, unless the bill were modified so as to remove this inequality, have to pay a difference as a partnership amounting to $175,000 in excess of what it would pay if it were a corporation of like size and equal number of partners.

As a result the delegation suggested an amendment providing that in such cases of discrimination a partnership might elect, subject to suitable regulations to be framed by the Treasury Department, to be taxed under the provisions applying to corporations.

Senator Simmons and Representatives Kitchin and Fordney called in the committee experts, Professor Adams and Mr. McCoy, and the delegation went over the matter with them. Senator Simmons admitted the justice of the contention that was presented by the members of the business men's delegation.

What will be done about it remains to be seen, but the delegation went away with the impression that Senator Simmons and Chairman Kitchin had been very much impressed with the points presented. The only question after the conference appeared to be the application of the form of the remedy proposed and the effect it might have on other parts of the schedule considered.

Agreement on practically all the excise taxes in the War Revenue bill was reached today by the joint conferees, the House members in each instance accepting the Senate modifications. Besides this, the conferees disposed of the admissions and dues taxes.

The agreement on the excise taxes embraced all of the rates with the exception of those on motor trucks and accessories, and some other items, not revealed by the conferees, about which there is still some dispute. The conferees will finish today with the excise taxes.

Items Accepted by Conferees.

Under the agreement today the Senate manufacturers' sales tax upon automobiles of 5 per cent. of the price of sale is retained. Other items accepted by the conferees, all based upon the sales price, are:

Pianos, organs (other than pipe), graphophones, music-boxes, records, piano players, &c., 5 per cent.

Tennis rackets, nets, toboggans, canoe paddles, baseball bats, football helmets, golf clubs and bags, la crosse sticks, billiard and pool tables, chess and checker boards, and similar articles, 10 per cent.

Chewing gum, 3 per cent.

Liveries and livery boots and hats, 10 per cent.

Yachts and motor boats not used exclusively for trade, fishing or national defense and pleasure canoes if sold for more than $15, 10 per cent.

Toilet soaps and toilet soap powders, 3 per cent.

The Senate tax on moving picture films of 5 per cent. upon the aggregate rentals earned from each lease or license was accepted.

The Senate semi-luxury taxes were also adopted, as follows:

Picture frames in excess of $10 each.

Trunks in excess of $50 each.

Valises, traveling bags, suit cases, hat boxes used by travelers, and fitted toilet cases on the amount in excess of $25 each.

Purses, pocketbooks, shopping and handbags on the amount in excess of $7.50 each.

Portable lighting fixtures, including lamps of all kinds, and lamp shades, in excess of $25 each.

Men's, women's, misses' and boys' pajamas, nightgowns, and underwear, on the amount in excess of $5 each.

Kimonos, petticoats, and waists, on the amount in excess of $15 each.

In the admissions and dues taxes, the conferees agreed to all the House rates except the tax upon admissions of 30 cents and under, the latter being intended to cover moving-picture shows. In the latter tax, the conferees adopted the Senate amendment, which fixed a levy of 1 cent for each 10 cents, or fraction of it, up to 30 cents. The House tax was 2 cents on each 10 cents of admission. As the tax now stands, a general rate of 20 per cent. is fixed on all the theatre and other tickets of admission. This is double the existing rate and double that fixed by the Senate.

Upon tickets bought of scalpers or agents, the House tax of 5 per cent. if 50 cents in excess of the box office price and of 30 per cent. if more than 50 cents in advance of that price, was agreed upon. On tickets sold at the theatres above the box a tax of 50 per cent. is imposed. Holders of boxes at opera or theatre must pay a 25 per cent. tax upon the price of their tickets. A 2 per cent. tax is exacted for cabaret and similar performances, the tax to apply to the bill, whether it includes admission or not.

On club dues a tax of 20 per cent. is levied upon dues in excess of $10, all other dues being exempt. The Senate had reduced this tax by half.

GRAND DUCHESS QUITS THRONE OF LUXEMBURG

Population Divided Between Sister's Succession and Establishment of a Republic.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Luxemburg, dated Saturday, says that the Grand Duchess of Luxemburg, in a proclamation dated Saturday, abdicated, and that the population, numbering about 200,000, was gravely divided as to whether one of her sisters should succeed to the throne or a republic be established.

LUDENDORFF BUSY WRITING.

Framing His Defense at Place of Refuge in Sweden.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 13.—It is no longer denied that General Ludendorff is living at Hesleholm, Sweden. The owner of an estate there, Olssen, has been interviewed, and, according to the Berlingske Tidende, said that Ludendorff was busy writing his defense from early morning until late at night. Olssen said that those who held Ludendorff mainly responsible for the war forgot that he was only one of many officers of the General Staff when the war broke out, his influence dating from August, 1916. It was wrong, he also said, to assert that Ludendorff opposed peace by ungivanding, and he was never an advocate of annexations.

This, it is believed, covers the points of view in Ludendorff's work of defense.

EX-KAISER NOW BEARDED.

Change in His Appearance Due to Desire to Protect Affected Ear.

AMERONGEN, Jan. 11, (Associated Press.)—William Hohenzollern, the former German Emperor, is growing a beard to protect his ear which was recently operated upon.

The former Emperor's facial appearance, therefore, is undergoing a radical change. His beard is iron gray in color, and, while it is still quite short, it makes him look considerably older.

The ex-ruler shows improvement in health and is able to continue his walks in the garden of the chateau where he is living, but the affected ear is badly influenced by the climate here. While strolling he wears a great fur cloak.

HEED ROOSEVELT'S REQUEST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Theodore Roosevelt several days before his death requested the American Red Cross to donate $6,900 of its share of the Nobel peace prize money received from him to the French village near which his son Quentin is buried.

In making this announcement today, the Red Cross said Colonel Roosevelt did not designate the form of the gift and that the wishes of the population of the village are now being consulted by the Red Cross Commission to France.

BEATEN REBELS LOOT IN BERLIN

Herr Meyer was formerly an editor of Vorwärts, but later became a Spartacide leader. Eichhorn fled from the Silesian railway station many hours before his followers abandoned it, and cannot be found. His house has been searched and quantities of documents there have been seized.

Dr. Liebknecht's whereabouts is also unknown. Radek is variously reported to be in different German cities, and is also said to have returned to Moscow. Rosa Luxemburg is believed to be still in Hamburg.

All the regular daily newspapers appeared this morning. With the exception of Die Freiheit, they contained jubilant articles on the restoration of at least a semblance of order.

Die Freiheit, although markedly less violent than in some of its recent utterances, declares that the forces of reaction have won the victory. It is the only newspaper to publish a speech by Hugo Haase, the Independent Socialist leader, delivered at a mass meeting, in which he continued his appeals to the Independents to cripple the present Cabinet.

Way Cleared for Elections.

Jan. 12.—The Ebert Government was confident tonight of its physical ability to defend the elections to the National Assembly next Sunday (Jan. 19) against violence from Spartacides and Independent Socialist sources.

The insurrection generally, it appeared tonight, had beeneffectually put down chiefly because the new troops called in by the Government had taken matters in hand and were determined to give the followers of Liebknecht no quarter. The next few days, it is expected, will witness the inauguration of further drastic military measures calculated to stamp out the Bolshevist contagion.

One of these measures covers the illegal possession of arms and ammunition, and it is proposed to make this offense punishable with immediate death. The military men now co-operating with the Government propose to show the insurgents no mercy, and they amply demonstrated this policy during the recapture of the Vorwärts building and Police Headquarters.

It is stated by eyewitnesses that the new Government troops in both actions Saturday beat down with bayonets and clubs and otherwise killed scores of men who were Spartacide guards or civilians caught with arms. Hundreds of persons have been arrested and are facing severe penalties.

The last ripples of the tidal wave which has swept over Berlin the last seven days are being felt in the spread of robbery and looting, which is being carried on by soldiers and sailors who detached themselves from Spartacide units. The section of Berlin radiating from Police Headquarters has been terrorized in the last forty-eight hours by armed men who have pilfered food shops, cigar stores, and public buildings.

Three sailors walked into a postal substation yesterday and carried off 120,000 marks.

Gunmen and criminals from all parts of Germany hurried to Berlin in the first days of the revolution, according to reports, and enlisted in the Spartacide forces at the police station, which served as a base for private undertakings when the men were not engaged in obeying the orders of the Spartacide leaders.

During the period of vandalism all criminal records, official documents, and rogues' galleries at Police Headquarters were destroyed. Berlin at one time ranked as one of the best policed cities in the world. Tonight it is virtually defenseless against lawlessness.

Today the promenaders deserted Unter den Linden and crowded into the newspaper area, where the publishers were busy getting their badly disheveled plants in order for Monday's issues. The material loss and disorder caused by the rebels was especially heavy in the plants of the Vorwärts and the Tageblatt. Even the business offices were invaded. Records and accounts were strewn about and bulky ledgers were jammed into windows, to serve as barricades for riflemen.

The military discipline of the Spartacides is said to have been irreproachable as long as they were permitted to rob and plunder at will. That they had a rather easy time is amply proved by the stores of foodstuffs, cigars, and clothing found in premises recaptured from them by the Government forces.

Spandau, which has been placed under martial law, is quiet. Fifty-five Bolsheviki have been arrested there, and one of their leaders has been killed and several have been wounded.

Spartacide leaders at Hamburg have been arrested by military police, who had difficulty in protecting them from enraged citizens. The situation there, however, is still tense.

Leaders of the revolution at Dresden, when arrested, admitted that they had intended to prevent by force elections to the National Assembly.

A newspaper at Wilhelmshaven has been surrendered by the Spartacides. The Executive Committe of the Soldiers and Workmen's Council at Alle has resigned as a protest against the Bolsheviki and has ordered the election of a new Council.

Spartacides Control Bremen.

BREMEN, Jan. 13, (Associated Press.)—Spartacide forces temporarily are in control of the Government of Bremen after an insurrection. The Spartacides were defeated in a local election by the Majority Socialists and successfully carried out a coup to prevent the latter from taking office.

All bourgeoise newspapers are under a Spartacide censorship, and a communistic republic has been proclaimed.

At Cuxhaven the Ultra-Radicals have overthrown the communistic republic and threaten the immediate socialisation of all industries and banks.

REPORT LIEBKNECHT WOUNDED

Another Rumor Is That He Has Fled to Leipsic.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Dr. Karl Liebknecht was wounded severely in the fighting in Berlin, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam. The report gives no details.

A Copenhagen dispatch says that Dr. Liebknecht is reported to have fled from Berlin to Leipsic. Chief of Police Eichhorn, according to the Vorwärts of Berlin, has fled to Denmark, using a passport obtained from the Danish Legation some days ago.

It was reported last week that Dr. Liebknecht had been killed, but later reports from Berlin direct showed this to be untrue.

MODERATES WIN ELECTIONS.

Extremists Badly Beaten in Wuerttemberg and Bavaria.

STUTTGART, Jan. 13, (Associated Press.)—In the elections to the Württemberg Diet, the Majority Socialists have won fifty-two seats to thirty-eight for the German Democratic Party, thirty-one for the Clericals, twenty-five for the Conservative Bloc, and four for the Independent Socialists.

The Independent Socialists polled less than one-tenth as many votes as the Majority Socialists.

MUNICH, Jan. 13, (Associated Press.)—The election today for members of the Bavarian Constituent Assembly was carried off in an orderly manner. All political parties took part.

One of the features of the election was the heavy representation of women voters, especially those belonging to the religious orders, who marched to the voting booths in groups.

The returns at midnight indicated that the Majority Socialists would have 50 per cent. of the membership of the Assembly, the Clericals and Conservatives 32 per cent., the German Democrats 14 per cent., and the remaining 4 per cent. scattered among various factions. The Independent Socialists were beaten decisively.

WILL ARM BERLINERS.

Troops Thus Freed Will Be Sent to the Polish Front.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A German wireless dispatch received here says that all civilians will be armed to defend Berlin.

Gustav Noske, in charge of the Government's defensive measures, delivered a speech in front of the Foreign Office Sunday, thanking the troops for what they had accomplished. He said that troops had been collected for threatened troubles in the east, but they had been employed in Berlin instead. It was impossible to restore order at the frontiers, he said, while in the capital might was going before right.

Noske added that as soon as Berlin was normal the troops would be sent to their original destination, but a sufficient number would be retained to safeguard the elections for the Assembly. He concluded by saying that the German Government had not forgotten for an instant its duty to its brethren in the east and had done everything to protect them in the future securely and lastingly against "Polish despotism."

SAYS BERNSTORFF PAID A NEWSPAPER

Ex-Employe of Pueblo (Col.) Chieftain Tells Senators of $20,000 Agreement.

ORDER TO OPPOSE WILSON

Support of Hughes in 1916 Also Instigated by the Germans, Witness Declares.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—That the diplomatic representatives of Germany and Austria-Hungary in the first two years of the war sought to control the editorial policies of prominent Western daily newspapers was asserted today before the Senate Committee on Propaganda by Austin J. Smith, former Circulation and Advertising Manager of The Pueblo Chieftain and Grand Junction News, both of Colorado.

Mr. Smith swore that he personally negotiated the contract which passed the editorial control of The Chieftain, which he described as then a leading Republican paper of the Rocky Mountain country, to Count Bernstorff at a conference with Bernstorff in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York, Oct. 13, 1915.

The testimony also showed that Bernstorff and other German representatives had taken an active part in the Presidential campaign of 1916 and that the orders were to fight President Wilson and Colonel Roosevelt, but to support Mr. Hughes.

Dr. Kurt Ziegler, who was the German Consul General for the Rocky Mountain States, was Bernstorff's personal agent in the carrying out of orders affecting the editorial policies of the Colorado newspapers, Mr. Smith testified. It was Dr. Ziegler, he said, who transmitted the order from the embassy in Washington to attack President Wilson.

Reported to State Department.

Mr. Smith said that once he became suspicious that what was being done was not exactly pro-American and he had the matter reported to the State Department, but that the department (the United States was not at war at the time) did not see fit to take official cognizance of the matter then.

The witness began his narrative by stating that in 1915 and 1916 he was the advertising and circulation manager of The Pueblo Chieftain and Grand Junction News, with offices in Denver. In 1915, he said, Colonel I. N. Stevens was the publisher of The Chieftain and in 1916 Colonel Stevens leased the paper to Alva A. Swain, who was also the editor of The Grand Junction News. After leasing The Chieftain, Mr. Swain edited the paper, the witness added.

In the Spring of 1915 Smith was instructed by Swain and Stevens to start a campaign to obtain subscriptions, he said, and to employ as many solicitors as he desired and card index every German and German-American in that part of the country, a heading was made with the Germans and German-Americans in Denver, and later he was advised to obtain from Godfrey Schirmer, President of the German-American Trust Company of Denver, a list of all the prominent Germans in Colorado who would be interested in chipping in to a fund whereby The Chieftain would be circulated all over the State.

According to the witness, he discussed the matter with Schirmer and several prominent German-Americans, who told him the matter would be presented to the German Consul, Dr. Kurt Zeigler.

"Mr. Swain and I went to Dr. Zeigler's office, where the matter was chatted over," Smith said, "and Dr. Zeigler then accompanied us to the office of the Austro-Hungarian Consul, where we were introduced to Mr. von Fischer, the Vice Consul, who informed us that he would be only too glad to assist us. In the presence of Dr. Zeigler and Mr. von Fischer, Mr. Swain suggested that he desired the proposition to be handled by me.

"The matter of submitting the circulation proposition to the Ambassadors at Washington was put off until the beginning part of the Summer of 1915, as Mr. Swain remarked that it was too risky a proposition to handle at that time, but Dr. Zeigler kept on insisting that no one would be the wiser, that he would furnish the list and arrange everything in such a manner that it would never be detected. But Mr. Swain was satisfied with the results that were coming in on the circulation, and the deal with the Ambassador was submitted in October."

The witness told how booths were erected at parks in the environs of Denver for the distribution of The Chieftain. On one occasion The Chieftain thus circulated contained a special article by the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, he declared.

"About the latter part of September, 1915," Mr. Smith continued, "Mr. Stevens and Mr. Swain told me that personal solicitation must be dropped, and that I must get prominent Germans of Denver together and tell them that Mr. Stevens desired all of them to make up a $5,000 fund. After conferring with hte Germans I reported back that they were all in favor of Zeigler's circulation proposition.

"On or about Oct. 4, 1915," the witness continued, "Dr. Zeigler and Mr. von Fischer handed me letters in German to Ambassador Bernstorff, Ambassador Dumba, and Zweidneck, and the German Consul at Chicago. On or about Oct. 6, 1915, I left for the East, and called on the Chicago Consul, who was out of the city, and the same day wired Mr. Swain, who wired me at a later date to make the best deal possible and sign nothing. I arrived in New York about Oct. 9 and went to the Knickerbocker Hotel."

At the suggestion of Dr. Eidler, Bernstorff's secretary, Mr. Smith went to Lenox, where he saw Baron Zweidneck, who decided that he wished to have The Chieftain carry a column of news printed in Italian type, and desired to have the price submitted to von Fischer as soon as possible. Returning to New York, the witness was summoned by Dr. Eidler, who introduced him to Bernstorff.

Von Bernstorff's Orders.

"The Ambassador, after going over my letter from Dr. Zeigler, informed me that he was very glad to meet the representative of a paper friendly to the cause, and that he would be very glad to render whatever assistance possible, as he felt very kindly toward The Chieftain," the witness continued. "He seemed to be pretty well informed on Dr. Zeigler's plans regarding The Chieftain, and after going over a map on his table, informed me that he would like to have The Chieftain scattered over the States of Colorado, New Mexico, and Utah to start with, but that the paper must be sent to the most prominent men in those States, and that I must see that the names were carefully selected so as the most remote hamlet would be covered, and that at all times I should follow Dr. Zeigler's directions, as it was very important that the matter be handled so as not to create suspicion as to who was paying for the circulation, and that no receipts should be given by either side for the money given or received, as it would cause considerable embarrassment to the paper and to Dr. Zeigler.

"He informed me that he would talk the Austro-Hungarian deal over with the Baron, and that he would advise me regarding that end, through Zeigler, in Denver. He agreed to give us $20,000, to be payable in monthly installments, and after that year, to renew same, with the proviso that we follow all suggestions that Dr. Zeigler would make, so as to help the people of the four States to obtain Germany's side of the war.

"After the conference I returned to Denver and reported to my superiors, who were very well pleased with what was accomplished, and on Nov. 22, 1915, I was advised by Mr. Swain to see Zeigler about some cash, and Zeigler informed me that it was due almost any day now, but that I could wire the Ambassador or Dr. Eidler if I desired."

Smith wired Bernstorff, but before he got a reply to that message another telegram arrived from the Ambassador, which directed him to see Dr. Zeigler. The latter, according to the witness, gave him a draft for the first payment of $1,080, which, at Zeigler's request, he cashed at the German-American Trust Company, after Mr. Schirmer had endorsed it. Smith said he gave the money to Mr. Stevens and Mr. Swain, who informed him that they were very well satisfied.

"At a time in the next month or so," the witness stated, "Zeigler bitterly complained about a photograph which appeared on the front page of The Chieftain regarding the enlistments at Toronto, and Mr. Swain immediately phoned Pueblo asking for an explanation as to why such a thing appeared in The Chieftain, and the answer by mail was turned over to Dr. Zeigler, who forwarded same to the Ambassador at Washington, and the matter was smoothed out. At the moment I was very busy with Mr. von Fischer regarding the Austrian deal, which was dragging along very slowly, and Baron Zweidneck informed von Fischer that the matter would soon be ready.

"In April, 1916, the Ambassador advised me that Zeigler was going to give me some instructions regarding an editorial that he desired to have printed regarding Colonel Roosevelt, and that he wanted extra copies sent out. Zeigler gave me the general idea of what he wanted published, and I turned same over to Mr. Swain, and the editorial appeared later as to why Colonel Roosevelt should not be nominated at the Chicago Republican Convention. The Consul and the Ambassador conveyed their personal thanks on the editorial, and Zeigler mailed out several hundred copies from his own office around the Eastern part of the United States.

"It was generally understood at the time that Zeigler was not playing the game on the square, and during the Summer of 1916 spent considerable time around his office, and was present when the letter came from the Ambassador regarding the Wilson deal."

It was a result of the letter regarding the opposition to President Wilson which led him, Smith said, to communicate the facts in the case to the State Department, and in furtherance with this plan he sent Mr. M. Strauss of The Denver Express to Washington with the data. The State Department, he added, did not see fit at that time to make an investigation. The Germans, he said, got wind of his efforts to communicate with the State Department and became suspicious, and after that the matter was handled in person with the Ambassador by Colonel Stevens and Mr. Swain. Mr. Swain informed him, he said, that a payment of $12,000 was made subsequently to Mr. Swain by Bernstorff.

"What was the attitude of The Chieftain toward the Republican Party?" Smith was asked.

"It was for Hughes in general, but they did not like Colonel Roosevelt," the witness answered.

At an executive session today, the committee voted to leave the Bolo Pasha affidavits, which were offered by Deputy Attorney General Becker, in the record. This means that Senator Reed's cross-examination of Becker will also stay on the record. The hearing will be resumed at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PUEBLO, Colo., Jan. 14.—Walter L. Wilder, editor and manager of The Pueblo Chieftain, made a statement today in which he said:

"I have been manager and editor of The Chieftain since Dec. 1, 1914. During that entire period there has never been one dollar paid to The Chieftain from any source conditioned upon any matter of editorial policy."

DENVER, Col., Jan. 14.—Godfrey Schirmer, President of the American Bank and Trust Company, formerly the German-American Trust Company, said today that he recalled that Alfred J. Smith had applied to him for a list of names to be used in obtaining subscriptions for The Pueblo Chieftain. Mr. Schirmer said positively that he never had conferred with any one regarding German propaganda, nor had he ever supplied the list of names.

Alva A. Swain made a flat denial of Smith's charges.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.—J. N. Stevens tonight characterised as "absolutely and unqualifiedly false" the statement by Alfred J. Smith that Stevens had given him instructions to start a campaign to obtain subscriptions from German-Americans.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Russian detachments, after the recent successes of the American and Allied troops south of Archangel, are marching in the direction of the Bolsheviki base at Vologda, according to a telegram from Archangel. Meanwhile the anti-Bolshevist forces which recently captured Perm are advancing on Viatka, east of Vologda. The capture of Vologda by the Archangel forces would enable them to join hands with the Omsk forces west of Perm.

OUR TROOPS IN RUSSIA IN FIRST-CLASS SHAPE

Col. Stewart, Commanding in Archangel, Reports Result of Personal Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14. — Colonel George E. Stewart, commanding the American troops in the Archangel sector of Russia, in a message received at the War Department today under date of Jan. 11, reported that he had made a personal tour of the wide front over which the Americans are scattered and found the general health, discipline, and morale of the men excellent, and their clothing and equipment ample.

Total deaths from all causes among the force, which numbers about 8,000, were given as six officers and 121 enlisted men.

Billeting and living conditions, Colonel Stewart said, were good except at advanced outposts, where the usual field conditions existed and improvised block houses were the only shelter. In order to prevent undue hardship, the troops occupying the front line were rotated frequently, being relieved by units from the more comfortable quarters in the rear.

"Clothing and equipment ample and excellent," said the report. "Rations good, except for lack of fresh vegetables. Generally, men have rapidly become accustomed to lack of comforts and conveniences and existing primitive conditions of life and duties and have performed most valiant service.

"The command is scattered with allied troops over a front of 400 miles at distances from Archangel varying from 100 to 300 miles, with small detachments at various places in line of communication. It is exceptional to have more than one company of Americans serving intact at any one place. Temperature November and December, 10 below zero to 10 above Fahrenheit, and on occasions 22 below

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

One of the best things for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than some expensive soaps or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

PLEADS FOR NEW DEBARKATION PORT

PLAN A NATIONAL WELCOME

South Dakota, through a resolution adopted by its Legislature, has appealed to Congress to direct that our returning soldiers, sailors, and marines be landed at a port other than New York, because of the appointment by Mayor Hylan of William Randolph Hearst as Chairman of a subcommittee of welcome. The resolution, as published in The Sioux Falls Press of Sioux Falls, S. D., on Jan. 11, is as follows:

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of South Dakota, the Senate concurring:

Whereas, It is most appropriate that our sailors, soldiers, and marines returning from foreign service shall upon their landing on American soil be greeted by a committee of American citizens and shown that high appreciation which is their due; and

Whereas, The Fifth Avenue Association of the City of New York, co-operating with the Governors of the respective States, was preparing for such a greeting through committees appointed by the Governors of the respective States and the Governor of this great State had appointed a committee to act in that behalf; and

Whereas, The Mayor of the City of New York forbade further activities in that city and at the Port of New York on the part of such committees and appointed as the Chairman of a like committee to represent himself and the City of New York, a man whose peculiar type of patriotic American citizenship is repugnant to our people and our sailors, soldiers, and marines, who are thereby deprived of the privilege of receiving a greeting at the hands of American citizens whose patriotism is on a high moral plane and above reproach; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Legislature of the State of South Dakota does hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States that immediate and appropriate action be taken by that body to land our American sailors, soldiers and marines at an American port other than the Port of the City of New York, to the end that our brave boys may be protected from the insulting humiliation of being received by a committee the patriotism of the Chairman of which was under suspicion.

A country-wide movement for the appointment of a national committee of welcome to greet the returning men in the service at the Port of New York has originated in Montana. Governor Samuel V. Stewart of that State has designated the Rocky Mountain Club of New York as its representative to welcome Montana soldiers. In his telegram to the club the Governor said he felt that it had done so much for the soldiers and sailors during the war that he felt he could place the welcoming of the native sons of Montana in no better hands. He added that an appropriation for the purpose would probably be made.

On learning of Governor Stewart's action, residents of the other Western States who are members of the club immediately telegraphed the Governors of their States urging them to take similar action. Beverly D. Harris, Vice President of the National City Bank, a native of Texas, has addressed the following telegram to Governor W. P. Hobby of Texas:

I heartily indorse the spirit of the undertaking and plans suggested for meeting and greeting our returning Texas heroes with all honors and hospitality and appreciation of their distinguished services. It is generous, patriotic, and splendid of the Rocky Mountain Club to do this service, and I know of no other instrumentality so available and at the same time so well qualified to do it in the best possible way.

The personnel of the club includes scores of the biggest and most representative men in New York, and in its membership and objects it is more intimately connected with Western and Southwestern people than any of our other leading clubs. May I not urge that the State of Texas promptly follow the lead of Montana in responding to the club's very appropriate and timely suggestion?

Ex-State Senator George Turner of Washington said last night that he would be glad to co-operate, and that as soon as he recovered from his illness would take the matter in mind. William H. Crocker has telegraphed Governor Stephens urging that the action of Montana be followed by California.

"I am in hearty accord with this movement," said Mr. Crocker. "I consider it of the utmost importance that we recognize the valor of our soldiers in this way, and give them every sort of an enthusiastic welcome on their return home."

John Hays Hammond, when notified over the long distance telephone to Washington that the Rocky Mountain Club had been designated to greet the boys from Montana, said "As President of the club, I am deeply gratified at the honor that has been conferred on it. The boys of the West, thousands of miles from home, should receive the welcome to which they are entitled when they first touch the soil for which they fought and bled. I am glad that Montana is making this a matter for State appropriation and I am sure that every State in the West will follow its lead."

William B. Thompson, Vice President of the club, said he was glad to see his native State set an example which he hoped would be followed by the other Western States. "There is nothing too good for our boys who offered their all for their country," he added.

W. W. Seymour, ex-Mayor of Tacoma, Wash., said: "I should like to see the State of Washington represented by the Rocky Mountain Club, which is the best organization to take care of our boys. It is a big job for them to undertake, but I have thorough confidence in them, and I have wired Governor Lister to make the designation and recommend a State appropriation." Senator J. Falconer of Washington, William Nichols of Spokane, and G. N. Skinner, who was designated by Governor Lister to confer with the Rocky Mountain Club, have all wired the Governor urging him to make the club Washington's representative in New York.

The Woman's Republican Club, at its meeting yesterday following luncheon at the Republican Club, decided to join the Independent Citizens' Committee to welcome the returning soldiers, sailors, and marines.

MAKE FINAL PLANS TO WELCOME TROOPS

Hundreds Join Independent Movement as Aldermen Debate Hearst.

Final plans for the Welcome Home mass meeting to be held Friday night in Madison Square Garden under the auspices of the Citizens' Committee of Welcome were made yesterday at a meeting of the organization's Committee on Execution, Membership, and Arrangements, held at 415 Madison Avenue. Among those who attended were Charles Stewart Davison, Richard M. Hurd, Rabbi Joseph Silverman, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, Mrs. William Jay, Mrs. John Blair, Miss Robinson Smith, the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, R. W. Kelley, and William Williams.

After the meeting this statement was issued to the public:

We sincerely hope that all patriotic societies and private individuals will show their appreciation of the work done by the returning soldiers, sailors, and marines by attending the mass meeting of welcome next Friday evening. We are reserving over 2,000 of the best seats for men in uniform, who are invited to come and bring their friends, and applications by soldiers and sailors may be made directly to 44 East Twenty-third Street for these reserved seats. On the night of the meeting all men in uniform will be admitted.

All citizens interested in helping the work of the committee are earnestly requested to send contributions to B. L. Allen, Assistant Treasurer, 60 Broadway. The Motor Corps Girls of America have consented to act on the Reception Committee. Patriotic selections will be played by the 71st Regiment Band.

At a special meeting of the Council of the Society of Pennsylvania Women in New York, held at the home of the President, Mrs. Joshua Hatfield, 45 East Sixty-second Street, a resolution was adopted unanimously calling on Mayor Hylan to "recall" the appointment of W. R. Hearst as Chairman of the Mayor's Committee to Welcome the Home-Coming Soldiers and Sailors, and to appoint some one else in his place.

Many Join Citizens' Committee.

Hundreds of letters expressing approval of the Citizens' Committee reached headquarters yesterday. Among them was one from Lieut. Col. Latham R. Reed, who was second in command of the 165th Infantry, the old 69th, when it went overseas, and who was on the staff of General Pershing for a long time. There were others from members of the local Draft Boards.

Some of the expressions were as follows:

Winthrop L. Lewis, Chairman Local Board, Division 102, New York.—I shall be glad to serve in the Independent Committee. I sent the following letter on Jan. 2 to the Mayor: "I have received your letter of Dec. 28 inviting me to serve on the Mayor's Committee to Welcome Homecoming Troops. Ordinarily I would regard it as a great honor to serve on such a committee, but owing to the fact that William R. Hearst has also been invited to serve, I am compelled to decline your invitation."

Lathan R. Reed, 115 Broadway.—In accepting the offer to serve on the Citizens' Committee of Welcome, it gives me great pleasure to tell you that your attitude regarding William Randolph Hearst and his membership on the Mayor's Committee of Welcome must meet with the approval of every officer and man who has served his country during the emergency just passed. No soldier who has offered his life in defense of his country cares to be welcomed home by any man who has shown himself to be opposed to the best interests of the United States and of the Allies.

Hayford I. White, Professor, Union Theological Seminary—I am one of those who accepted membership on the Mayor's Committee without understanding Mr. Hearst's relation to the committee. When I did understand, I resigned from the committee. I am glad to learn of the organization of the Citizens' Committee, and shall be most happy to have some part on its work to show my appreciation of the services which our returning soldiers and sailors have so splendidly earned.

Stanley M. Isaacs, 52 William Street—I shall be glad to serve upon your committee to receive the returning soldiers. As Chairman of the Local Board, Division 194, until last, when my duties took me to Washington, I know the fine spirit with which the men from this city entered the service. They should, of course, be received in the same spirit. Nobody could resent more than the soldiers themselves the presence on any committee of welcome of a man like Mr. Hearst, whose attitude during the entire war has been such as to repel any self-respecting citizen. His presence on the so-called official committee has made your committee a necessity.

Dr. Robert Abbe, 13 West Fiftieth Street—As I was among the first of Hylan's 'Sounds' Club, I will be glad to enroll among those who will help give our returning soldiers a hearty, warm, patriotic welcome.

Robert P. Seymour, 23 Thomas Street—I feel honored in having my name on the Citizens' Committee of Welcome.

Louis J. Ladin, Major, M. C., U. S. A.—I am in entire sympathy with the movement of the Citizens' Committee of Welcome.

Contemporary Club—We are glad to have the name of our club added to the list of societies connected with the Independent Citizens' Committee.

Others who have joined the Citizens' Committee are: L. M. Barrell, Miss Margaret L. Sheaman, Miss Caroline Porter Robinson, Frances de Manny, Maurice Singer, J. Walter Wood, Miss Louise Allyn, Paul C. Boot, J. Howes Burton, William G. Greenberger, Philip Wharton Dickenson, George F. Crane, Alfred A. Crane, Alfred A. Hamilton, Captain A. L. Boyce, Duncan Candler, Estelle M. Burrows, L. M. Berg, Ralph J. Gertle, Miss Esther A. Rolph, Miss L. McGay, Miss Gladys Wardlaw, Mrs. Norris Wilkins, Miss Mary Middleton, Miss Mary Widdie, Mrs. W. R. Chapman, Mrs. Dennison Freeman, Alexander Law, George Fowler, Miss Ada E. Ebberts, Dr. Jeremiah W. Jenks, and Robert H. Gay.

Squiers Denounces "Whitewashing."

At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen yesterday, Alderman William T. Collins offered a resolution, which was referred to the Committee on General Welfare,—objection being raised by Alderman Arnon L. Squiers of Brooklyn,—calling upon the Board of Aldermen to "pledge the Mayor of our city, and the official committee appointed by him, our unswerving support in becomingly celebrating the return of our boys from the front."

In his objection to immediate consideration of the resolution, Mr. Squiers denounced it as "an attempt to do some whitewashing."

The resolution recited the victory of American forces and called on "all good citizens, irrespective of personal prejudice or political bias," to join in an enthusiastic official welcome, in a manner befitting America's chief city.

In conclusion, the resolution said:

We sincerely deplore any situation that would give rise to an imputation that there is any division among the good people of our city in the strength of their patriotic fervor, or that political or other prejudice, or narrow-mindedness or frenzy of party politics, would cause an organized, persistent, and studied effort, in an attack upon an individual member of the committee to the extent of embarrassing the official representatives of our city and interfering with a wholesouled and united welcome to our brave boys, and tend to the degrading of the nobility of our spirit of patriotism in this, America's hour of victory; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Board of Aldermen pledge to the Mayor of our city, and to the official committee appointed by him, our unswerving support in becomingly celebrating the return of our boys from the front.

Much debate on Alderman Squiers's objection resulted before the Collins resolution was finally referred to the committee.

AGREEMENT ON MILK IS EXPECTED TODAY

Another Meeting of Commission to be Held, When Terms May Be Reached.

Following a long session of the Governor's Milk Commission yesterday afternoon, Chairman Robert E. Dowling announced that he had a "feeling" that the producers and distributers, represented on the commission by two members each, would be able to reach an agreement at another meeting to be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Chairman Dowling, in whose office at 165 Broadway, the meeting was held, said that producers and distributers seem much more willing than they have been to get down to the real questions of the situation. The meeting was taken up with a discussion of prices for January, February, and March and also with the question of surplus milk, which grows greater each month from January to July.

Milk receipts yesterday amounted to 1,425,017 quarts, which, while 24,475 quarts under Monday's receipts, make it one of the biggest days since the strike began. Health Commissioner Copeland, who announced the amount of yesterday's receipts, said the shortage was not causing any suffering and that sufficient milk was available for children and others who may be in need of it. The present supply is coming from thirteen different States, he said.

Tabulation of reports on milk destined for New York received by the Milk Conference Board last night showed the largest amount and the largest percentage increase of any day since the strike started, it was announced. "Allowing for the fact that all milk is not reported to the Milk Conference Board," it was stated, "it is estimated that the city's supply today will be at least 80 per cent. of normal requirements, if not in excess of that amount."

The conference yesterday was attended by R. D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League; Charles A. Wieland and Isaac A. Van Bomel of the New York Milk Conference Board, and Chairman Dowling. John D. Miller of the Dairymen's League, the other member, was not present.

"I had expected to close the meetings today," said Mr. Dowling, "and make my report to Governor Smith. The members said, however, that they thought, if they were given the opportunity for a further conference with members of their organization, that there would be a possibility of arriving at an agreement. They will bring to me tomorrow additional information in the line of prices for the next three months, together with suggestions for taking care of the surplus milk, which seems to be the bone of contention.

"I will not stand for a price of $4.01 for milk for January, if it means that the price to the consumer will be increased to 17 or 17½ cents a quart. The prices so far suggested for February and March are $3.54 and $3.23, respectively, which would probably mean 16 cents to the consumer in February and 15½ cents in March.

FIGHT WILSON FOOD BILL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Hearings on the bill appropriating $100,000,000 for famine relief in Europe and the Near East, enactment of which has been urged by President Wilson as the only means of preventing the westward spread of Bolshevism, will begin tomorrow before the Senate Appropriations Committee, sitting in executive session.

the Committee on Judiciary, has not as yet attended the session of the Legislature. Speaker Sweet said he expected to get into communication with Mr. Martin soon.

It is predicted at the Capitol that the amendment will go through the Assembly and be blocked in the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 14.—If all the rest of the country is to be "dry" and if the Legislatures of the necessary three-fourths of the States, or more, want prohibition Connecticut is not likely to attempt opposition. This in short is the feeling among the members of the new Legislature which organized last week and will meet for its first business session on Thursday. Knowing their actual strength, the prohibitionist leaders are sure to attempt to rush action on the ratification resolution, but it is not believed the necessary concurrent action will be taken for two or three weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 14.—Indiana was added to the list of States for the "dry" amendment to the Constitution when the House today by 87 to 11 voted in the affirmative. The Senate took the same action yesterday afternoon by a vote of 41 to 6. In both branches the rules were suspended in order to ratify the amendment at once.

"Dry" forces in the lobbies rejoiced over the prompt action. Former Governor J. Frank Hanley congratulated the Legislature on its action.

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 14.—The Colorado Senate today for the fifth time voted favorably on the question of ratifying the National Prohibition Amendment. The upper branch of the Legislature passed the House resolution on second reading. The third and final reading is scheduled for tomorrow. The Senate previously had passed through three readings a ratification resolution which was not concurrent with the one passed by the House.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 14.—The Alabama Legislature Tuesday afternoon ratified the national prohibition amendment to the Constitution of the United States on the first day of Assembly. The vote in the House of the resolution was 64 to 34 and in the Senate it was 22 to 11.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 14.—North Carolina has ratified the Federal prohibition amendment. The House today passed the resolution adopted last Friday by the Senate.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 14.—The Senate and House of the Kansas Legislature today ratified the Federal prohibition amendment.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 14.—By a vote of 32 to 0 the Senate of the Arkansas Legislature today adopted the resolution ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment. The amendment passed the House yesterday.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Jan. 14.—The House of Representatives of the Utah Legislature today ratified the prohibition amendment to the National Constitution. The vote was unanimous. The measure will be acted upon in the Senate tomorrow, it was announced.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 14.—A temporary order restraining Governor William D. Stephens from certifying the California Legislature's ratification of the Federal Prohibition amendment was issued here today. Hearing was set for Jan. 20.

Theodore A. Bell, who is also attorney for the California Grape Growers' Protective League, obtained the writ, basing his arguments in court on the grounds that every act of the California Legislature must be submitted to a referendum and that the Federal Constitutional amendment was not originally proposed by two-thirds of each House of Congress.

Minnesota to Pass It.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 14.—A resolution favoring the ratification of the Federal Prohibition amendment will be offered in the Minnesota Legislature within a few days. It is expected to pass with an easy majority.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 14.—Wisconsin will join the ranks of the States that have passed the Federal Dry amendment either tomorrow or Thursday. The "drys" won their first round of the fight in the Assembly this afternoon when by a vote of 57 to 27 the House passed the Senate resolution for a joint hearing on the measure with both branches sitting as a committee of the whole tomorrow morning. Desperate efforts of the wets to block the resolution failed.

Former Governor Charles Whitman of New York and William Jennings Bryan addressed three dry meetings here this afternoon and tonight. Bryan spoke at the University of Wisconsin this afternoon. Tonight both Bryan and Whitman addressed a banquet given by members of the Legislature, while Mr. Bryan spoke at a public mass meeting.

Mr. Whitman declared that he believed the thirty-six States would have ratified the amendment within two or three days.

Special to The New York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 14.—The "dry" leaders in the House of Representatives today, without the least sign of opposition, carried out their program on the Federal prohibition amendment by having a resolution, providing for its ratification, made a special order of business for 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

This action was taken immediately after a certified copy of the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution was transmitted to he House by Governor Gardner. It reached the House at 12:25 P. M.

A copy of the amendment had been previously sent to the State Senate, where Senator George W. Glick, a Democrat, of Mound City, and Senator Seth M. Young, a Republican, of Hamilton, introduced a joint and concurrent resolution providing for the ratification of the "dry" amendment. Both the Senate and House are overwhelmingly "Dry."

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 14.—Jealousy between the Nebraska House and Senate probably will prevent Nebraska ratifying the "dry" amendment until it is too late. The Senate passed the bill today.

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 14.—The Oregon House of Representatives ratified the "dry" amendment this afternoon with a vote of 53 for and 3 against and 4 absent. The Senate committee reported favorably, and the Senate probably will take action tomorrow.

WAR BOARD TO HEAR BOAT OWNERS' SIDE

Employers, Without Admitting Jurisdiction, Will Controvert Union Statements.

8-HOUR DAY THE B Q DEMAND

Workers Express Willingness to Leave the Matter of Wages to the Board's Judgment.

Twelve boat owners, operating tugs and other craft that were tied up for three days last week by the strike of the 16,000 marine workers, notified the National War Labor Board yesterday at the sub-committee hearing at the City Hall that they would accept the privilege of giving evidence upon the demands of the workers for a basic eight-hour day and an increase in wages, without recognizing the jurisdiction of the board. Counsel for the Marine Affiliation opposed the privilege, which is granted under the rules of the board, and were overruled.

Seven of these boat owners are members of one or more of the associations of operators, and made it plain to the subcommittee of four who are taking the evidence for the War Labor Board that they had not abandoned their stand of refusing to recognize the jurisdiction of the board. Five of the operators are not members of any owners' association, but they, too, have notified the board that they do not admit the jurisdiction.

Frank P. Walsh, the former joint Chairman representing the labor group on the War Labor Board, who is now presenting the evidence for the six marine unions, informed the subcommittee that the unions would attempt, by action in the courts, to force the awards of the board upon all owners who offered evidence. Some of his associates drew his attention to the fact that William H. Taft, the joint Chairman representing the employer group, had already declared in his preliminary announcement outlining the procedure in these hearings that the attitude of the owners would not alter the duty of the board to make an award. It was also pointed out that President Wilson in his cable message to the War Labor Board had expressed desire that all Government agencies involved should unite to give effect to the terms of settlement.

When the sub-committee convenes at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning one boat owner is expected to announce through counsel that he will recognize the jurisdiction of the board and agree to accept any award or decision to be made by the entire War Labor Board at its meeting to be held in Washington next week. According to the tentative program, counsel for this owner is to appear at the meetings of the sub-committee here to oppose introduction of some of the testimony of the unions, and later to argue the case before the board when the report of the committee, with the evidence gathered, is submitted for final decision.

The reason for this proposed action is that the unions and their counsel were able yesterday to introduce their demands and give evidence without question or opposition from the boat owners, who were there merely "as spectators" and could not challenge the testimony. In the opinion of the owners much of the evidence offered by the unions was irrelevant and misleading, and placed upon the boat owners undue blame for the strike.

A long statement of the demands of the unions was made to the sub-committee of the War Labor Board yesterday by Mr. Walsh and William A. Maher, President of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Association. They announced that they were determined to press the demand for the basic eight-hour day, but were willing to leave the question of wages to the board. Their preliminary suggestion upon a wage scale, in comparison to the scale now in effect, follows:

	Present Monthly Wages	Wage's Asked
Captain, first class	$160	$225.00
Captain, second class	150	225.00
Captain, third class	140	225.00
Engineer, first class	140	225.00
Engineer, second class	130	200.00
Engineer, third class	120	175.00
Cooks	70	145.00
Deckhands	70	145.00
Firemen	70	145.00
Licensed mates	130	162.50
Oilers	105	150.00

In support of the contention that the rise in wages granted by the Board of Arbitration last July was not sufficient to cover the increased cost of living the unions called to the stand Dr. William F. Ogburn, Professor of Sociology in the University of Washington, at Seattle, who has prepared a series of budgets for the War Labor Board upon the cost of living. Under a plan described by him as the "bare subsistence budget" he said that the average family of five persons who could have had the necessaries of life in this city require about $1,500 for the same now require about $1,500 for the same food, lodgings, and clothing, showing that the cost of living had increased about 75 per cent. in the metropolitan district. Under the "minimum comfort budget" he said a family of the same size would require about $1,800 a year. He described in detail how the budgets were made up by gathering statistics from many sources, and asserted he had been aided in the work by several experts on statistics and dietetics from American universities.

Another witness was Benjamin M. Squires, Chairman of the Harbor War Adjustment Board and conciliator for the Department of Labor, who is now appearing at the hearings for the Shipping Board. Testifying as Chairman of the Harbor Board he told of the complaints made to him that previous awards on wages and working conditions had been infringed in many instances.

In beginning his testimony President Maher of the Masters, Mates, and Pilots, read a message from President Wilson, sent in reply to the cabled promise of the workers to remain at work until a decision was made by the War Labor Board. The message was directed to Maher, and said:

"The cable message signed by yourself, Mr. Delahunty, and others, has given me deepest and sincerest gratification. I thank you warmly for your patriotic action."

The boat owners who announced that they would offer evidence before the sub-committee were: Coastwise Steamship Company, Tice Towing Company, Frederick Dalzell & Co., Red Star Towing and Transportation Company, Boyer & Sons Lighterage Company, M. & J. Tracy Towing Company, and G. M. Morell & Co., Inc., all members of boat owners' associations who have not recognized the jurisdiction of the board. Other companies described as "independent" operators were: Internationa' Elevator Company, Upper Hudson Towing Company, Faulton Barge Company, Jersey City Stockyards Company, and Bush Terminal Company.

A preliminary report on the evidence will be made to the National War Labor Board in Washington at 10 o'clock this morning, and the sub-committee will resume hearings in the Board of Estimate Room in City Hall at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. The members of this committee are C. E. Michael and John F. Perkins, representing the employer group on the War Labor Board.

and W. L. Hutcheson and Adam Wilkinson, representing the labor group. All the unions in the marine affiliation, as well as all the Government and city agencies operating boats in this port, were represented at the meeting yesterday.

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen yesterday the Socialist members proposed a resolution demanding an expression of disapproval of the action of Mayor Hylan and Police Commissioner Enright in operating the municipal ferries by policemen during the strike. The resolution was not adopted. An ordinance also was introduced that would prohibit the city from transferring employes to fill the places of those who had gone on strike and would guarantee the right of organization and collective bargaining to city employes. The proposed ordinance was referred to the General Welfare Committee.

CHEER FOR 22,000 SAILORS.

Mrs. Ballington Booth Tells of the Overseas Work of the Y. M. C. A.

Maud Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America, working among the soldiers in France under the direction of the Entertainment Committee of the Y. M. C. A., declared in a letter just received that on the arrival of American sailors at Weymouth, in the English Channel, "no other organization but the Y. M. C. A. was there to receive them, and had not the red triangle of the Y. M. C. A. done its part, the saloon would have had it all its own way."

Mrs. Booth wrote from what was once the house of George III., now the Gloucester Hotel, and from her room, where the King signed the first treaty with the United States after our independence, she could see the Stars and Stripes floating over the battleships Utah, Arizona, and Oklahoma, and later the New York, Florida, Nevada, Texas, and Arkansas.

"Some 22,000 American boys were to have their liberty in the little town of Weymouth," the letter said. "Their visit was unexpected. No organized effort was in evidence for grappling with the exigency. A word passed on to the Y. M. C. A., however, brought the forces of that powerful war-help to the ground. Their representatives immediately secured the biggest building that could be found for a canteen.

"In ten days—the period of the leave—the Y. M. C. A. served 1,020 gallons of cocoa alone, and free of charge, with crackers and other edibles at the same price,' and before condemning the big-minded, big souled work of this society because of some misadventure here and there, an incident like what I have just mentioned should open the eyes of all to perceive that the movement in its operations here is a sort of transplanted world, with its tentacles all over the map of Europe.

"The canteen was the centre of true American life. It was a gay scene each afternoon that greeted the boys as they came in from the pouring rain to find over 1,000 sailors dancing in the palm garden to the music of one of the ships' orchestras.

"The cheery faces, the laughter and fun, and the companionship of American 'Y' girls brought the home feeling to men who had been for months careering along the tempestuous coasts of Northern Scotland and Ireland."

CRUISER BRINGS MEN OF OLD 9TH HOME

Rousing Welcome for First Unit of New York Troops to Get Back.

GREAT CROWD AT PIER GATES

57th Coast Artillery, as It Is Now Known, Is Sent by Train to Camp Merritt.

After being buffeted by northwest gales and big Atlantic rollers, which made her three days late on her voyage from Brest the United States cruiser Huntington arrived yesterday morning at Pier 3, Hoboken, with 44 officers and 1,784 enlisted men on board. There were also 11 naval casuals, who expressed their great satisfaction at being able to walk on something that did not rise up in front of them and roll from side to side in an unpleasant fashion.

All the incoming transports have been warmly welcomed by the Mayor's Committee on the police boat Patrol as they steamed up the harbor from Quarantine, but the Huntington was accorded a special reception, as she was the first vessel to arrive with a unit of New York troops. This consisted of two battalions of the Fifty-seventh Coast Artillery, 37 officers and 1,651 men, which was the entire force of the regiment, with the exception of 16 officers.

The 57th was organized at Sandy Hook a year ago by Colonel Elmer F. Austin of the old 9th Coast Artillery. It was composed of drafted men from Rochester, Regular Army men from Fort Hancock, and New York City men from the old 9th.

The band on the Patrol played "Home, Sweet Home," "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," "Smile, Smile, Smile," and other popular tunes. The women of the Police Reserves and Knights of Columbus, who were on the Patrol, threw packets of cigarettes and chocolates to the New York soldier boys standing on the after decks of the cruiser, and bundles of newspapers were also thrown on board.

Women Broke Through.

There was a big and enthusiastic crowd of men and women in front of the gates on River Street when the 57th marched out, headed by the Embarkation Port Band, to entrain for Camp Merritt. The police reserves were out in force to keep the crowd from taking charge of the sunburned warriors, and they succeeded pretty well except at the River Street crossing. On the further side, where the women rushed past the uniformed guardians and managed to hug their men folks just once before order was restored.

The 57th was trained at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, until May 10, when the regiment was sent to France on the transport Ryndam, and was convoyed by the same cruiser Huntington on which they returned from France. After landing at Brest, they went to Libourne, near Bordeaux, where the regiment received its artillery from the Ordnance Department, consisting of twenty-four 155-millimeter guns, with a range of ten miles, and two machine guns to each of the six batteries for protection against enemy planes. While the 57th was at Libourne the 2d Battalion was transferred to the Railway Artillery, and a battalion of the 51st Coast Artillery took its place.

The 57th was ordered up to the front on a hurry call to take part in the attack on St. Mihiel on Sept. 12, but on account of the delays on the cross-country railroad journey they arrived too late to get into the big action, much to the chagrin of the officers and men. They were sent a few days later to the Argonne-Meuse sector and took up a position near Montzeville, where the guns of the regiment did good work in the great drive which commenced on the night of Sept. 25. After the Hindenburg line was broken on Sept. 29 the 57th moved forward and occupied positions in rotation at Esnes, (Hill 304,) Cuisy, Montfaucon, and Romagne.

The 57th arrived yesterday under the command of Colonel James M. Wheeler of the regular army, and the following New York officers were with him: Major Robert M. Macon, commanding the 2d Battalion; Captain Frank H. Brown, commanding the 3d Battalion; Captain R. E. Dupuy, Regimental Adjutant; Captain Gilbert H. Higgins, Battalion Adjutant; First Lieutenant Prassly H. McCance, Battalion Adjutant; Second Lieutenant E. B. Myrack, Headquarters Company; First Lieutenant Roger B. Garvin, Supply Company; First Lieutenant Alex. W. Peck, Battery A; First Lieutenants Frank J. Roszel and Albert J. Neal, Battery B; Captain William D. Cameron, First Lieutenants Grenville W. Parkin and John L. Hutton, Battery E, and First Lieutenant Thomas L. Cleaver and Second Lieutenant Joseph J. Connell, Battery F.

Lieutenant McCance Cited.

One of the heroes of the regiment was Lieutenant Prassly H. McCance, Personnel Adjutant, who was cited in division and brigade orders for exceptional bravery at Beauport on Nov. 4. A German shell struck the commissary shack and killed or wounded forty men. McCance ran out from his dugout under a terrific fire and tried to get the wounded from under the debris. He found the job too much for his strength and went back for help through the German fire. He then returned to the ruined commissary shack and worked there until every wounded man had been rescued.

Captain Artenas N. Chase, the regimental surgeon, in speaking of the work done by the troops from New York in the battlelines on the western front, said: "American history has no more beautiful page than the fighting of the New York boys in the Argonne Forest. Every foot of that ground is sanctified with America's best blood.

The Huntington also brought back the headquarters of the 30th Coast Artillery Brigade organized in August, 1918, whose officers and men were drawn from troops in France. In October the headquarters moved to the front, to Essey, near Thiaucourt, in the Toul sector, where they took over the command of the heavy artillery of the 4th Corps of the Second Army. The entire counter-battery work and destructive fire was controlled by these headquarters from that time until the armistice was signed. It was commanded by Colonel F. W. Phisterer, C. A. C., six other commissioned officers, and fifty-eight enlisted men.

JEWISH WELFARE WORK.

Board Reports on Care of Soldiers in New York City.

A report of the activities during the last three months of the New York City branch of the Jewish Welfare Board was made public yesterday by Dr. Leon Watters, Chairman of the branch. Dr. Watters's report states that during the last three months 19,000 men in uniform have been served with meals at the Jewish Welfare Board canteen at 89 Park Avenue, and 2,232 men have been given sleeping accommodations there; that the information bureau cared for 750 cases, and the social welfare department for more than 1,000 cases.

At the Seward Park canteen, which was opened a month ago, 8,000 men have been served. And at the Y. M. H. A. canteen at Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue 14,000 men have been served and provided with beds. The Columbia canteen for the S. A. T. C. served 6,000 men.

The questions of re-employment and re-establishment of men in community life are being carefully studied, and form an important phase of the work of the organization. The New York City branch of the Jewish Welfare Board is co-operating with the United States Bureau of employment, and has already succeeded in finding positions for many returning soldiers.

These Suits Put An Extra V In Value, But Leave It Off The Price, $35 To $65

THE fashions show their Knickerbocker up-bringing in every spruce and seemly line. They are the salt of Manhattan-bred propriety, unaccompanied with small-town "pep." The fabrics are upright, downright, outright wool—all sheep-shorn; no cotton boll-sheviki.

The tailoring was done by Stein-Bloch, who is outdone by none, to tell a half-truth, and who outdoes them all, to tell the other half.

They say that everything goes in love, war, chicken croquettes and clothing claims, but I am in cool earnest when I say that these Suits are the biggest basic values for the purchase price that I know, and I am always instituting comparisons.

Do as I do, and you'll do as I say!

UNIONS TO ATTACK COPELAND'S ACTION

Plan Mass Meeting to Oppose Change in Bureau of Industrial Hygiene.

WANT HARRIS TO HEADWORK

Women's Municipal League and Trade Union League Also Enter Protest.

In a circular letter sent yesterday by Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Federated Union, to the unions affiliated with the central body the attention of the 300,000 trade union members was called to the action of Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland in removing the Division of Industrial Hygiene from the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, of which Dr. Louis I. Harris is Chairman. The members were urged to protest to Mayor Hylan and Commissioner Copeland against what was termed "a conspiracy" against organized labor.

The Woman's Municipal League announced yesterday that its forthcoming bulletin will contain a protest against "the narrowing of the scope of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases" and called on all its members and the members of all civic bodies "to join in the efforts to have Dr. Harris a power restored."

Rose Schneiderman, President of the Women's Trade Union League, wrote to Dr. Copeland yesterday, saying that in the past delegations of workers have been assured by Dr. Harris that he was far from being overburdened, and that he was looking forward eagerly to the opportunity for developing the work of industrial hygiene. This was in reply to Commissioner Copeland's assertion that Dr. Harris was overworked, and it was the Commissioner's desire not to place any more responsibilities on his shoulders.

The Socialist group in the Board of Aldermen presented a resolution yesterday calling on Health Commissioner Copeland to appear before the board at its next meeting and explain his action in withdrawing the Division of Industrial Hygiene from the Bureau of Preventable Diseases. Alderman Lee said: "This seems to be another example of the Commissioner's attitude toward expert service in the Health Department. No work that the Health Department does is more important to the working people than is the investigation and prevention of occupational disease. We will fight any move that threatens to let down the barriers which have been raised to protect the health of the city's workers.

The resolution was defeatde, only the Socialists voting for it.

The letter sent by the Central Federated Union to all affiliated unions is, in part, as follows:

"This is the fight of organized labor. Write your most emphatic protest to the Mayor and the Commissioner of Health against the interference of Dr. Harris's work on behalf of the workers. In this connection your attention is called to the mass meeting called by labor to rouse the workers in defense of their rights to health protection, to be held at Washington Irving High School, on Jan. 22 at 8 P. M. Frank P. Walsh will lead the discussion."

AGREE NOT TO FIGHT SMITH NOMINATIONS

Republicans Assured That the Incumbents May Hold Their Jobs Until Feb. 1.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Possibility that confirmation of Governor Smith's recent appointments will be held up by the Senate practically vanished today as a result of an understanding reached by the Governor and the Republican leaders. The Governor agreed to allow the incumbents, all of whom are Republicans, to hold their jobs until Feb. 1, and the Republican leaders in turn agree not to oppose confirmation.

The republican members of the Board of Trustees requested that the Superintendent of Public Buildings, William H. Storrs, be allowed to remain in office until Jan. 15. Governor Smith agreed and Thomas H. McDonough of Troy, the new appointee, will not take office until tomorrow. According to the present plan the Senate Finance Committee will not meet to consider the appointments until Wednesday, Jan. 22. The committee's report will not be made until Jan. 27 and the vote will be a few days later, or when the appointees are ready to take office.

The Senate this afternoon passed, with but two dissenting votes, the Graves resolution urging New York's United States Senators to vote for the Federal suffrage amendment. The measure is aimed particularly at Senator James W. Wadsworth. Opposition to its adoption was expressed by Senator Henry M. Sage of Albany and Senator John Knight of Wyoming, who comes from Senator Wadsworth's district.

The Hydro-Electric Power bill drafted for the cities of the State, and the product of a committee of the New York State Conference of Mayors, was introduced in both houses today.

Mrs. Ida D. Sammis's bill to make the State law conform to Federal statutes for the open season for duck shooting on Long Island will be the first law of 1919, both houses having passed it, and the measure having been signed by the Governor.

The Senate today adjourned in respect to the memory of former Senator McClellan of New York.

Governor Smith issued a proclamation fixing Sunday, Feb. 9, as Roosevelt Memorial Day in the State. He urged that memorial exercises be held by the Legislature and by the people, and organizations throughout the State.

Speaker Sweet and the majority leaders of the Senate and Assembly received a delegation of thirty women who discussed the need of protective legislation for women in industry in New York State. The women included delegates from New York Women's Trade Union League, the New York State Woman's Suffrage Party, and the State Federation of Women's Clubs. The delegation was headed by Miss Mary E. Dreier.

MOONEY CROWD BARS REDS.

Chicago Conference Defeats Bolshevist Attempt at Control.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.—Organized labor defeated today a carefully framed plot to promulgate a national Bolshevist movement, with anarchists, straight Bolsheviki, St. Louis platform Socialists, and I. W. W. men as its sponsors. By a close vote in a near-riotous session the "Ultra-Reds" were barred from sitting in the national "Mooney Defense Conference," in session at the North Side Turn Hall. Only trade unionists had been invited to the conference.

Tomorrow the battle will go on at the further sessions of the conference. The "crimsons," the "cerises," and radicals of various other hues were closeted in secret meetings late tonight. If they are prevented further from participating, their program may evolve into a "rump" conference, whose actions they will attempt to attribute to organized labor.

W. Bourke Cockran, in a speech to the gathering, made a bitter attack on the courts and a dissertation on Bolshevism.

"Bolshevism can't be stayed by food, as the President has said, or by force," he declared, while the radicals howled approval. "I don't know quite what Bolshevism is, but if it is what the word implies, 'a movement of the majority,' then I am not afraid of it. It is always from the masses that improvement comes. The multitude is never wrong."

Cockran took pains to laud President Wilson and his policies, and said that "the same elements which are sneering at Wilson are holding Mooney in jail." It was decided to communicate a summary of his speech to President Wilson at Paris.

An advertisement addressed to men

This advertisement is written for men, but its real message is addressed to women.

The Woman's Home Companion is addressed to women, but its real purpose has been to benefit men.

No man can deny the importance of his home in his life.

Nor the part that woman plays in making that home successful.

Therefore, no man should ignore the Woman's Home Companion, which has become a great business by helping women make homes.

The vastness of its work is proof of its success and of its necessity.

In a single year over a quarter of a million letters are written by Companion editors in reply to definite requests for definite advice.

You should see to it that your home receives the Woman's Home Companion. You should see to it that your home receives the benefit of the service that has made the Woman's Home Companion so necessary to more than a million other homes.

It is just as important to you as it is to your wife. The Companion is a man's paper only in the sense that it improves and enhances what should be each man's most cherished possession, his home.

In February, among other things:

"Gentility is the most worthless possession in the world," says Agnes Repplier in her letter to a girl asking advice about what she should make of her life. "Thousands of women have starved for it, and thousands more have lived cramped, forlorn lives because they worshipped at its shrine."

"The Valley of Vision," a two-part novel by Sarah Comstock (first part in February) is the problem of the girl with modern ideas in a setting of the old-fashioned conservatism.

Roland Phillips will find your boy. If he is in France and you haven't heard from him, tell the Companion and we will try and find out all about him and let you know.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

THE WOMAN IN ROOM 13, a melodrama in a prologue and four acts, by Samuel Shipman and Max Marcin. At the Booth Theatre.

John Bruce	Lowell Sherman
Laura Bruce	Janet Beecher
Maid	Adele Freeman
Bromwell	Willis Claire
Butler	C. C. Quinby
Dick Turner	Kenneth Hill
"Andy" Lewis	Will Deming
Harriet Marsh	Fay Wallace
Paul Ramsey	Charles Waldron
Lottie Hanson	Dorothy Parker
Edna Crane	Gail Kane
Nellie Pierce	Catherine Tower
Joe Wells	Charles Mather
Chief of Police Carrigan	De Witt C. Jennings
Clarke	Joseph Munson
Prosecuting Attorney	Dore Rogers

One of the two authors of "The Woman in Room 13" pulled off a series of Max Marcin tricks in melodrama which bid fair to carry the production to a very considerable success.

It is all about a husband whose wife divorces him for another, and who takes up with the trade of private detective in order to overwhelm her and her second husband with his vengeance. There is no great novelty in the basic idea, except it be that this Count of Monte Christo, this dealer in unknown purple, is the villain, not the hero. But the manner in which he works would in real life bring the story of the resultant crime upon the front page. Yes, with peace raging in Paris those one man, one gun affairs are coming back into their old newspaper prominence; and in the theatre the war melodrama is yielding to the elder type of play which centres in a call for 3100 Spring.

In one scene the detective-villain (Lowell Sherman) is working in the room below Room 13, with a full installment of private wires and dictaphones. His former wife is to dine above, and Mr. Sherman has contrived to have her present husband (Charles Waldron) at hand to hear the words which are spoken above as they are repeated to the stenographer. Mr. Sherman has seldom had an opportunity to appear more polished in villainy, and Mr. Waldron does a bit of emotional acting very unusual in its intensity of suppressed emotion. When he rushes from the room in a rage and a shot is heard above the audience jury acquits him unanimously.

It turns out, of course, that it was not the wife speaking above, but another and less virtuous lady, (Gail Kane,) whose presence is skillfully accounted for. The innocent wife (Janet Beecher) is, however, obliged to assume full responsibility in order to convince the jury of the courtroom that her husband's crime comes under the unwritten law. It is a complicated situation not easily conveyed to an audience. But here again Maxmarcinism triumphed.

On the program the final scene is said to take place in a corridor of the Criminal Courts Building, but by the skilful use of a scrim and shifting lights the audience is shown by flashes what is happening in both corridor and courtroom. In a word, the old material of crosses that indicate where the body fell and stenographic tidbits from witnesses under cross-examination is given a new twist, with results that are once more thrilling, absorbing.

The weakness of the play, from the point of view of the great public, is its absence of comedy relief. To be sure, Will Deming has one of the racy character parts in which he unfailingly scores, this time as a man about town; and he is ably seconded by Fay Wallace, who gives a very amusing sketch of a maidenly highbrow from Phoenix, Ariz., turned loose to improve her mind in the metropolis under his somewhat blasé guidance. But this secondary motive is somehow crowded into chinks and crannies by the rush of front-page incident.

The play was staged by W. H. Gilmore. With the aid of a highly competent cast, he has developed the full value of the materials in hand.

PLAYS $1,000 PRIZE WORK.

Berkshire String Quartet Gives Tadeusz Iarecki's Composition.

The Berkshire String Quartet brought to public hearing in this city at Aeolian Hall last night a quartet in F minor by Tadeusz Iarecki, which won a $1,000 prize offered by Mr. F. S. Coolidge for the Pittsfield Chamber music festival of 1918. This composition had aroused interest and discussion at the time, and its composer proved to be a young New Yorker, born in Lemberg, and then serving with the Polish Legion in France.

Hugo Kortchak and his associate players, Jacques Gordon, Clarence Evans and Emmeran Stoeber, played the new work with enthusiasm last evening. Their program had also a quartet of Haydn, in G minor, for prelude, and in conclusion the A major of Borodin.

SUICIDE IN UNION CLUB.

Otto Zurcher, Retired Financier, Kills Self with Kitchen Knife.

Otto Zurcher, 65 years old, of 33 West Fifty-first Street, a retired financier, committed suicide yesterday morning in the library of the Union Club, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-first Street, by stabbing himself five times in the neck and twice below the heart with a kitchen knife.

Mr. Zurcher was still breathing when Fred Ermer, a waiter, discovered him. The waiter said that Zurcher made motions to him to bring him a pad and a pencil which lay near. When the paper had been given him, Zurcher wrote:

"Let them give me morphine. Let me die. I want to die."

Mr. Zurcher was dead when an ambulance surgeon arrived from Flower Hospital.

At the Union Club, where Mr. Zurcher was a member for thirteen years, he was spoken of as "a man of unusual secretiveness, with few friends and no intimate friends." At the apartment where he had lived for seven years it was said that he never received any callers or used the telephone. He was born in Switzerland, and was formerly heavily interested in African and South American sugar plantations, but the police said he had lost heavily at the beginning of the war. The police said they had learned that at one time he enjoyed an income of more than $50,000 a year.

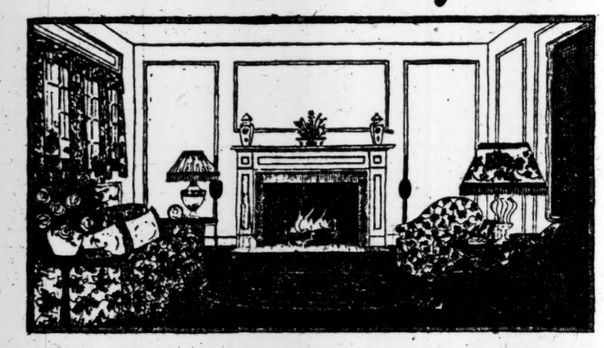
Come In and Sit by the Fire



Restful, ivory-tinted walls—a quaint old chintz at the windows,—an oval hooked rug with plenty of soft colour—comfortable chairs that find the tired spot in your back—and two big, gay-shaded lamps to eke out the late light . . . Draw up to the blaze . . . lean back comfortably . . . take a magazine . . . Here comes tea!

Isn't it the sort of room you'd like to have happen to you, after a tiring, eye-wearying day? Just colour enough for gaiety, just line enough for charm, just space enough for restfulness.

You know all that, when you see it in a picture. But do you know how to make it for yourself? In other words, do you know House & Garden, the magazine of homes that are good to live in, the home-maker's link with the best expert architects, decorators, landscape artists, and practical gardeners in New York?

If you don't, try these next six numbers in planning your house and garden improvements this year.

These 5 Issues of

House & Garden for $1

(six, if you mail the coupon now)

Furniture Number January
(Extra complimentary copy.)
You couldn't guess half the surprising things that House & Garden has for you—an Italian garden that blooms indoors; a bungalow whose partitions fold their tents like the Arab whenever you'd prefer more horizon in your living room; bedrooms with furniture priced to please everyone. There's an article on cottage chairs too, another on painted furniture.

House Fittings February
Hangings on the wall—the screen in decoration—couch-and tables—plasterwork—colonial doors and shutters—such things give life and individuality to the house, and each of them will have two pages devoted to itself. There will be sketches of colonial interiors, too; a new sort of article on Japanese art, a little chat on colour, a page on how to transform impossible lamps—and all sorts of other interesting things.

Spring Gardening Guide March
When March blows the snow off, you'll be so glad to get outdoors again, you'll just take your House & Garden Spring Planting Tables in one hand and your soul in the other and stay in the good sun for days. There's everything in the March number that you'll want to see there, from the best of garden implements, clear through all the stages of successional planting to the management of the most successful garden show you ever had. The inside of the house isn't neglected either.

Exterior Decorating Number April
Haven't you often puzzled over just what fabrics to put with certain types of wall-paper? House & Garden begins a monthly showing of appropriate papers and fabrics together, in this number. Stone fireplaces are considered, too, besides lamps, window shades and tassels, books in the guest room, the troublesome stair landing.

Spring Furnishing Number May
The house yawns in the spring, wakes up, and opens all its windows. You need new paper on the walls, new porch furniture and rugs, new hangings for your bedrooms. House & Garden will give you two pages on each of these, together with articles on the use of heraldry in decoration, fireplace stools, and the furnishing of a man's study.

Garden Furnishing June
A garden is a lonesome thing, God wot—but it isn't finished when you get the border planted. You want a tea table—or maybe you've dreamed of a garden pool with yellow water-lilies, or a white painted bench and a rose trellis, or a wee cool faun to stand in the laurels, or maybe just a new house for the wrens to live in. Everything for the garden is in the June number.

PROHIBITION MARCHES ON.

Both Congress and the Supreme Court have been generous to the prohibitionists. Statutes that use to the uttermost, that have seemed to transcend, the Federal power over interstate commerce, have been made and sustained to uphold and extend prohibition. The power of the State and of the Federal Government is exerted or diminished as the diminution or exertion makes for the enforcement and extension of prohibition. The Wilson act gave the State control over liquor delivered in interstate commerce to the consignee. The Webb-Kenyon act closed interstate commerce to shipments of liquor to be used in violation of the law of the State into which it was to be shipped.

The Supreme Court has just upheld the Reed amendment to the Post Office Appropriation bill, which prohibits the importation or taking of liquor into a State save for scientific, sacramental, medicinal, or mechanical purposes. The so-called Dry laws of some States allow the use of a certain annual ration of liquor and its importation for personal use. West Virginian DAN HILL, henceforth as famous as the hero of the asseveration or mild oath, "What in Sam Hill?" bought a quart of whisky in Kentucky, rode back with it in a trolley car to his own State, and so violated the Reed amendment, which is maintained as overruling the West Virginia statute.

Thus prohibition comes to mean "bone dry," so far as the law goes, in several States that have made some concession to human weakness or habit. At least nothing of hypocrisy can be ascribed henceforth to the States which have Dry laws that are not liquor-tight and bone dry. It is a little curious, however, at least to persons who still believe in State rights, to see Congress foist upon States a more rigorous prohibition than they have provided for themselves.

This strengthening of prohibition by statute is synchronous with the rush of Legislatures to ratify the Federal prohibition amendment. Thirty of the thirty-six States necessary to ratification have ratified. Only six more are needed, and there are seven or eight Dry States yet to vote. Is prohibition to be a "winner"? Then the politicians tumble over one another in their ferocity to be recorded. The case of California seems a little peculiar even in the history of a movement propelled and guided by minorities. Last November the people of California voted against prohibition, which will destroy their great wine industry. The Legislature ratifies the amendment and rejects the decision of the people. Undoubtedly the makers of the Constitution, in providing the manner of its amendment, expected that Legislatures would represent the majority of the people. Under the district system they often do not. What gooseflesh comes over our prohibition directors in this State at the thought of a popular vote upon their amendment!

THE GARMENT TRADE PROTOCOL.

Conditions in the garment trade are disturbed. When conducted without a protocol agreement there is in it neither assured profit for the employer nor comfort for the wage earners. The margin above a living wage in the needle industries is so small that common humanity inspires an appeal to both sides to support the trade agreement which is to the advantage of both, and to put pressure upon the side which shows the strongest tendency toward arbitrary action. It may be that the manufacturers have trouble in maintaining the discipline necessary to efficiency. That is incidental to the nature of their workers, mostly young women and some males with imported ideas about the regulation of capitalist industries. The alternative here is to urge the employers to be considerate and forbearing so far as may be possible, or to counsel the workers to change their natures as well as their ideas.

The employers are not taken by surprise by the demands which their workers make upon humane qualities. If they are not patient, or even indulgent, they have mistaken their fitness for a business which public opinion will not see conducted callously. It is easier for them to change their investment than for the workers to change their nature or to find other employment. On the other hand, the workers should be counseled not to press the employers beyond endurance. There must be shops if there are to be wages, and those responsible for the finding of the wages must be allowed a reasonably free hand in what is called "hiring and firing." If the employers insist upon full liberty of action in this respect they must concede equal freedom of action for their workers to strike. The union is willing to settle this critical point either way—by limitation of the strike and lockout, or by removal of all restrictions on either side.

Where there is something to be said on both sides there is a presumption in favor of the one which shows the better disposition toward accommodation of the disputed points. "There are no dividends in quarrels," according to the pungent saying of Mayor GAYNOR. Both sides have been working under a formula for six years, and either side is entitled to an answer to any proposal under it. The unions have proposed arbitration, and the employers have expressed themselves in a letter to Mr. JACOB SCHIFF. It is no denial of the employers' grievances to say that this does not constitute a meeting of minds with the other party to the protocol, and that the unions should have an answer before the protocol expires. Otherwise, as their President says, a refusal to answer is no different from rejection. A refusal of arbitration is not a passport to public sympathy.

THE LAW'S DELAY.

Too slavish an adherence to the letter of the law, essential justice hampered by a net of technicalities, the escape of guilt by means of petty mistakes of indictment, rules of evidence and procedure used or twisted to confuse judgment and breed delays—these are old complaints against the law and the courts.

Some ten or eleven years ago the American Bar Association drew up this bill to reform court procedure:

On the hearing of any appeal, certiorari, writ of error, or motion for a new trial in any case, civil or criminal, the court shall give judgment after an examination of the entire record before the court, without regard to technical errors or defects or to exceptions which do not affect the substantial rights of the parties.

Nearly half of the States have put this on their statute books. Last Fall the Senate passed it as an amendment to the Federal Judicial Code. It ought to be passed by the House. At a stroke it will wipe out of the Federal courts a fruitful source of the law's delay.

GOVERNOR ALLEN AS A MILITARY CRITIC.

Read in the light of General PERSHING's report of operations in France, the strictures of Governor HENRY J. ALLEN of Kansas upon the equipment of the American Army that drove the enemy out of the Argonne Forest lose much of their force. It was after his inauguration at Topeka on Monday that Governor ALLEN told his fellow-citizens, in an address at the City Auditorium, that the 35th Division, composed of Kansas and Missouri men, had lost half its strength—there were 7,000 casualties—because of lack of transport for the artillery and weakness of the aviation arm. Mr. ALLEN spent ten months in France in the service of the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. He is the owner of the Wichita Beacon, he was a noncombatant, apparently without previous experience in military campaigns.

Governor ALLEN'S neighbors are more interested in the 35th than in the other divisions that took part in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, but if conditions were so bad as he describes them to have been where the men of Kansas and Missouri were fighting the American Army must have advanced under heavy handicaps. Mr. ALLEN declares that there were only about half as many horses as were required to bring up the guns, and that many of the horses used "were "old ones that the French had discarded as of no further use to "them." Moreover, "our army paid "$400 each for these animals, only to "be forced to shoot them a day or "two later because they were too old "and feeble to do the work." The result was that the 35th Division "fought for four days without any artillery support." On the roads "leading up to the battle lines" Mr. ALLEN saw the bodies of many horses that, "had been killed or had died in "harness in the efforts to bring up "the artillery." Concerning our aviators, he says that it was the Germans who had command of the air. It must be understood that the Argonne Forest was a very hard nut to crack. It teemed with the enemy's machine guns in every ravine, on every slope, and the enemy had brought up many fresh divisions. In his report General PERSHING says:

We made steady headway in the almost impenetrable and strongly held Argonne Forest, for, despite this [the German] reinforcement, it was our army that was doing the driving. Our aircraft was increasing in skill and numbers and forcing the issue, and our infantry and artillery were improving rapidly with each experience.

The forcing of the Argonne Forest really began on Sept. 26, and, according to General PERSHING, it was cleared by Oct. 10. Twenty-one American divisions were used in what he calls "the Meuse-Argonne battle." Of the Ordnance Department in France he says that it "has splendidly "fulfilled its functions, both in pro"curement and in forwarding the im"mense quantities of ordnance re"quired." As to the help given by the French Government and Army, they "have always stood ready to furnish "us with supplies, equipment, and "transportation and to aid us in every "way." That is General PERSHING'S statement. And he must disagree with Governor ALLEN when the Governor says that the British soldiers did not like the Americans, who were not able to fraternize with Tommy Atkins as they did with the French. Now, General PERSHING said in his report that "their [the British] troops and ours "when thrown together warmly fraternized." On that point we shall soon hear from New York's 27th Division.

May it not be that the Kansan serving in a noncombatant capacity who is now Governor lacked the military observer's insight and power of analysis, and sometimes, with the best intentions, drew the wrong conclusions from conditions on the battlefield in the rear of advancing troops? And may he not have underestimated the difficulties of forcing the Argonne Forest and even misunderstood the tactics employed?

THE NEXT SPEAKERSHIP.

For reasons only too well known, the election of Mr. JAMES R. MANN of Illinois as Speaker of the next House of Representatives would be injurious to the Republican Party. It is for the advantage of the whole country that the party in opposition be strong, coherent, ably led. For all his parliamentary experience and knowledge, Mr. MANN has not a sound or edifying record on Americanism.

If the Republicans are to "get together" in the Sixty-sixth Congress and in the country; if there is to be a reasonably consonant and united Republican policy instead of loose and irresponsible attempts at legislation and obstruction by wrangling groups; if the party is to attract new voters or win back deserters, it must put its best foot and head forward. It cannot afford to nominate Mr. MANN for the post of Speaker, much greater and more powerful in the general Republican than the Democratic view.

Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts has at least all of Mr. MANN's ability. He has served longer in the House. He is a leading and respected figure in it. But New England, as the friends of some New England favorites at Republican National Conventions have found to their sorrow, is seldom or never enthusiastic for a New England candidate. Mr. GILLETT is said not to be too ardently supported by the New England Republicans. Before senior Republican members of all sections the Mann supporters are dangling promises of fat Chairmanships and good places on good committees. Will these invitations to Republican disaster be accepted? The East, or most of it, seems safe Republican ground. It is in the Middle and the Far West that the wariest walking is needed.

It is reported in our Washington dispatches that Mr. LONGWORTH of Ohio is looked upon as a desirable compromise candidate by Republican Representatives dissatisfied with Mr. MANN and unsatisfied with Mr. GILLETT. Mr. LONGWORTH is not yet 50. In spite of the handicaps of hereditary forehandedness and an overshadowingly illustrious father-in-law, he has worked himself up to a position of influence and authority in the House. He has wit, humor, industry, application, a good mind. In spite of a certain modesty he has made his talents acknowledged. He studies public questions carefully. He can think on his feet as well as in his library. If he has an austere devotion to the heaven-born tariff, it is a devotion shared by most of his fellows. Yet Mr. LONGWORTH is a good sort of Republican. He is popular in the House. He is supposed to be acceptable to more liberal and progressive Republicans; and yet Uncle JOE CANNON would bestow his blessing upon him.

LONGWORTH or not, somebody with ability should be the next Speaker. KAHN of California would represent Americanism as well as anybody, but he will be needed at the head of the Committee on Military Affairs.

THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE.

It fell to Attorney General GREGORY to conduct the affairs of the Department of Justice during a period of war. Such conditions raise countless questions on which opinions are divided sharply, and decisions are difficult on the merits and sure to arouse candid condemnation by one side or the other. It is no perfunctory praise of the retiring Attorney General to say that he measures up to the standards set by the comparatively small troubles of the Spanish war, or even the civil war period, when his predecessors were such lawyers and publicists as EDWIN M. STANTON, WILLIAM M. EVARTS, EBENEZER R. HOAR. He retires from public life with professional repute heightened from his conduct of business not within the routine of a Texas country lawyer.

It was in that capacity that he made himself known to the appointing power. It was not possible to separate him from the trust question from the day that Standard Oil magnates paid to Texas perhaps the largest fine ever paid. It is no defense of bad trusts to add that oil is not cheaper in Texas, and that Standard Oil's profits and business in Texas are larger. It is a genuine achievement to have contributed toward better business practice.

Nevertheless it remains true that his work against the trusts was better in Texas than in Washington. In Texas he was the assailant of business practices condemned by good merchants. In Washington he took ground little different from the position that all trusts are bad trusts. Only a few days ago, and just after Judge GARY had announced that the iron trade thought that prices should be reduced, the Department of Justice issued a statement that after New Year's "concerted price-fixing by any indus"try after the Government ceases to "exercise price control will be regard"ed as in restraint of free competi"tion." On the other hand, close on the heels of Mr. GREGORY'S announcement of his retirement, comes the department's approval of the price-fixing and distribution agreement between the Sugar Equalization Board and the sugar refiners. The distinction between the two statements is that one relates to the Sherman anti-trust law and the other to the Food Control act. The case of sugar differs from that of wheat, for there is a specific statute regarding wheat and none regarding sugar. Mr. GREGORY finds himself between opinions of distinguished counsel that the sugar price-fixing is obnoxious to the law and that the steel price-fixing is in the public interest and in conformity with the Sherman law under the rule of reason.

Mr. GREGORY'S retirement will hasten decision upon this confused situation, and perhaps will alter practice in another important respect. His view of the public interest led him to avoid seeking a decision during the war upon the seven leading trust cases now before the Supreme Court, and ready for its action. One case was taken from the court by his agreement with the trust on a settlement out of court. In that manner, also, was the New Haven Railway case settled, without suit. It is desirable from the standpoint of lawyers and business men, giving and seeking advice, that the law should be settled, not compromised, and that trust "fixing" should be in court and not in department practice. The Department of Justice is specifically charged with the administration of the Sherman law, and it uses its discretion according to the temper of the times. Present temper calls for certainty of the law, not for compromise or obscurity under it, and for fairness toward good business practice as well as for sternness toward departure from good conscience.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Fate Easy to Foresee.

Probably there has not been a single day in the last twenty years when competent alienists, had an opportunity been given them to examine the man LEBAUDY, not only would have declared him insane, but would have prophesied with complete confidence that sooner or later he would play a rôle in some such episode as the one that terminated his life. Their only doubt would have been as to whether he would kill or be killed, but they would have declared it most probable that he himself would do the killing.

His type of insanity—none is more familiar to the psychiatrists—is invariably progressive, and its almost inevitable end is a tragedy of some sort. Its victims, however, are not wholly mad or mad all the time. To express their condition more correctly, their madness is not incompatible with frequent demonstrations of intelligence and shrewdness, and they are quite capable, when a special need for controlling themselves exists, of appreciating that need and of carrying themselves sensibly till the obligation ceases.

That is why all the many attempts to have LEBAUDY shut up in an asylum came to nothing. His behavior in court and under the examination of judges and others who knew nothing about such matters was convincing to them of his sanity, simply because he did not rave and obviously was not idiotic. The stories they heard about his peculiar actions they dismissed as exaggerations of eccentricity or as humor, and they let him go, to be a danger to himself and to all who came into relations with him.

Tolerance Due to Money.

Had LEBAUDY killed his wife and daughter it would have caused, for a while at least, a widespread realization that to allow men like him to remain at liberty is more than injudicious. As it is, the utter lack of sympathy for his fate that prevails will cause the affair soon to be forgotten, and others of the rather numerous class to which he belonged will continue without effective restraint to display the same peculiarities till they, too, are carried by their irritability and delusions to the natural climax of homicidal excitement.

LEBAUDY'S possession of money in large amounts probably had much to do with the fact that he was allowed to pass for so long as merely "queer." A good many people of various sorts found it profitable to endure in him what they would not have tolerated in a poor man, for though, as a rule, he could and did show sense in the management of his fortune, his expenditures in the gratification of his whims and fads were large, and he did not lack for help in making them. That he should have combined penuriousness with extravagance is not a surprising fact. The two qualities were but the extremes to be expected in cases like his, the characteristic mark of which is a magnification of everything—especially of his own importance.

He was not undeserving of pity, and possibly treatment that was wise as well as timely would have saved him. Whatever chance of that there may have been was lost because those who could have recognized his condition were not interested in doing it.

Inability as Bad as Negligence.

Another disastrous rear-end collision has followed after only a single day the one on the New York Central near Batavia. Again all possible precautions against such accidents seem to have been taken, but again, this time on the Reading line, an experienced engineer ran unheeding by the signals to stop, though none could have known better than he that to ignore them meant almost certainly his own death. Certainly nobody was more endangered by it than he, for rarely indeed do the engineer and fireman of the colliding train escape with their lives in such cases.

Carelessness, in the ordinary sense of that word, does not explain these failures to guard against a thoroughly understood form of destruction. Inability at a given moment to act instantly in response to a familiar stimulus is a definition rather than an explanation of what occurs when a locomotive engineer runs by warning signals that the track ahead of him is not clear. Such moments come to all men, but they come to some oftener than to others, and the only approximation to safety obtainable lies in keeping out of positions of like responsibility men more prone than others to display this strange phenomenon.

Long experience in the performance of a certain task is not a guarantee against the moment of oblivion; it sometimes invites it. Railway managers are quite right in ascribing great significance to the running by of signals, even when accident does not result. It is not necessarily a proof of negligence, but it justifies discharge none the less, in recognition, not so much of guilt as as of a constitutional incompetence to meet the requirements of an engineer's position.

A Mystery Really Disquieting.

A curious vagueness marks the manifestations in Congress of antagonism to Mr. HOOVER as controller of food supplies for the nations recently at war. Surely no man has given, or could give, clearer proofs than he of competence for this enormous task, and there is no colorable excuse for suspecting him of undertaking it from motives of self-interest—for any other motive, indeed, than that of rendering one of the most important of public services.

Yet both Senators and Representatives speak of him with as much of bitterness as if he were the worst of war profiteers, and apparently they are eager to replace this man of many and high achievements with somebody else whose capacity to do his work is at best a matter of hope, not of knowledge.

If it is due to Mr. HOOVER'S manner toward would-be advisers—if he tends to resent restrictions—if he lacks tact and suavity—why do they not say so?

Possibly their silence is due to realization that these are poor and petty reasons for the enmity they show. And as a matter of fact, Mr. HOOVER did demonstrate in Belgium more than ordinary skill in dealing with men of a peculiarly "difficult" sort—the Germans—and his friends and admirers are of a number and quality that should make his enemies very cautious.

Reasons for hating Mr. HOOVER can easily be imagined, but of course those reasons are not such as by any possibility could exist for a moment in minds of Congressional magnitude and nobility. That's what makes the mystery of the opposition to him so dark.

Italians and Germans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the special cable you published from Milan today reporting Bissolati's view your correspondent has made an obvious error, which I beg you to correct. He reports that Bissolati does not want Italy "to subject to her sway 1,500,000 German-speaking population of the northern boundaries," for he regards the peaks overlooking the Upper Adige valley and the Eisack as a much better strategical line than that of the Brennero.

The whole population of the Tyrol, according to the last Austrian census of 1910, totalled 1,092,021. Of these, 306,437 belonged to the Trentino and were all Italians; 562,503 belonged to the Upper Adige, south of the line of the Brennero claimed by Italy and of mixed population; the remaining 462,981 belong to the German section of the Tyrol which has never been claimed by Italy.

Mr. Bissolati, according to your correspondent, seems to be in favor of an intermediate line between the true Trentino and the Brennero pass. The region which he does not wish to be included in Italy extends over the townships of Merano, Silandro, Brunico, and Bressanone, which have, according to the last Austrian census, a population of 144,407, about 14,000 of whom are Italian.

The statement in your Milan cable reporting that Bissolati does not wish that 1,500,000 German-speaking people be added to Italy should really read 130,407 German-speaking people, which, according to the last Austrian census, inhabit this part of the Upper Adige.

TO ONE WEARING A GOLD STAR.

What can I say to you? I hide my joy
As though it were a crime; I would not be
So cruel as to flash the jewel-light
Of this my rapture on the saddened sight
Of your poor, tear-dimmed eyes.
To me, Peace means
Blissful renewal of a love that lives,
Made dearer, stronger, by the memories
Of absence, and by faith now justified;
But you!
To you it means—a Golden Star;
Eternal silence of the well-loved voice;
A shadowy Presence hovering in the home
That once was his and yours, to break your heart
With longing, and to salt your bread with tears.
What can I say to you? There is no way
For Rapture to communicate with Grief;
I Have—and you Have Not; and that is all!
How can you bear the tumult and acclaim
When come the Great Gray Ships from overseas
Bringing his comrades to their waiting homes?
Has Heaven any solace for your soul?
And yet, O wearer of the Golden Star,
Mayhap you have a peace I do not know;
For you the worst is over; grief and pain
Can never, never touch you any more;
You have been made immune to misery;
For you the Future is no dimly veiled
Dark Sibyl, who may proffer you the Cup
Of Trembling—you have drained the chalice now;
You know the calm that goes with certitude,
While I am wary in my happiness,
And every hope is guarded by a fear!
We are not, then, so alien as I dreamed;
My passionate sympathy has made me wise,
And you and I may meet on common ground—
You have your Past! my Future waits for me!

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

PERSHING ACCUSED OF 'ARMY POLITICS'

Representative Gallivan Says That Regulars Are Favored Over Guard Officers.

CITES GEN. EDWARDS'S CASE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Representative James Gallivan of Massachusetts, in a speech in the House today, declared that army politics had operated to the disadvantage of Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards of the regular army and also of National Guard officers.

This speech by a Democratic member many said was the first of a series of revelations to be made by Congressmen who have investigated conditions in France, and who are prepared to tell what they know of General Pershing's conduct of the war as viewed by them and his alleged enmity toward such men as Major Gens. Edwards, Silbert, and Wood.

The most sensational charge made by representative Gallivan was that Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, who commanded the 26th, or New England, Division, was sent home "because he refused to do dirty work," and "remove National Guard officers who had served until the last few weeks of the war to make places for pets of West Point and Fort Leavenworth."

General Pershing and some other officers in France were attacked and characterized as men who "had not seen a combat," but "were highly tailored and slept comfortably in Chaumont and Tours."

Secretary of War Baker, the speaker said, when asked when the New England Division would be sent home, replied "that the movement of troops was in the hands of General Pershing." If the Congressman had the temerity to approach Mr. Baker a second time on the subject, Mr. Gallivan said, he became "peevish."

Fit for Fighting Only.

"They, the National Guard officers, were all right for months when the shells were shrieking, but just like the last quarter of a football game, when the whistle is about to blow and the boys on the one-yard line have reached over, they take out these gallant officers from the National Guard in this country and hand the commission, and the salary that goes with it, to some fellow who never engaged with combat troops in all the period of the war," declared Mr. Gallivan.

"Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, God bless his name, who went to France in charge of the New England Division, was sent home in September because he refused to do the dirty work," said Mr. Gallivan. "That is the story, gentlemen. He was told to his face by a whipper-snapper Chief of Staff of the 26th Division, named Duncan U. Major, 'If you don't get these National Guardsmen we will get you.' And they got Clarence Edwards, but he refused to do their dirty work, and when he came to Washington he owned that town, and as long as he lives he will have a place in the hearts of New England second to no man else.

"I want to see this thing come out and I want the deserving General and the Colonels whom I have referred restored to their commands, and I want to see tribute paid at least by the Congress of the United States to the wonderful sacrifices which each and every one of them has made."

At this point Representative Little of Kansas interrupted to say: "Does the gentleman know that General Clarence Edwards was out of fashion with that clique for another reason, that is, that he was a fighting soldier instead of an expert? He was with Lawton in the Philippines, and before this war began had fought in more fights and commanded more troops in action than any Major General that went to France. For that reason he was a little unfashionable, and I can add a little to the gentleman's statement of facts by saying that the week before he sailed he said to me that he proposed to get either a bullet or a promotion. I am sure he tried hard for both."

"General Edwards was a fighting General," continued Mr. Gallivan. "He saw combat and participated in combat, and none of these other fellows did, and don't you get bluffed when they come back home. They do not know a 77 from a dud, if you know what a dud is. It is a flivver, and most of them would run away from a baked apple."

The division headed by General Edwards, Mr. Gallivan said, was the first National Guard unit in this country to reach France. He recounted all its battles, and said that 9,600 men passed through the 101st Infantry from February to November.

Assails General March.

"I asked when these boys, what is left of them, would be permitted to come home. I directed my inquiry to General March, and I wrote on the outside of the envelope the words, 'Personal, special attention, General March.' I received a reply on Saturday, in which I was informed by one Swing, a Major in the National Army, that 'General March directs me to say to you that the 26th Division is not on priority and will not be placed there until General Pershing decides to place it there. Any other information on this division will be furnished you through the press.'"

Representative Gallivan said he approved the attack Senator Chamberlain made upon the War Department, declaring that when he said that the War Department had "failed to function," he told the truth.

"What will the men of this Congress say when they hear the story of a division of American troops, the first National Guard unit to leave our shores and fight in every fight since February, 1918, beginning with Chemin des Dames, and were at Soissons and Chateau-Thierry, and St. Mihiel, Verdun, and the Argonne Forest? Thirty-seven thousand men left New England in September, 1917; in February, 1918, went into the trenches, and on Nov. 14, 1918, a shattered remnant came out of the trenches, 560 boys of my own regiment, the 110th Infantry, formerly the 8th Massachusetts, and of the 5th Massachusetts sleep their last long sleep under the blood-soaked fields of France, 2,300 of them wounded, arm off, leg off, eye out, gassed.

"And on the 6th of November the Colonel of that regiment, who had stood with his boys from September, 1917, until November, 1918, shoulder to shoulder with them in the trenches, is relieved of his regiment to make way for a dandy pet of the Leavenworth clique."

Representative Butler of Pennsylvania said that similar circumstances had occurred in regard to a soldier from his Congressional district. "The day before the armistice was signed they removed him and sent him home," said Mr. Butler, "after being in continuous battle for four months as the Captain of artillery."

"One of the finest men in Texas was removed under similar conditions; two splendid Colonels in Missouri were removed, and a Brigadier General from Pennsylvania was removed under similar circumstances," continued Mr. Gallivan.

"And then, if you ask the Secretary of War for an explanation, you are told he has nothing to do with it; that General Pershing is in complete authority; and if you ask the second time, he gets peeved. He does not like to be cross-examined. And his Chief of Staff—why, I read with amusement what Congressman Madden said the other day about the Chief of Staff, and his upstart aid, and since then I have had a similar experience."

"We have some from Illinois in the 26th Division, quite a few, but New England has less than 20 per cent. of the division," added Mr. Gallivan, "and when picked to be a part of the Army of Occupation the new division commander, on reports from brigade commanders, threw up his hands—the boys were gone, physically gone. Then they took their equipment away and they gave it to other troops which were going into the Army of Occupation. The newspaper correspondents have written home to Boston and their language has been allowed to pass through the censor's hands, and according to them the boys of the 26th (New England) Division, the Yankee division, were left stranded at Montigny le Roi. They are now stranded. When I asked the Chief of Staff what he could tell me in reply to the newspaper stories his upstart aid tells me nothing—'read the papers'—and I have read them. The papers tell me the division is stranded, and out of the 110th Infantry when it went to France three-quarters of the boys came from my district. I know every commander, and, by God, I am going to see that that regiment is treated right—what's left of it."

Touching upon the mention of General Pershing's name as a Presidential possibility, Mr. Gallivan said:

"'I want to say to the practical politicians in Congress that I would not wish my political enemy any more harm than that he should select for high public preferment one or two of the so-called great Generals who are abroad and who have never seen a combat. I mention no names. I have talked with the boys, and there is not one of them who has either affection or respect for the two or three that I have in mind."

"'What is Congress going to do about it?' he went on. 'Is it going to allow the Secretary of War to 'pass the buck' to Pershing? Is it going to allow the handsome Chief of Staff to 'pass the buck' to Pershing?

"'Either the Committee on Military Affairs, or a special committee with equal representation from both parties should at once conduct an investigation, begin taking evidence here, and then visit in France every outfit that has a complaint and that wants to be heard."

Mann Joins in Attack.

Representative James R. Mann, Republican leader of the House, contributed to the attack upon the War Department. He read into the record another batch of letters intending to show indifference on the part of the War Department to the relatives of the soldiers wounded in France. He said that when requests were made of the Adjutant General's office for information, the War Department told the writers to apply to the Red Cross.

"It would be just as cheap for the Adjutant General's office to cable to France or to write to France as it is for the Red Cross to do it," added Mr. Mann. "I can conceive of no meaner disposition on the part of the Government than to tell a wondering and grieving wife 'your husband was severely wounded nearly four months ago, and if you want to know how he is, communicate with a private party.'"

He declared that "no effort is apparently being made by the army to deliver letters addressed to soldiers in hospitals in France. He read a score of letters that were returned with the inscription "Wounded; returned to writer."

In one case, said Mr. Mann, all letters written to a man who had been wounded in the last battle, after having fought in all of the battles in which the Americans participated, had been returned to their writers for three months.

CREDIT IN PERIL, SAYS THOM

Railroad Counsel Sees Danger in Prolonged Control.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The railways of the country again presented their opposition to a five-year extension of Federal control to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today. Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, supported the plan submitted last week by T. De Witt Cuyler, head of the association, asking for return of the roads, and the appointment of a Secretary of Transportation in the Cabinet.

Mr. Thom said the Government has used the credits of the railroads rather than dip into its own Treasury, and that instead of carrying out the intention of Congress in creating the $300,000,000 emergency fund to pay for equipment necessary during the war, the Director General's policy had been to make the roads pay the costs. The $1,175,000,000 program of betterments and extensions, he said, would not have one-third that value by the time the roads went back to the owners, for the materials and labor would now wipe out much of the value.

The roads would suffer under a further opportunity of five years in which to use their credits, he asserted. He called attention to contracts, which he construed providing that in the future, the costs would be regarded as making up the fair value of the improvements, but that no consideration would be given to the abnormal character of costs during the war years.

Robert W. Woolley, the sole member of the Interstate Commerce Committee who takes the side of Mr. McAdoo in urging the five-year extension, completed his testimony of yesterday. Julius Kruttschnitt of the Santa Fé will follow Mr. Thom tomorrow.

"Do the companies ask for the use of terminals, cars, and terminal facilities," said Mr. Thorn. "It has been using in addition the credit of the railroads. Assuming that it had the right to do this for the purposes of the war we will accept their use as having been legitimate and necessary, but we challenge the proposal to extend for a period of five years this absolute control of our credit, a power under which the Government can tell us what debts we shall assume, year by year and day by day, and not subject to the will of the owners of the properties."

NO BOLSHEVIKI AT PARIS.

Russian Officers Here Support the French Position.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On behalf of the Voluntary Association of the Russian Army and Navy Officers in the United States I beg to express my deep satisfaction on account of the splendid editorial published in THE TIMES of even date, under the title "A Contract with Crime."

Mr. Lloyd George's proposal that the Russian Bolsheviki be invited to send peace delegates to Paris impresses the loyal Russians in a most unfavorable way. Due to Mr. Pichon's brave and straight answer to the effect that the French Republic would not make any concessions to crime nor any contracts with barbarism, Mr. Lloyd George's proposal met with failure, but the very attempt to discuss the peace terms with the Brest-Litovsk traitors remains significant in itself.

Lloyd George certainly manifested a deep misunderstanding of the Russian psychology when he invited Admiral Kolchak to sit at the peace table with Joffe and Trotsky. It seems that the British Premier overlooked the fact that Admiral Kolchak and General Denikine have only one way to argue with the Bolsheviki, namely, with bayonets.

Lloyd George apparently bases his appeal on the belief that the Russian people as a whole will finally submit their will to the tyrannic will of a clique of international thieves and robbers who call themselves the Russian Soviet Government. The British Premier apparently thinks that Russia will never recover from the plague of Bolshevism and that, for this reason, it is necessary to make some concessions to the plague. Mr. Lloyd George is certainly mistaken. Russia will be the first country to recover. Very soon, sooner than it is anticipated by the foreigners, Russia will pronounce her decisive verdict on Bolshevism, and this verdict will be by no means favorable to the Red Terror with which Lloyd George plans to get the Russians to co-operate. This verdict will be expressed in two words: Unconditional surrender.

It is extremely encouraging that the United States Government has expressed its opinion that the American people can have no dealings with the thugs Potsdam hired and paid to stab them in the back, and this answer throws a ray of hope in the dark night created by the Bolshevist propaganda so cleverly conducted throughout the world and also in this country.

LIEUTENANT BORIS BRASOL.
New York, Jan. 13, 1919.

MOON BILL FAVORED BY WIRE COMPANIES

But They Notify House Committee That It Should Fix Time Limit on Control.

MACKAY CHIEF OBJECTOR

Judge Lamar, Testifying at Inquiry, Indicates Burleson's Opposition to Ownership.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Argument for the extension of Federal control over the telephone and telegraph wires beyond the period of the peace proclamation was made today before the House Committee on Post Offices by Judge William H. Lamar, Solicitor of the Post Office Department. The committee is considering the resolution submitted by Representative Moon, extending the control until Congress orders the Postmaster General to relinquish it.

The Moon resolution sets no time for the ultimate return of the properties, and this point has been opposed by practically all the telephone companies. Judge Lamar said today he wished to have a definite time for the return stated in the resolution.

Solicitor Lamar read a paper detailing the department's reasons for the continuance of control, and was questioned at length by Republican members of the committee.

There will be a public hearing on Jan. 21, when representatives of telephone and telegraph companies are to present their views upon the proposed legislation.

Companies Favor Extension.

In anticipation of the committee's action, Chairman Moon sought expression from many of the wire companies, and today he handed to the committee many letters and telegrams. Nearly all the replies asked that a definite time be set for the return of the properties, contending that without this limit, the financial world would be in continual unrest. The companies generally suggested control extension from two to five years. Most of the independents who wrote were in Missouri, Kansas and Texas.

Theodore N. Vail wrote that the shortest time possible under the extension should be two years. The Western Union said it was in agreement with a time-extension, but did not wish the purpose of the bill defeated by the "disputatious feature of Government ownership," and asked for an amendment showing that that was not the purpose.

An opponent of the bill was Clarence H. Mackay, who wrote that as the purposes of control, namely, "for the national security and defense," had ceased to exist, the lines should be returned at once, "particularly as the Government, at least in the case of the Western Union, will probably show a loss of several millions for the year ending July 31st, 1919, under Postmaster General's award." Mr. Mackay repeated his offer of November to Mr. Burleson that if the Mackay lines were returned, he would waive claim for compensation and accept what the Government had earned since taken over by the Government.

Judge Lamar presented many arguments in an effort to prove that there would be labor unrest, saying wages had increased 70 per cent. since the outbreak of the war. The whole of the European system must be reviewed, he contended, and that it was inevitable that rate controversies would arise, resulting in loss to the companies, poorer service, and antagonism between the companies and the public.

"The obvious way to prevent all this," said he, "is to extend the period of Government control and to work out the whole structure of rates on some scientific basis."

Strict analysis, he declared, would prove that the "falling value of the dollar has now led to a 40 per cent. reduction in the telephone rates as compared with the value of other prices and services.

Representative Steenerson of Minnesota inquired what compensation the Post Office Department was paying to Newcomb Carlton of the Western Union and Union News Company, and the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, both of whom are now assisting in the consolidation of the land wires.

"He's a dollar a year man," said Judge Lamar.

"But his salary is paid by the Western

HENEY SAYS HURLEY REASSURED PACKERS

Declares Ex-Chairman of Trade Commission Promised Inquiry Would Be Restricted.

GUARD OF RECORDS BRIBED

Investigator Also Tells Senators That a Meat Monopoly Has Fought Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Francis J. Heney, who was chief counsel for the Federal Trade Commission in its meat packers investigation, testified before the Senate Agricultural Committee today that the packers had interfered with the inquiry in various ways, had attempted to influence elections, and had sought to prevent the passage of the House resolution which precipitated the commission's activities.

The Senate committee is conducting hearings on the Kendrick bill for Federal licensing of packing plants and control of cars and other facilities of the industry.

Mr. Heney said "Mike" Gorders, one of the packers' attorneys, bribed with liquor and cigars a man named Markham, in the employ of the commission, while he was guarding the vault in the office of Henry Veeders, an attorney for Swift & Co. The safe contained papers and other documents desired by the commission, but which the courts had restrained it from obtaining.

"The evidence gathered by the commission," said Mr. Heney, "convinced me that five large packers have what is in effect a monopoly of the meat business in the United States, and have it so intrenched by control over the meat business of other countries contributory to the United States, that they are able to overthrow the law of supply and demand and fix prices not only to the producer but also to the consumer."

Reviewing the history of the packing industry from its acquisition of control over refrigerator cars of the country, Mr. Heney said the big companies now controlled more than 90 per cent. of the refrigerator cars and had destroyed the local slaughtering business.

Tells of Promise by Hurley.

Mr. Heney said when the commission's investigation was proposed Henry Vedder went to see Edward F. Hurley, then Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, who promised that there would be no public investigation and if an inquiry was made it would be along "economic lines."

"The investigation was not made along Mr. Hurley was chairman," interrupted Senator Kenyon.

"No," replied the witness, who declared that what the packers wanted was that the public should not get the facts. He added that during the commission's recent investigation the packers never applied to him to be heard, but the first thing they asked for was immunity.

Senator Wadsworth asked whether any prosecution had resulted from bribery of the commission's employe, and was told there had not been.

At another point Mr. Heney referred to the futility of convicting "big business." He declared it is impossible to convict ten million dollars if the owner has "boldness" and "persistency."

"You can bribe one juror out of twelve in a criminal case, and it is done," declared Mr. Heney, who said this opinion was based on thirty-five years' legal experience.

Discussing the control of the Chicago stockyards, the witness said "this is one of the most perfect swindling schemes I ever came in contact with by which Prince and Armour put millions in their pockets and go control of the Chicago yards."

In connection with the monopoly charge, Mr. Heney said Swift & Co., especially in New England, by cutting prices had driven every sheep producer out of business.

"Are they still out of business in Massachusetts?" asked Senator Norris of Nebraska.

"They are," was the reply.

Letters obtained by the Federal Trade Commission from the files of Swift & Co., Mr. Heney said, showed that it was not economical to ship cattle from St. Paul to Chicago or Kansas City to Chicago to be killed.

Contribution to Campaign.

Recalling the fight over the investigation resolution in the House, Mr. Heney said the packers contributed $1,000 to the campaign fund of former Representative Taggart of Kansas, and that they asserted Mr. Taggert would vote against the resolution, although, as a matter of fact, he voted for it when it came up. When he was defeated, Taggart was appointed an investigator for the Federal Trade Commission, but, Heney said, when this information was revealed he was discharged.

The witness said the Agriculture Department had a "satisfactory packers' viewpoint," and that if control was to be brought about the packers would like to see control of the stockyards in the hands of that department.

Regulation of the packers by Joseph P. Cotton, head of the meat division of the Food Administration, Mr. Heney declared a "joke." He said Cotton had on two occasions told him that the packers' "profits in 1917 were scandalous."

Mr. Heney made his statement today without being sworn. Tomorrow he probably will be put under oath so that the committee may insist upon his answering questions which otherwise would be barred by a court order in litigation growing out of the Trade Commission's attempt to get possession of packers' papers in Chicago.

Senator Gore of Oklahoma, Chairman of the committee, announced today that representatives of the five big packing companies, which the Federal Trade Commission charges controls the meat industry of the country, will have an opportunity to present their views to the committee. No date for hearing them has been fixed.

GEO. R. SHELDON DIES OF MINE INJURIES

Financier and Ex-Republican National Treasurer Was Crushed by a Coal Car.

CLOSE MORGAN ASSOCIATE

Was Credited with Bringing About the Reconciliation Between Ex-Presidents Roosevelt and Taft.

George R. Sheldon, financier and former Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, who was interested in a large number of financial and industrial enterprises, died yesterday at Carbondale, Ill., as the result of injuries received last Wednesday when he was inspecting a coal mine at that place. A car struck him and dashed him against the wall. He was rushed to a hospital, where it was found that he had a double fracture of the clavicle, three broken ribs, a punctured lung and other internal injuries.

To Mr. Sheldon is generally credited the bringing about of the reconciliation between Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft, which is perhaps his greatest achievement in behalf of his party, as it disposed of the Progressive Party and brought into line all the Republican factions, making possible the results of the last election.

Born in Brooklyn, April 16, 1857, the son of William C. and Mary DeForest Sheldon, he attended St. Paul's School at Concord, N. H., and then entered Harvard University, from which he was graduated with the degree of A. B. in the class of 1879. Immediately upon leaving college he engaged in the banking business, and was a success in this line from the start. Gradually he branched out into various enterprises, and became closely associated with the late J. Pierpont Morgan in many of the latter's colossal transactions. As a financier he was at the time of his death a Director in eighteen corporations, including the American Locomotive Company and the Bethlehem Steel Company. He was also Treasurer and Chairman of the Board of the North American Company, Chairman of the Executive Committee and Treasurer of the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Company, President of the Electric Securities Company, Treasurer and Director of the Detroit Edison Company, Director of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, the Union Electric Light Company of St. Louis, the Cincinnati Northern Railway Company, the West Kentucky Coal Company and the Wisconsin Edison Company. His offices were at 71 Broadway, where he was head of the banking firm of William C. Sheldon & Co., founded by his father.

Mr. Sheldon was President of the Union League Club from 1907 to 1911, and was a member of the Union, Republican, University, Harvard, Racquet and Tennis, New York Yacht, Metropolitan and The Brook Clubs of New York, and the Metropolitan Club of Washington.

In 1908 he was chosen Treasurer of the National Republican Committee, and it is said that he consented to make the sacrifice that is required in filling this office largely because of his warm, personal friendship with President Roosevelt. Mr. Sheldon held this office for eight years.

Mr. Sheldon lived at 24 East Thirty-eighth Street. In December, 1881, he was married to Miss Mary R. Senff of Brooklyn. His brother, William C. Sheldon, and his daughters, Mrs. Daniel Murphy and Mrs. Richard Whitney, have gone to Carbondale.

The funeral of Mr. Sheldon will be held Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue and Twentieth Street.

Wool Sale---Below Cost
To encourage the continuance of knitting for our boys in the Coast Defense, Camps, Ships and Convalescent Hospitals.
All our best wools for one week only from Jan. 15 to

With so many shops hollering "Sale," it's a compliment to our clothing, as well as a manifestation of the public's confidence in our method of doing business, to continue to have such a large and steady demand for the suits and overcoats we offer at regular prices. Last month's business exceeded any in the history of our house.

Let's chat a bit about why there will be no "sale" here.

Not once in the panicky period of the woolen industry did we let go of our high standard of all-wool and fast color.

Not once did we argue, "Oh well, we've got to have woolens, so let's buy what we can, standard go hang."

True, our foreign connections were a big help, especially when the Government began to take over entire American outputs.

What's the result! To-day we've only fine grade clothing—with no need "to try and get from under."

To-day we've a price scale that, in conformity with our usual practice, is based on fabric costs of a year ago; in some cases, eighteen months.

That means, were we now to try and duplicate, say a $45 coat, matching the quality of the cloth, linings, trimmings, making, etc., we'd have to get from $55 to $60, figuring the lowest possible percentage, commensurate with a legitimate profit.

Frankly, it's been a job to keep pace with the demand. Reductions in the ordinary course of business are simply made to clear out the stragglers. There are mighty few.

If we may quote from the consensus of opinions expressed by customers who've looked elsewhere first, the real bargains are at "four convenient corners" where, at reasonable prices, you still get full measure and a little bit more, for every dollar spent.

Winter suits. Winter overcoats. All of our own manufacture. For men; for boys.

Moneyback if you want it.

GIANTS CHANGE HANDS IN BIGGEST DEAL IN BASEBALL HISTORY

SYNDICATE BUYS NEW YORK CLUB

Price Received by Brush Estate for Majority of Stock Said to be More Than $1,000,000.

C. A. STONEHAM PRESIDENT

John McGraw, Who Engineered Deal, Becomes Vice President, and Magistrate McQuade Is Made Treasurer.

The New York Baseball Club of the National League changed hands yesterday, the estate of the late John T. Brush disposing of the majority of the stock to a syndicate headed by Manager John J. McGraw, Charles A. Stoneham, a broker, and City Magistrate Francis X. McQuade. It is understood that the new owners paid cash for the majority stock. Although the price was not given out, it is said to amount to more than $1,000,000. Two years ago, the Brush estate refused an offer of $1,250,000 for the club.

The new company which now controls the Giants organized with the following officers: President, Charles A. Stoneham; Vice President, John J. McGraw; Treasurer, Francis X. McQuade; Secretary, John B. Foster. The Board of Directors includes Charles A. Stoneham, John J. McGraw, Francis X. McQuade, Ross F. Robertson, Horace A. Stoneham, John Whalen, and Leo J. Bondy. Mr. Stoneham, who heads the new company, is head of the firm of Charles A. Stoneham & Co., brokers, at 41 Broad Street. For years he has been a close friend of McGraw and an ardent baseball fan.

When John T. Brush died in 1911, his interests in the club went to Mrs. Brush and two daughters, Mrs. Harry N. Hempstead of Indianapolis and Miss Natalie Brush of this city. It is the stock of the three women that the new company has taken over. Mr. Hempstead and N. Ashley Lloyd of Cincinnati still retain some of the stock, and Mr. Hempstead announced that he is now the third largest stockholder.

It is the first time since the late Andrew Freedman sold the Giants to John T. Brush in 1902 that the club has been owned entirely by New York men. Mr. Brush came from Indianapolis when he bought the club.

McGraw Stays as Manager.

The deal was engineered by Manager McGraw, who for several years has been anxious to become a stockholder. "There were no less than ten different people after the club," said Mr. McGraw yesterday, "but some of these had no chance whatever of getting the property. I will continue to serve as manager and Mr. Foster will continue as Secretary. We expect, with the renewed interest in the game which is already evident on all sides, that the season at the Polo Grounds will be one of the best in the history of the game.

"We will go ahead in a few days and make arrangements for the Spring training trip. I have decided that Marlin is too far away, and as there are half a dozen places in Florida anxious for us to visit them, we will pick one of the Florida resorts."

Mr. Hempstead, in announcing the change in ownership, said: "This day I have, in conjunction with N. A. Lloyd, co-executor and trustee of the estate of John T. Brush, passed the stock to Messrs. Charles A. Stoneham, Francis X. McQuade, and John J. McGraw, who will in future, I am sure, keep the Giants a thoroughly successful organization.

"I have many regrets indeed, but I feel that it was for the better interest of the estate and those dependent upon it to accept the offer of Mr. Stoneham and his associates, and those associated with me feel the same way. I have nothing but thanks for the generous friendship of the fans who have been loyal to the team in its many ups and downs under my control.

"I want also to thank the newspaper men who have been most kind to me, and with a number of whom I have formed a close friendship.

"It is fitting to say that in releasing the club that it continues in the hands of Mr. McGraw, who will be advanced to part ownership in the organization, and is one more step of advancement for him from the time a number of years ago when he first entered on his duties to the club. He is entitled to much credit and praise for his untiring efforts for the benefit of the club. I am still much interested in the club and its success with my associates and myself as a unit. I am the third largest stockholder in the organization."

In a statement given out by Mr. Stoneham the new owners outlined its policy as follows:

"The newcomers take possession with a keen sense of responsibility to the public of this city and of the entire country. They realise that the New York Baseball Club is something more than a private business enterprise, that in its playing department it belongs largely to its patrons, and their aim will therefore be to cater always primarily to their comfort and wishes."

Since McGraw took command of the Giants in 1903, New York has been the baseball centre of the country. The record of the scrappy little leader includes six pennants, one world's series, and he led the club into second place six times. The Giants finished third once and fourth twice. Only once, in 1915, did the New York club under McGraw finish in last place. While McGraw has always directed the playing policy of the club, he will now have even a freer hand in conducting that end of the game, and, being the aggressive sort of a man who usually gets what he goes after, baseball fans in general welcome the change with McGraw in complete control.

On account of the extensive transient population which enjoys baseball in New York, the Giants have become the best-known baseball club in the game. In the passing throng which attends games at the Polo Grounds during the Summer, there are as many fans just as delighted to see the Giants beaten as to see them win. Through the club's long roster of diamond heroes are the names of players whose fame will live as long as the game is played. Down the long list are Buck Ewing, John M. Ward, Roger Connor, Tim Keefe, Amos Rusie, Mickey Welch, Pat Gillespie, Ed Crane, Hank O'Day, Mike Tiernan, George Davis, Jack Doyle, Christy Mathewson, Joe McGinnity, Van Haltren, Dummy Taylor, Mike Donlin, and many others, right down to the present crop of players. New York, perhaps, takes its baseball more as an amusement than any other city in the country, and there has never been a club which McGraw led which didn't have the elements of "color" and individuality as well as playing skill.

History of the Giants.

New York was admitted to the National League in 1883, with John B. Day as President and Jim Mutrie as manager. Buck Ewing was Captain, and the slogan of the Giants in those days was, "We are the people." Day and Mutrie ran the club until 1892, when Pat Powers succeeded Mutrie as manager. In 1893 the club passed into the hands of Edward B. Talcott, C. C. Van Cott, and others.

The late Andrew Freedman bought the majority stock of the club in 1895 for $40,000, and then followed several years of experimenting with managers, no less than a dozen pilots having charge of the club on different occasions up to the time Freedman disposed of his stock in 1902. Among the many managers were George Davis, Jack Doyle, H. L. Watkins, Arthur Irwin, Scrappy Bill Joyce, Pop Anson, Fred Hoey, John B. Day, George Smith, and Horace Fogel.

It was in 1902 that John McGraw, who had been playing with the Baltimore Club in the new American League, jumped to New York and brought Joe McGinnity, Jack Cronin, Roger Bresnahan, and Dan McGann with him. When peace had been declared between the National and American Leagues in 1903 John T. Brush of Indianapolis bought Mr. Freedman's interest in the club for $100,000. Brush then signed McGraw as manager.

In his first year as manager McGraw landed the Giants in second place in the National League race, and in 1904 New York won the pennant. There was still bitter feeling between the old and the new leagues, and New York would not meet the Boston American League Club in the world's series.

In 1905 the Giants again won the pennant, and defeated the Philadelphia Athletics in the world's series. Mathewson, then a young pitcher, becoming the hero of the hour by his great work against the Mackmen. That is the only world's series the Giants ever won, although their battles against the Athletics, Boston Red Sox, and Chicago White Sox have been memorable occasions in the great baseball classic.

City Magistrate McQuade, the club's new Treasurer, is one of the most enthusiastic baseball fans in town. Only a year ago he took charge of the campaign to establish Sunday baseball in this State, and it was he who discharged Managers McGraw and Mathewson after they had been arrested for playing a game on Sunday at the Polo Grounds two seasons ago for the benefit of the 69th Regiment, just before it went overseas.

Magistrate McQuade stated that he would not sever his connection with the city bench because of his interests in baseball.

DEADLOCK OVER CHAIRMAN.

Major Leagues at Odds Over Choice of Commission Head.

August Herrmann of Cincinnati, was the centre of interest among the scores of baseball men who flocked into the city yesterday. Herrmann has not announced that he is ready to step down as Chairman of the National Commission, as his fellow club owners in the National League desire. While Herrmann would not commit himself on the question of his withdrawal from the commission, he did say that he did not agree with the other National League club owners on a one man commission.

This is taken to indicate that Herrmann does not intend to resign, and that when the election of a Chairman comes before Presidents Johnson and Heydler of the two major leagues, a deadlock will result, and Herrmann will continue as a holdover official.

As to the demands of the minor leagues for a representation on the National Commission and a voice in major league affairs, Herrmann is utterly opposed to them. He says they have an organization of their own now to conduct their affairs and that the commission should simply be a court of appeal in cases which their own organization cannot settle.

There were many rumors yesterday about the St. Louis Cardinals. It was reported that Russell Gardner, with James C. McGill of Indianapolis, had made an offer to President Branch Rickey for the club, but this Mr. Rickey denied. Manager Jack Hendricks of the Cards, is in town and told his friends that he expects to be at the helm in St. Louis next season. If Gardner and McGill buy the club, Hendricks is sure to retain his job, although the present owners want to get rid of him in spite of the fact that he has a contract which covers the coming season.

The Chairmanship of the National Commission will be the leading topic at the meetings of both leagues today. Baseball men predict that if both leagues held out in their present attitudes the deadlock would mean the continuance of Herrmann in office. It was stated among the American League men that President Ban Johnson would not change his present attitude, which is favorable to Herrmann.

Kid Gleason, the new manager of the White Sox, got into town last night and was busy shaking hands and receiving congratulations. There are four members of the old Baltimore Orioles now at the head of major league clubs, McGraw, Gleason, Jennings, and Wilbert Robinson. They had an old home week celebration last night.

Clarke Griffith of Washington is ready to introduce his scheme to abolish the sale of players from one club to another during the playing season. He will spring his suggestion on the joint meeting tomorrow.

Lieut. Bell to be Coach.

Lieutenant John Bell has been appointed assistant to Captain Joseph Hardmeyer, athletic director of the 18th Regiment, Brooklyn, it became known yesterday. Lieutenant Bell, who is a member of the first regiment company, has stimulated interest in athletics since joining the regiment, and is said to have a wealth of material from which to mold a representative track team. Lieutenant Bell was formerly attached to the New York A. C., where he displayed plenty of ability as a distance runner.

STEINBUGLER HAS BEST CUE AVERAGE

Brooklyn competitors in the national Class C 18.2 balkline billiard tournament triumphed over their Manhattan rivals in all four games played yesterday, in afternoon and evening sessions, at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. The victorious players were C. J. Steinbugler, Joseph Neustadt, J. R. Langdon, and Sydney Brussel.

Steinbugler defeated the veteran Louis A. Servatius in scoring his second victory. The score was 150 to 88, Steinbugler completing his string in thirty-five innings. This gave the victor an average of 4 10-35, the highest of the tournament. Steinbugler displayed good form in trouncing his veteran rival. In only five of his turns at the table did he fail to score, and there were runs of 25, 18, and 15 as his highest returns for a single inning. In these runs it appeared that Steinbugler would gather in additional points, but in his clusters of 25 and 18 misses on attempted kiss shots brought an end to his rallies. In the closing innings the victor gave his best display of form. He began this period with a cluster of 15. Four innings later he clicked off his run of 25.

Neustadt outplayed Humboldt Foss in the other afternoon contest, winning by a score of 150 to 52 in forty-seven innings. Neustadt averaged 3 4-47, and had high runs of 23, 11, and 9. His run of 23, in the sixth inning, gave him an advantage which Foss never threatened.

Langdon scored over Ardie Wickers in the evening by a score of 150 to 86. This contest was long drawn out, because of an unusual amount of safety play. Fifty-nine innings were required for the victor to complete his string, which brought Langdon's average down to 2 52-59. He had a high run of 14.

Brussel was forced to extend himself to gain the verdict over John Low. The count was 150 to 112, Brussel necessitating forty-seven innings to gather in his necessary points. This gave Brussel an average of 3 6-43, and he had a high run of 23. The victor showed the way in scoring from the start. Low several times threatened to rally, but always his efforts failed to approach a point where he could be regarded as dangerous.

CATS TRY FOR PRIZES.

Miss Jenny Kroeh's Entries Win Six Ribbons.

Miss Jenny Rose Kroeh of South Orange, N. J., was the most successful exhibitor yesterday at the opening of the sixth annual cat show of the Empire Cat Club, held on the roof of the Hotel McAlpin. Miss Kroeh, with six entries for the various classes, captured as many ribbons, leading her rival exhibitors in this respect.

The show is the biggest fixture of the year for cat fanciers. It is being held this year for the Soldiers' Tobacco Fund. The patriotic feature and the character of the felines exhibited formed a combination which attracted a larger crowd than has attended any cat show this season. Another attraction was that points toward their championship ratings were distributed among the successful cats. The show will conclude today, when the best cat of the exhibit will be judged by Mrs. C. N. Bailey.

Cats that were brought up in Australia and Siam furnished lively rivalry to the home-bred felines. Considerable attention was lavished on the imported entries, particularly the Siamese cats. These felines are said to be bred only in the royal palace at Bangkok. They are born pure white, but at the age of six weeks the toes, nose, ears, and tail turn to brown. These points become a chocolate color at six months, and the body takes on a cream color.

Paul Pilgrim to Return.

Paul Pilgrim, former track lieutenant at the New York A. C., who has been athletic director at Camp Merritt for more than six months, will probably be relieved of his camp duties and restored to civilian life again early next month. This was disclosed yesterday. Pilgrim plans to resume his New York A. C. duties.

NAME HARVARD COMMITTEE.

Nine Members Appointed to Supervise Athletics for Season.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 14.—Dean Henry A. Yeomans, Lieut. Col. Roger I. Lee, and Assistant Professor Dunham Jackson were named today as Faculty members of the Committee on Regulation of Athletics at Harvard. The committee will have supervision of all sports until next September, and it is understood that Dean Yeomans will act as Chairman in the absence of Dean Lebaron R. Briggs, recently named as Harvard exchange professor to France.

The graduate members of the committee are Henry Pennypacker, Benjamin Loring Young and Lawrence Curtis, and the undergraduate members David B. Arnold, Henry H. Faxon, and Robert E. J. Gross.

One of the first questions to be determined by the new committee is whether hockey shall be retained as a "Varsity sport.

Dean Briggs, who for many years has served as Chairman of the Athletic Committee, in a statement tonight said he was not opposed to intercollegiate athletics, but that the system needed many changes.

"I am in sympathy," he said, "with the resolution passed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association last month in New York recommending that university authorities take more direct responsibility for athletics, that physical training and athletic sports be regarded as an important part of education and supervised by a department in instruction."

YALE TO PLAY HOCKEY.

Baseball Diamond Is Being Converted Into a Rink.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 14.—Yale has organized a hockey team, although it is by no means certain that games can be played because of the lack of an artificial ice rink. The baseball diamond at the Yale Field is being flooded, and practice will begin as soon as the weather furnishes natural ice. If the weather provides ice continuously for two or three weeks, a couple of games will be hurriedly arranged.

David Ingalls, Captain of the Freshman team which went through its season two years ago without a defeat, has been elected Captain. He has been in military service for two years, having just returned to college with nearly a dozen victories in air fights to his credit.

The hockey squad numbers forty, including four members of last year's team, Wier Sargent, Buck Boyd, Watson, and Poindexter. Boyd is the baseball Captain. W. J. Smith of the Freshman hockey team of two seasons ago, and Captain Carson of the Freshman last year, are among the candidates.

BOXING BILL READY.

Senator Gibbs Prepares Measure to Again Legalize Sport.

ALBANY, Jan. 14.—Senator L. W. H. Gibbs of Buffalo announced tonight that he had prepared a bill designed to legalise boxing, and that he would introduce it in the Legislature within a few days.

Among the features of the bill are: Appointment by the Governor of a boxing commissioner for the term of two years at a yearly salary of $4,000, minimum age limit of 18 years for contestants, only licensed referees to be allowed to be in charge of exhibitions, no official decisions to be rendered, clubs to pay 10 per cent. of total receipts to State. All matches would be limited to ten three-minute rounds, and the rules regarding gloves and other details are similar to those previously in force.

ROSS SETS NEW RECORD.

Clarence Ross, Erasmus Hall High School's swimming star, created a new scholastic record for the 220-yard swim yesterday in the P. S. A. L. championship trials in the City College pool. Ross, swimming one of the best races of his career, covering the distance in 2 minutes 39 seconds, clipping six seconds off the previous best mark of 2 minutes 45 seconds, hung up by Leo Giebel of Stuyvesant in March, 1916.

Barton Wins at Pool.

George Barton defeated B. F. Howe last night in the pocket billiard tournament of the A. A. B. A. at Daly's Academy by a score of 100 to 80. Barton made a high run of 19, while Howe's best effort was 14. Tonight Edward Kirby will oppose Norman Vidbard.

HAMMOND HEADS N. Y. A. C.

Mercury Foot Organization Elects Independent Ticket.

Major Graeme M. Hammond was re-elected President of the New York A. C. at the annual meeting of the club last night. Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney was re-elected Vice President, and the following officers were again elected to office: Treasurer—Martin S. Paine; Secretary—Frederick Fortmeyer; Captain—Arthur McAleenan.

There was no contest over the election of the officers of the New York Athletic Club at the annual meeting last night, but there was a fight on for the selection of the Board of Governors, who will hold office for two years. The division of opinion among the members of the club was focussed on William A. Hines, Rudolph A. Haubold, and A. H. Pogson. The contest for the offices on the Board of Governors was caused by late starters in the race. Haubold, Pogson, and William C. Poertner did not have their entries posted until a month or more after the names of the original contenders were listed. Outside of those already named those in the running for a place on the Board of Governors were William R. Delehanty, Matthew P. Halpin, Michael F. Loughman, Charles H. Pond, William H. Seaich, Fremont W. Spicer, and Arthur W. Teele.

NO BOOT-LEGGING

Absolute Prohibition!

The liquor peddler of former days plied his illegal trade when laws were lax. No such "merchant" will be tolerated when the Prohibition Bill becomes effective on June 30. The country will then be kept DRY and the law strictly enforced until the army is demobilized and permanently thereafter upon ratification of the Constitutional Prohibition Amendment by the several states.

Meanwhile prices of all wines and liquors are constantly advancing. When the heavy taxes are added, under the new law, they will be still higher.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices closed steady in a moderately active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final quotations in a majority of the active issues represented fractional net gains. Profit taking in the last hour caused general recessions from previous high levels. The specialties among the steel, copper and oil stocks were most prominent, but failed to move uniformly, some showing strength, while others were reactionary.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Special Issues Rise in Dull Stock Dealings—The Textile Price Cut.

Trading in stocks yesterday appeared to be influenced by particular forces applied to many different issues, with the result that, while the general trend was irregular, there was considerable strength in some directions and weakness in others. The group of steel company shares, as an example, reflected a varied tone of sentiment. Steel common moved upward gradually after announcement was made that employes could subscribe for stock at $2, but at the same time Bethlehem Steel was weak and contemporary issues displayed a tendency toward somewhat lower levels. The buying of specialties brought about sizable advances here and there. As a whole the market continued unrelieved of its recent monotony, with the feeling still evident in brokerage and bond offices that commitments of substantial calibre on either side were unwarranted by current conditions of industry and business.

The price situation in many lines of trade and manufacturing was brought to the attention of the Street by the reductions which were reported among certain textile goods. While not directly connected with the industries closest to the financial community, the decline of finished cotton goods nevertheless was the subject of study because of the general economic aspects of the movement. Two months have passed since hostilities ceased, and the turn from war to peace manufacturing began, and in the period comparatively little new buying of steel, copper, lead, zinc, and other products of mines and mills has come to light. From what may be inferred from the downward step in textile prices, manufacturers and distributers found that the public was unwilling to buy at existing quotations, and so they reduced the prices, and so to stimulate the market. There were bankers yesterday who found in this development significant information in respect to the immediate future of numerous departments of trade. So far producers of steel and copper have evidently decided to maintain prices at levels only slightly lower than the war schedules, hoping that buyers would elect to place their orders under the expectation that they could not get their goods cheaper by waiting. A program of this sort acts as a support to wages, but signs are yet to appear that consumers have been moved to come to the sellers at the prices asked by the latter, and in the copper industry an effort has been seen in the general decision to curtail production. Many inquiries are reported in the markets which may develop into export orders and here, too, prices stand among the deterrents to a reopening of peace business on a broad basis. The matter of prices promises to come further into the forefront of financial and business developments in the next few weeks; if the occurrences in the textile selling field supply any ground for reduction.

The proposal for a central gold fund for the leading commercial nations has been discussed by international bankers frequently in the past along the same lines as the allied representatives are reported to be considering the matter in Paris. It is generally agreed that trade still thought that only extraordinary provisions comprised in a League of Nations plan would arrange for a trustee mutually satisfactory to all the depositors.

The majority of call loans were placed at 4½% per cent., although a 4 per cent. rate prevailed in the afternoon.

NEW DECLINE IN COTTON.

Early Sluggishness Grows Into a General Break.

Trading on the cotton market moved rather sluggishly for the most part of the early session, the sentiment of the trade being mixed on the recent drastic cuts in cotton goods prices, and the ability of the staple to maintain an approximate par with recent prices. First prices, as on Monday, were higher by 5 to 20 points than the preceding day's closing, and under the lead of March contracts shortly advanced to still higher ground. The buying was principally for the account of Liverpool, with reports of a renewal of purchasing by the French Commission. These factors caused the market to maintain a firm undertone in the early trading, but after the first call the weakness in New Orleans caused a reaction because of fresh hedge selling there, with some scattered liquidation by the buyers on Monday. This weakness soon spread to the proportions of a general break in the entire list, prices going back 45 to 83 points below Monday's final quotations, with a 90-point decline in January. The weakness in January contracts was probably due to the circulation of some notices. At these low levels January was selling at 26.70c, March 25.34c, May 23.87c, July 22.98c, and October of the new crop, 20.95c. Some strong buying by the spots and trade houses caused a rally of 30 to 40 points from those quotations, with the closing fairly steady.

The report of the Census Bureau on the amount of cotton consumed during December was made public before the opening. Exclusive of linters, 472,941 bales were consumed in December, 1918, compared with 457,376 bales in November, 1918, and 524,033 in December, 1917. For the season the consumption amounted to 2,396,839 bales, compared with 2,439,260 last year. Exports were 588,457, and imports 13,748 bales. Active spindles were reported as 33,652,612, against 33,949,078 a year ago.

RETAILERS TO FIGHT TAX.

There will be a meeting at Delmonico's at 2 o'clock this afternoon, at which representatives of all retail furnishing goods concerns in the city are asked to be present. The meeting has been called for the purpose of making protest against the so-called luxury tax imposed by the pending Revenue bill. It is the intention of the promoters of the meeting to have the retail furnishers of New York join with both the retail and wholesale furnishers of the country in a demonstration to the Conference Committee of the Senate and the House, in whose hands the bill now is, "that this tax will place a burden on the retailer and the consumer, and a heavy burden on the Government itself, in the enforcement of the collection of such a tax."

Arrangements for the meeting are in charge of Samuel Fechelmer of Kaskel & Kaskel. Maurice Brill of Brill Brothers is Chairman of Publicity, and Mr. Heilbronner of Weber & Heilbronner is Chairman of a committee appointed to confer with the Retail Drygoods Association, while A. Sulka is the Chairman of a similar committee to confer with the Merchants' Association.

Cohoes Power and Light Corporation

First Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds

Dated January 1, 1918 Due January 1, 1929

Interest payable January 1 and July 1 in New York City. Callable at 105 and interest on any interest date on 30 days' notice. Coupon bonds, $1,000, $500 and $100 denominations. Registered bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $10,000. Coupon and registered bonds interchangeable. Principal and interest payable without deduction for any tax or taxes other than Inheritance Taxes and Federal Income Tax in excess of two per cent. Central Union Trust Company, New York, Trustee.

Tax Exempt in New York State

The following information regarding this issue of bonds has been summarized from a letter to the bankers signed by Frank M. Tait, Esq., President of the Company:

The Cohoes Power and Light Corporation is a consolidation of the Cohoes Company and the Cohoes Gas Light Company, which was incorporated in 1852. It supplies electricity for retail uses and public lighting in the city of Cohoes, for power purposes in the cities of Albany, Cohoes, Rensselaer, Waterford and adjacent territory, and also does the entire gas business in Cohoes.

In the opinion of counsel, these bonds are secured by a first mortgage on the entire property of the Corporation. For purposes of capitalization, the Public Service Commission of the Second District of New York State approved as of January 1, 1918, the valuation of the property at $5,000,000, or twice the amount of this issue.

Earnings for the year ended December 31, 1918, being the first year of unified operation with two months estimated, were:

Gross Earnings	$500,454.89
Operating Expenses and Taxes	249,890.93
Net Earnings	$250,563.96
Annual Interest on $2,500,000 First Mortgage 6% Bonds	150,000.00
Surplus	$100,563.96

A contract signed with the Municipal Gas Company of Albany, effective January 1, 1919, and other contracts recently signed, should increase the net earnings for 1919 to $375,000, for 1920 to $425,000, and for 1921 to $450,000.

The company's sources of revenue are well diversified: eight thousand five hundred customers in and about Cohoes are served; thirty-two factories and mills are supplied with power and have erected plants on the real estate owned by the Corporation under leases and contracts to use power for 999 years.

The franchises under which the company operates are, in the opinion of counsel, without time limit.

A large majority of the capital stock of the Cohoes Power and Light Corporation is owned by the Estate of the late Anthony N. Brady, which is well known for its constructive management of similar properties in various parts of the United States.

Price 102½ and Interest, Yielding over 5.65%

All legal matters pertaining to the authorization of the mortgage and bond issue have been approved by Messrs. White & Case for the bankers, and by Messrs. Ingraham, Sheehan and Moran for the Corporation.

RUG PRICES REDUCED.

W. & J. Sloane, sole selling agents of the Shuttleworth Brothers Company of Amsterdam, N. Y., have issued a new price list of Akbar, Balbeck, and Karnak Wilton rugs. They come in various sizes from 22½ by 36 inches to 11 feet 3 inches by 15 feet, and also in special sizes sold by the yard. The terms are f. o. b. mill, 4 per cent. 10 days, 60 days, dating from the date of invoice. Anticipation will be allowed for unexpired dating at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, the manufacturers to have the privilege of shipping goods as they come from the loom. The prices are subject to withdrawal without notice. All orders are to be taken subject to ability to fill up to March 31. The prices on the goods are said to show a reduction of about 25 per cent. from those of last Fall.

Larger Orders for Ribbons.

A spirit of genuine optimism prevails in the ribbon trade, and manufacturers anticipate early and liberal buying. On the whole, this season bids fair to be one of extremely large demand for plain ribbons, with bright colors predominating. One of the leading firms in this trade said yesterday that there would not be any break in the market, as was expected by some of the retail dealers. In fact, prices are more likely to be higher in the future. Buyers who have been in the market were made to realize this, and placed orders that were much larger than they intended to.

Have Reduced Their Prices.

It was said yesterday in the handkerchief trade that it would be advisable for buyers to place their orders early this year if they expected prompt shipments. In view of the present market conditions, firms in this line are not making up large quantities of stock as usual, but are waiting until orders are received for the merchandise. Some of the manufacturers have reduced the price of their lines anywhere from 5 to 20 per cent., and in view of this some fair-sized orders are being taken on the road.

Misses' and Juniors' Coats.

The Spring lines of misses' and juniors' coats have met with a brisk sale among the retail trade. Salesmen who have returned to this city report that out-of-town buyers were much impressed with the new showings and placed some very substantial orders for these goods. Both in the local and out-of-town trade the demand is for a better grade of merchandise. During this week and next some very heavy buying is expected in this trade.

Showing New Straws.

In the local millinery trade straw hats are being featured that are similar to the Bancrofts worn by men. Hats of this kind have met with much favor in the retail stores at Palm Beach and neighboring Winter resorts. They are being shown in all of the leading colors, and are trimmed with grosgrain ribbon and bound with pineapple braid. At present georgette crêpe hats, bound with pineapple braid are very popular.

Waiting for Lower Market.

The new lines of ladies' kimonos that are now being shown throughout the country are meeting with some success, but not as much as was anticipated by the manufacturers. The tendency on the part of the buyers is to wait for a lower market. In speaking of this situation a member of this trade said yesterday that one house, to which he usually sells $5,000 worth of merchandise, he was unable to sell at all this year.

FEAR DRESS GOODS PRICES MAY DECLINE

Buyers Hesitate and Would Have Mills Make Rates That Would Insure Against Loss.

PLEA FOR FAIR CONTRACTS

One-Sided Commitments Given as a Reason for Cancellations—Dry Goods Men Meet Today.

It was made plain at the annual convention of the Jobbers' Association of Dress Fabric Buyers, held at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, that textile manufacturers would have to meet the dry goods wholesalers half way in the readjustment period following the war if the buying of fabrics by the jobbers for the Fall trade was to assume more than a hand-to-mouth policy.

H. Clay Miller of the Daniel Miller Co., Baltimore, President of the jobbers organization, presided at the meeting, which was attended by buyers from many of the larger wholesale dry goods firms in all parts of the country.

The subject of co-operation between the mill men and the jobbers in helping to put business on its feet, after the upset caused by the war, was brought to the attention of the convention by W. M. G. Howse, President of the Johnston & Larimer Dry Goods Company of Wichita, Kan., who gave it as his view that, as a preliminary to placing orders for Fall merchandise, manufacturers ought at this time to name prices on such goods which would have the effect of protecting jobbers against losses should the market sag.

It was developed that dress fabric buyers were hesitating to place orders for Fall goods in the belief that materially lower prices might prevail later. Accordingly, Mr. Howse proposed a resolution, which was adopted, calling for the appointment of a special committee of five to invite mill treasurers and other manufacturing executives to a conference with the jobbers, to be held tomorrow afternoon simultaneously with the annual convention of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association. It was said that if the manufacturers were inclined to give assurances regarding price stability, such an attitude would go a long way toward ending the uncertainty in which jobbers find themselves at this time.

The question of cancellations of orders provoked much discussion, President Miller reading a paper on the subject in which he asserted that many contracts were one-sided and in favor of the seller. "It would be well for the seller to assure himself of the equity of a contract," he said. F. A. Colt of Ostrander & Co., New York, discussed cancellations from the standpoint of the manufacturer. Arthur B. Hestwood of the Tootle Campbell Dry Goods Company, St. Joseph, Mo., told of the hardships inflicted upon jobbers by the practice of the mills in requiring wholesalers to take so-called "arbitrary assortments" of merchandise when placing orders. A committee was named to take up this grievance with the manufacturers. The advantages of a standard shade card for cotton goods were discussed by Paul C. Barbee of the Smith-McCord-Townsend Dry Goods Company, Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Barbee gave it as his view that jobbers by using this card could reduce the returned goods evil 25 per cent.

World supply and markets at the present time were discussed by G. A. O'Reilly, foreign trade representative of the Irving National Bank. It was proposed by President F. A. Patrick of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association that the American Government reduce the prices on its heavy stocks of wool to British levels, in order to give American manufacturers a chance to compete.

All of the officers of the Dress Fabric Buyers' Association were re-elected. This afternoon the Jobbers' Association of Notion Buyers will hold its annual convention at the Waldorf, to be followed in the evening by the annual dinner of the National Dry Goods Association.

SHOE PRICES NOT TO DROP.

Manufacturers Expect Leather and Wages to Continue High.

Little prospect of a drop in shoe prices in the near future was seen by President John S. Kent in his address opening the eighth annual convention of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association at the Hotel Astor yesterday. "Good leathers will not be cheaper, and labor will cost more because of foreign competition, but this must be faced," he said.

Mr. Kent thought that America, as a victorious nation, should be optimistic in business, but cautious, and follow constructive leadership. "As a body," Mr. Kent said, "the wage earners of this country cannot be matched on earth in health, happiness, and prosperity, and it is not the man who wears the khaki and who carried a gun in this war who is talking of reconstruction of the business of the country, but the dissatisfied worker of another breed. The soldier need not be feared, and if we treat labor as it should be treated, neither need it be feared.

"Bolshevism, however rampant in Europe, will get no footing here, and the man who keeps the business fires burning is both a patriot and a captain of industry. Three hundred thousand shoemakers are employed by the industry we represent, and there need be no limit to their earnings while there is no limit to production. But we must not encourage any new Boards of Control, for, although some are good, others are poor, and success will be attained in the organized labor of industrial workers—each amenable to boards of arbitration."

Dr. Felix Frankfurter of the War Labor Policies Board, Washington, told the manufacturers present that 1,500 000 human beings were dependent upon the wage of the makers of shoes in this country, and added: "The Government fashion of standardization will help them and help you by promoting economy and increasing trade." The speaker went on to say that the time was at hand for the standardization of the relationship between labor and the employer. He said the time had come when most people believed in unionism, and emphasized that it must be "responsible unionism."

Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the board, Irving National Bank, said that there was danger that this country was as unprepared for peace as it was for war. We must come out of this aftermath of the war holiday mood and get down to hard business," he said.

The convention will continue today with the annual dinner scheduled for tonight at the Astor.

Auto Accessories Men on Trial.

Trial of the twenty-one individuals and seventeen corporations accused of conspiring to violate the Sherman Anti-trust law by restraining trade in the manufacture and sale of automobile accessories was begun yesterday before Federal Judge Learned Hand. The indictment comprises charges against certain officers and members of the National Association of Automobile Accessory Jobbers, and dates back to the formation of the association at the Union League Club, Chicago, on May 11, 1915.

To Name 33 Police Corporals.

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright will promote thirty-three men today from the eligible list for Sergeants to do duty as Corporals, a new rank in the Police Department, recently created by Commissioner Enright, owing to the scarcity of Sergeants. It is expected that the full quota of 250 Corporals will be named soon.

MORGAN SUES FOR $346,000.

Seeks to Recover Part Payments on Estate and Income Taxes.

J. P. Morgan sued John Z. Lowe, ex-Collector of Internal Revenue, in the Federal District Court yesterday for the recovery of $278,013 alleged to have been paid by him under protest as part of his income tax for the year 1915, and $67,847 paid on March 31, 1915, as executor for the estate of his father. Mr. Morgan's first claim was for the return of $365,753, which he had alleged had been paid by him in excess of the rightful amount due, but a re-examination of his books revealed the fact that he had overestimated the amount by $24,764.

Similar suits were also instituted by Herbert L. Pratt, a Vice President and Director of the Standard Oil Company, and Frederick B. Pratt, John T. Pratt, and Harold I. Pratt, who alleged overpayments of $2,662 during 1914 and 1915, and by Charles M. Pratt, who seeks to recover $5,057. The law firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn represents the plaintiffs, and tomorrow morning Charles E. Hughes will make the argument on their behalf before Federal Judge Mayer.

GRAND JURY HALTS LEBAUDY HEARING

Adjourns Until Tomorrow So District Attorney May Search for Evidence.

MAY BE NO INDICTMENT

Mrs. Lebaudy's Declaration That Daughter Was in Continual Danger Corroborated by Servants.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Jan. 14.—The Grand Jury, which has been hearing witnesses regarding the killing of Jacques Lebaudy, "The Emperor of Sahara," by his wife, Mrs. Augustine Lebaudy, adjourned yesterday until Thursday to enable District Attorney Weeks to search for evidence which might justify an indictment of the woman on a charge of homicide in some degree. Because he regards the testimony as conflicting in some degree District Attorney Weeks has decided to place every fact with the least bearing on the case before the Grand Jury, in order to enable it to decide whether Mrs. Lebaudy was justified in killing her eccentric husband by the fear that he intended violence to her and her daughter.

The stories from the servants at the Lebaudy house and the statements of Father William F. McGennis and Dr. J. A. Kerrigan have corroborated the declaration of Mrs. Lebaudy that her daughter was in continual danger from her father. According to her lawyer, Mrs. Lebaudy was forced to use chains, barricaded doors, bodyguards, and police signals to protect her and her daughter, because it was hopeless to attempt to send the man to an asylum. While Lebaudy had been confined in hospitals for observation after some of his acts, he was always able, it was stated, to assume a businesslike gravity and calmness when his reason was on trial before observers. While alienists had come to the conclusion that he was a paranoiac, their opinions never weighed in court against the apparent clearness and acuteness of mind which Lebaudy could exhibit when he was under a judicial examination.

Mrs. Mary Bentley, an alienist of the King's Park State Asylum, who examined Lebaudy when he was sent there several years ago, found him to be a paranoiac. She expressed at the time the opinion that his mental condition closely resembled that of Harry Thaw.

Friends of Mrs. Lebaudy said yesterday that she had taken the girl out of the Brantwood Academy, where she had been sent to school, because she feared that Lebaudy would make an attempt to kidnap her, and wanted the girl where she could protect her. Believing herself unable to obtain protection from the courts, Mrs. Lebaudy made a small fortress of her room and her daughter's, according to her counsel, and then provided herself with a revolver, which she obtained from a man she had formerly employed as a guard for herself and the child.

District Attorney Weeks refused yesterday to discuss the chance that Mrs. Lebaudy would not be indicted at all. After the Carman and de Saulles cases there is a strong sentiment in the county against having a sensational murder trial at Mineola if it is clear that it will serve no useful purpose.

Meanwhile the girl, Jacqueline, has been taken under the protection of Mrs. Charles de Saulles, a near neighbor, and may go with her to Atlantic City for a time, if it becomes necessary for the child and her mother to be separated.

H. W. Moore, lawyer for Mrs. Lebaudy, said yesterday he had found another witness to whom Lebaudy had confided his intention of killing his wife. He would not name this witness. Other witnesses have been found who knew both Lebaudy and his wife in London in 1902 and 1903, when Lebaudy was the "Emperor of Sahara" and his wife the young "Empress Augustine." They may be called if Lebaudy's estate, said to be worth $4,000,000 or $5,000,000, is thrown into court by the claim of kin of Lebaudy that the couple were never legally married.

CHAPIN SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR LIFE

Former Editor, Aged 60, Pleads Guilty to Murder in the Second Degree.

20 YEARS IS MINIMUM TERM

Prisoner Saved from Electric Chair When Assistant District Attorney Agreed to Change of Plea.

Charles E. Chapin, recently city editor of The New York Evening World, who murdered Mrs. Nellie L. Chapin, his wife, in the Hotel Cumberland on Sept. 16 while she was asleep in bed, pleaded guilty yesterday to murder in the second degree before Justice Bartow S. Weeks in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. He was immediately sentenced to prison for a term of from twenty years to life.

Before passing sentence Justice Weeks received a written recommendation of the change of plea from Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley, which was not read in open court. The only time that Chapin, who is 60 years old, showed any emotion was when the Court spoke the words of sentence. His face twitched slightly until Justice Weeks had finished speaking. He resumed his composure as he was led back to the Tombs to remain until taken to Sing Sing.

It is known that District Attorney Swann and Assistant District Attorney Talley were reluctant for a long time to accede to the request of the defendant's attorney that his client be permitted to plead guilty to a lesser degree. Chapin, it is said, has insisted that he wanted to go to the electric chair for his crime.

After Chapin was indicted by the Grand Jury Abraham Levy applied for a commission to have the sanity of the editor determined. His application was granted and a commission consisting of George W. Wickersham, Lamar Hardy, and Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe was appointed. After several hearings the commission decided that Chapin was legally sane.

VICTORY HUT OPENS.

Large Crowd at the Exercises in Battery Park.

The opening ceremonies at the Y. M. C. A. Victory Hut in Battery Park, under the direction of Mrs. Vincent Astor, which were scheduled for 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, drew a large crowd long before that hour. By noon there was a crowd of soldiers and sailors who were much interested in the new building. It contains a social room, a reception room, and a canteen which will be open from 7:30 A. M. to 1 A. M., while the hut proper will be open at all hours.

What appealed most to the soldiers was a placard which stated that a plate of ham and eggs could be purchased there for 25 cents when the kitchen gets in proper working condition.

After the exercises the hut was formally turned over by the Y. M. C. A. to the army and navy men. It will be in charge of C. P. Kinsman, with a staff of seven officials, and there will be a staff of 200 women, who will work in the hut under Mrs. Astor, who accepted the Chairmanship after Mrs. Winthrop W. Aldrich had to resign owing to ill-health. Mrs. Astor said:

"I intend to give my time as follows: One day I shall come down early and leave early, and on alternate days arrive late and stay late. My hours on the early days will be from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M., and on the other days from 10 A. M. until 9 P. M., or later."

Music was rendered at the ceremonies by the band from Governors Island. Mrs. Edwin Gould presented to the hut a set of flags of the Allies hung from a large gold eagle.

ZIONISTS SEEK $3,000,000.

Launch Campaign to Finance Work in Palestine.

The Zionist Organization of America has just launched a campaign to raise $3,000,000 for the work the organization plans to do in Palestine during the current year. The largest single item on its budget made public yesterday is $1,000,000 that will be used through the Jewish Colonial Trust and the Anglo-Palestine Company for construction and reconstruction work. Through these institutions money will be loaned to farmers, merchants, manufacturers, and artisans. With this sum greater loans can be made to repair the ravages of war, to make new roads, to construct power plants, and to develop the industrial and natural resources of the country.

For the Zionist Administrative Commission $550,000 will be appropriated. This will be used to maintain the offices in Jerusalem, Jaffa, and Galilee, the Palestine Zionist office, commissions of investigation, the public information department, the technical departments and the experts they employ; the legal and land registry departments, and for the support of towns and villages.

The budget calls for $420,000 for the Public Health Department and $400,000 for the Department of Education. For welfare work for the Jewish Legion and for dependents $75,000 is appropriated, and for relief work in Egypt and Palestine $25,000, and $100,000 will be used to repair institutions.

The Driver Under the Hood

If every truck owner in this city could hear his own hand on his trucks—if they were always operated as carefully and efficiently as you yourself would do it yourself what a great deal of upkeep it would mean. The Clydesdale Controller virtually enables you to do this.

THE Clydesdale Controller found only on Clydesdale Trucks controls the motor at all truck speeds. In this it differs radically from the ordinary truck governor which only limits the motor to a fixed maximum speed.

It almost seems as though this controller displays more than human intelligence in regulating the motor speed.

The driver sets the throttle at a certain fixed speed which he wishes to maintain, and the controller does the rest. When he declutches, the controller slows down the motor automatically. When the clutch is engaged the motor speeds up again bringing the truck up to the fixed speed in the shortest possible time.

In going up or down a hill, the motor automatically increases or decreases its speed, to take care of the changing load.

The most careless, inexperienced driver is practically forced to operate the Clydesdale with all the care and intelligence of the most experienced trustworthy man.

You business men know the increasing difficulty of securing competent drivers. We promise you that the Clydesdale Controller will practically solve this difficulty for you. And moreover this is only one of a score of marked improvements you will find on the Clydesdale. Isn't it worth investigating?
